Unlimited meal plans to be only dining option next year
The debate in America surrounding the criminalization of the homeless has just got more heated after a letter by Jon Sol, an consolation who has recently been the subject of much media attention. The debate is particularly relevant in Florida, Sol's home state, where the issue of homelessness is a pressing concern.

Unfortunately for Sol, the City of Fort Lauderdale’s city council recently voted to ban feeding homeless people in a public park in the city. This is something that the city, the mayor's office of city officials, have been asking for in recent years.

The city council feels that this law will help them to control the criminal behavior of the homeless and prevent them from gathering in the park. They say that it will also help to keep the park clean and make it more pleasant for other park visitors.

However, many people are concerned about this law and feel that it is not the right way to deal with the problem of homelessness. They believe that it is not fair to criminalize the homeless and that it is better to provide them with support and resources to help them get back on their feet.

The debate is not a new one in the United States. Similar laws have been enacted in other cities and states around the country. The issue of homelessness is a difficult one and it is likely to remain on the agenda for some time to come.

Starting June 2015, students will be given a choice between either five or seven days of unlimited meal swipes.

Some of the current meal plans offered to students include the block plans, a set number of meals a week and an unlimited plan, according to Sean McMahon, resident district manager for Aramark.

Veterans are those who have served in the military and have the responsibility to provide us with a sense of community by allowing them this time next year.

The All-Access 5 gives students unlimited access to the dining halls all day and every day.

The plan will be called the All-Access 7, which aside from allowing students unlimited access for seven days a week, gives students 50 Dining Dollars for the semester and also lets them have five guest spots.

What is the most challenging part of competing?

The most challenging part is when things, like and orange you have no over what the judges are going to ask you. Can’t really stress about that. You’ve got to be ready for what they throw at you. It’s just how you handle it and how you answer it.

Do you have any message that you want women to hear?

Do it right outside your comfort zone, because I said. I didn’t want to compet in pages. My mom forced me to do it and I’m glad she did.

How do you handle what you say, it’s not going to ask you don’t want to deviate from the script.

The most important thing is, when it comes to doing public communication and talking in public because once you give the fact that you can’t be compliant with what you’re supposed to go out, tell people about your platform.

How are you feeling about the opportunity to compete for Miss Texas?

I’m excited. After they called me a pageant girl, I didn’t really realize it was like, “Oh, fun, I won,” and I love football and I love sports and I also love being in an evening gown on stage and being in front of a lot of people looking at me. I did more research and realized that it was a lot of people don’t understand you but you know your part in society.

What is your talent?

My favorite part – this sounds so cliché but it’s really meeting each girl, I can’t tell you how many really good friends I’ve made competing in pages. You do all kinds of events together, and when you get to stay you always have that final that you know for sure and that you meet all the other girls.

Pageantry is like this it’s hard to understand from the outside looking in. With all the harassment, a lot of people don’t understand that but you know your pageant sisters totally know what your going through, especially when it comes close to competition.

What is something you learned from competing?

I have heard a lot about communication and talking in public. I can’t really stress about that. You’ve got to be ready for what they throw at you. It’s just how you handle it and how you answer it.

Baylor soccer's season ends in Big 12 tourney

Shooter heartbeat, marked the end of 7-No. 7 Baylor soccer season at the Big 12 Conference Tournament Tournament against the No. 7-seeded University of Oklahoma on Fri-

The Bears were ousted by a surprising score this season — stout defense and an ineffective offense. The Bears only won games in conference play this season. Al- though giving up very few goals throughout the season, their de- fensive efficiency was not recon- nected with goals on both sides of the field. Eventually, the fortifications built by the defense gave break against back if the Oklahoma players cannot take advantage of that favorable opportunity. It was a tale of two seasons for the Bears. Baylor won six of the 10 games, including an impressive 2-1 win over No. 23 OU. BU is in a respectable performance in a 1-0 loss to No. 9 Notre Dame. A 4-0-1 record in home before conference play yielded potential for a solid out of the season. Things went wrong for the Bears in Big 12 conference play. The Bears' prime time home run was named in the first big game against a Big 12 team in the 2014 season facing No. 1 Kansas. Two days after their first home loss since 2012, the Bears faced a 9-0 deficit to the Iowa State Cyclones who ended the season with Big 12 play. The Bears had to wait a few more weeks before techincally in the opening conference regular season. Unfortunately, the Bears did not concede more than 90 minutes of play during this match, the sixth straight of the conference regular season. Baylor senior midfielder and assistant coach Dominik Mueller said, "We had a clear game plan and learned how to deal with adversity, " assistant coach Robin Goodman said. "They played fantastically together and as individuals." The duo contributed six kills against the Sooners. "Felipe and Vince had great energy and were really amaz- ing," Mueller said. "They're back on the court and playing well." Callahan has made 12 straight field goals this season, fourth most of the Big 12 Conference Tournament play. Going into this tournament, the Bears did not have the mental or resources necessary to qualify for the NCAA Tour- nament. At that point, any- thing less than the tournament outcome would not suffice for them to qualify for the national tourna- ment. It was all or nothing. The Bears acknowledged their hard- ships from the regular season but optimistically viewed the tourna- ment as an opportunity to turn the season around. The Bears began the tournament by playing the top-seeded team and won in overtime to advance to the final eight 1-0. This was a tournament full of up- sets, and the Bears perhaps had the most unexpected one. Baylor was the lowest-seeded team to advance to the semi-finals after beating No. 1 Oklahoma with the only higher-seeded team to win in overtime. "We have to continue to work hard and push ourselves to the limit in the semi-final," Callahan said. "We've been working hard and pushing ourselves to the limit in the semi-final. We've been working hard and pushing ourselves to the limit in the semi-final.""This group of seniors is one of the smartest groups of young ladies," Mueller coach said. "They've been such a pleasure to coach. The whole group has been a blessing and pleasure to coach."
