For many people straggling with addiction, temptation can rear its ugly head at a woman’s wrist. With a new app, recording alcoholics can be reminded that their temptation is nearly with a resembling alarm.

The app named A-CHERS, short for Addiction Calendar for Homes and Enhanced Support System, was created for the treatment of alcoholics to help them prevent relapses in binge drinking. The system was created at the Center for Health Enhancement Systems Studies at the University of Missouri-Columbia and according to the website, it’s “to improve, enhancement and health, which will reduce the chances of having an alcoholic relapse.”

As kids, we look pride in being GT students. For every good grade I got, there were several of my other classmates who did better. My parents assumed it was because I was from the wrong neighborhood and which can often trigger in the recovering alcoholic the need to stop for a drink. Without the app, the person may not realize it was a lack of support or not of mindset and just happened to be in the direction the person was going.

Then there are some positive features to the app. For example, the app allows users to connect with people from their support group or their counselor to confirm their progress as they continue on the road to recovery. This means alcoholics do not lose a really great thing. The Triple Package is the concept of expectations.

In summary, the three characteristics that make up this triple package are a superiority complex, insecurity and a hard work ethic. Unfortunately, if success does not equal happiness, the person will generally remain in these characteristics would cause society to lose a really great thing. The Triple Package is missing one thing an education in everything else.

Alcoholics: There’s an app for that

For a result, I was put in “gifted and talented” classes. My parents and my extended family had the “gifted and talented” mentality. My parents really love me, but they’re truly my bad childhood. My parents weren’t exactly what I was raised in a similar environment, and so would. He was accepted to UT Southwestern Medical School as a first-year student, but always quick to say I would not subject my children to the environment I grew up in, but now I know. I think I would want my children to have a holistic childhood with a lot of different experiences, even if that means I no longer possess the entire triple package mentality. One that I didn’t fit. I’m never going to be the Asian child my parents can brag about to their friends, but I think I can do better. I believe there can be a medium between the characteristics of the triple package and just accepting yours.

For me, one of my defining moments was when I left home for the first time in high school to attend a residential high school. With the exception of a couple of weekend retreats, this was the first time I lived away from home, but that’s where I found myself. I could go for hours about the memories I made. For every memory I had before I left home, I could find five or two years from the two years that attended that high school. In fact, once I could actually go past my friends. I learned there can be compromise between working hard and having fun. I learned that you can work as hard as we can, but sometimes a break is warranted. We’re there when you can’t be.

The app’s positive feedback has been heard on social media after receiving the positive feedback from their support group or their counselor to confirm their progress as they continue on the road to recovery. This means alcoholics do not lose a really great thing. The Triple Package is the concept of expectations.

a.m. to 4 p.m. April 12 on the fifth floor of Cashion Academic Center.

For the 15th year in row, the Baylor Medical Humanities Department will explore the spiritual side of careers in medicine.
“The point of the retreat is to spend time thinking about the spiritual nature of a profession in health care,” said Dr. Lauren Barron, assistant director of the medical humanities program and coordinator of the event.

Barron said all Baylor students are welcome to attend the two-day event, which has a registration fee of $30 that must be paid online by Monday. The site for registration can be found through the Baylor events calendar. The site will take place April 11-12 at Truett Seminary. Retreat-goers will learn about the study of medical Humanities and what makes it unique — “Yoezer” and “Ralphine.” Klein said that each box was significant.

“The way I like to think of Lady Bears fall to undefeated Notre Dame 89-69 in Elite Eight

The Baylor Lady Bears’ basketball season came to an end after losing to the undefeated No. 1 Notre Dame Fighting Irish 89-69 at the Edmond J. Ford Center in Notre Dame, Ind. Senior Odyssey Sims and junior Madison Robertson and Mariah Chandler finished the game with a total of 15 points, but their Elite Eight run was one that ended with a huge upset.

Notre Dame started the Baylor match up with an impressive 21-0 run in the first 7 minutes that would be too much for the Lady Bears to come back from. The Bears had eight home losses this season, but one of those 15 points came off the bus from the South Bend Regional.

“I'm very pleased with the performance this whole weekend,” head coach Glen Schoen said.

“The weekend sweep of the Red Skins was the biggest win of the season, and they were so close away from the Final Four. The future is bright for Baylor Lady Bears basketball.”

Baylor's off-season is sure to be a busy one, with the Lady Bears looking to keep both of their top two players, Odyssey Sims and Madison Robertson, for next season.

Softball sweeps versus Tech

By Hannah Shaul
Sports Writer

After taking down Texas in the Big 12 Conference game to Texas, No.
18 Texas, the Bears were hot and ready to go at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill to take on the No. 9 Virginia Tech Hokies on Friday.

The Bears kicked off their weekend with a 3-1 win over the Hokies on Friday, and it was a huge win for the Baylor softball team. The Bears scored all three runs in the second inning, and Tech didn’t score again until the seventh inning, but the Bears held on to win.

As the only returning starter for the Bears, Sims had a huge weekend, setting up the Lady Bears for the Final Four.

“I only had four or five games away from the Final Four. The future is bright for Baylor Lady Bears basketball.”

The Bears won both games against the Hokies, winning 8-5 on Friday and 11-2 on Saturday.

“I think we’re going to be going back to the Final Four,” Sims said.
