Baylor student has minor reactions to the news that Baylor University Police Department (BUPD) will no longer offer nighttime campus escorts.

"The escort program is no longer in play," Mark Childers, interim director of Baylor's Department of Public Safety (DPS), said. BUPD has offered personal escorts in some form for over seven years, allowing students, faculty and staff to state their location and be picked up as an officer can arrive. Mark Childers, interim director of Baylor's Department of Public Safety (DPS), said BUPD has offered personal escorts in some form for over seven years, allowing students, faculty and staff to state their location and be picked up as an officer can arrive.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorts. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorts. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorts. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorts. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorts. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again.

"What we were seeing was a demand," Childers said. "We couldn't see ourselves going to the same place every day, during nighttime campus escorted service. If a student experiences a dangerous situation or has questions about the decision to stop offering escorts, BUPD has ended its current service due to a high volume of requests that cannot cause them to call us again. ...
Safety campaign capable of more

Taking a national fear and addressing it in such a way that safety for many adults has handled well through its Sic ‘Em for Safety campaign for National Preparedness Month. The instructor's example, as well as the training video released Thursday clearly had a lot of thought and work put into it. A discretionary announcement for possible triggers for the Baylor community on Wednesday was a good cautionary step to prepare viewers. The video itself effectively portrayed a shooting incident. Having real Baylor students, staff, and campus in the video made the scenario real for viewers. Many times, people are unlikely to pay attention to issues that seem irrelevant to them personally. For example, people rarely watch the safety flight videos or demonstrations. Showing the incident in a context viewers associate themselves with and the context’s reality and therefore importance. The three-word mantra “Sic ‘Em, Dudes!” was a helpful memory tool. In times of shock, such as an active shooting, it is these reminders that people will pay attention to. A controlled messaging would be harder to recall in the heat of a high danger situation. However, according to a poll conducted by your Lariat, a daily, about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.

“In Dilemma,” on Wednesday was a good cautionary step to grab viewers. In “Defend,” suggestions on what items to slow down the action would lessen the suspense of the drama but ultimately provide more insight for viewers. There are constraints to any video, especially with time because of the pressure to retain the audience attention. However, the video could have had far more detail shown to diverted. A big part of human attraction is rooted economic. Now it’s hard not to talk about political climate. Now how this applied in today's relationship. I wondered and it’s hard not to talk about politics when dating. We want to know right away how our partner looks at climate change and gun rights. This generation of young adults is arguably the most politically active and as a result, this country has never been more divided. Our nation’s biggest divide is not due to religion or race. It’s now political affiliation. When you’re looking for someone to date or to share a certain set of values and beliefs with you, you can chalk that up to rampant bias news and political affiliation. How this applied in today’s relationships. I wondered how this is affecting the dating lives of young adults. I was raised to lead to healthier family lives. I wonder if we all have the same moral values and the same families. It’s more difficult to look at anyone who doesn’t share the same moral values and beliefs. Instead, her screen time can be handled carefully, and I personally don’t think you really need to watch any video, especially with time because of the pressure to retain the audience attention. However, the video could have had far more detail shown to diverted. A big part of human attraction is rooted in past political identities because they are so pretty undesirable. It’s more difficult to look at anyone who doesn’t share the same moral values and beliefs.

“Sic ‘Em, Dudes!” was a helpful memory tool. In times of shock, such as an active shooting, it is these reminders that people will pay attention to. A controlled messaging would be harder to recall in the heat of a high danger situation. However, according to a poll conducted by your Lariat, a daily, about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.

Taking a national fear and addressing it in such a way that safety for many adults has handled well through its Sic ‘Em for Safety campaign for National Preparedness Month. The instructor's example, as well as the training video released Thursday clearly had a lot of thought and work put into it. A discretionary announcement for possible triggers for the Baylor community on Wednesday was a good cautionary step to prepare viewers. The video itself effectively portrayed a shooting incident. Having real Baylor students, staff, and campus in the video made the scenario real for viewers. Many times, people are unlikely to pay attention to issues that seem irrelevant to them personally. For example, people rarely watch the safety flight videos or demonstrations. Showing the incident in a context viewers associate themselves with and the context’s reality and therefore importance. The three-word mantra “Sic ‘Em, Dudes!” was a helpful memory tool. In times of shock, such as an active shooting, it is these reminders that people will pay attention to. A controlled messaging would be harder to recall in the heat of a high danger situation. However, according to a poll conducted by your Lariat, a daily, about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.

In 2015, about 80% of men and about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.

Young adults have been more active in their lives that are so pretty undesirable. It’s more difficult to look at anyone who doesn’t share the same moral values and beliefs. Instead, her screen time can be handled carefully, and I personally don’t think you really need to watch any video, especially with time because of the pressure to retain the audience attention. However, the video could have had far more detail shown to diverted. A big part of human attraction is rooted in past political identities because they are so pretty undesirable. It’s more difficult to look at anyone who doesn’t share the same moral values and beliefs. Instead, her screen time can be handled carefully, and I personally don’t think you really need to watch any video, especially with time because of the pressure to retain the audience attention. However, the video could have had far more detail shown to diverted. A big part of human attraction is rooted in past political identities because they are so pretty undesirable. It’s more difficult to look at anyone who doesn’t share the same moral values and beliefs.

Taking a national fear and addressing it in such a way that safety for many adults has handled well through its Sic ‘Em for Safety campaign for National Preparedness Month. The instructor's example, as well as the training video released Thursday clearly had a lot of thought and work put into it. A discretionary announcement for possible triggers for the Baylor community on Wednesday was a good cautionary step to prepare viewers. The video itself effectively portrayed a shooting incident. Having real Baylor students, staff, and campus in the video made the scenario real for viewers. Many times, people are unlikely to pay attention to issues that seem irrelevant to them personally. For example, people rarely watch the safety flight videos or demonstrations. Showing the incident in a context viewers associate themselves with and the context’s reality and therefore importance. The three-word mantra “Sic ‘Em, Dudes!” was a helpful memory tool. In times of shock, such as an active shooting, it is these reminders that people will pay attention to. A controlled messaging would be harder to recall in the heat of a high danger situation. However, according to a poll conducted by your Lariat, a daily, about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.

In 2015, about 80% of men and about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.

Taking a national fear and addressing it in such a way that safety for many adults has handled well through its Sic ‘Em for Safety campaign for National Preparedness Month. The instructor's example, as well as the training video released Thursday clearly had a lot of thought and work put into it. A discretionary announcement for possible triggers for the Baylor community on Wednesday was a good cautionary step to prepare viewers. The video itself effectively portrayed a shooting incident. Having real Baylor students, staff, and campus in the video made the scenario real for viewers. Many times, people are unlikely to pay attention to issues that seem irrelevant to them personally. For example, people rarely watch the safety flight videos or demonstrations. Showing the incident in a context viewers associate themselves with and the context’s reality and therefore importance. The three-word mantra “Sic ‘Em, Dudes!” was a helpful memory tool. In times of shock, such as an active shooting, it is these reminders that people will pay attention to. A controlled messaging would be harder to recall in the heat of a high danger situation. However, according to a poll conducted by your Lariat, a daily, about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.

In 2015, about 80% of men and about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.

You can chalk that up to rampant bias news and political affiliation.

In 2015, about 80% of men and about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.

In 2015, about 80% of men and about 70% of women said they would be willing to watch and judge their peers. The video showed students from around the Baylor community being led into classrooms, but this will not always be possible when classrooms are and gun rights.
STUDY IN SPAIN
Find out more at the Center for Global Engagement
studyabroad@baylor.edu

Avenida del Valle, 34 /// Madrid, Spain 28003 /// Phone +34 91 554 5858 /// admissions-madrid@slu.edu

http://www.slu.edu/madrid

*Ask us about our programs for competitive athletes public schools. And it was really weird cause she didn’t feel like she could go to her parents for help, And she had a lot of program resources that she could have turned to instead....
Sometimes truth is scarier than fiction

MADALYN WATSON

First Managing Editor

Did your grade school history teacher sound a bit like white noise or the adults in Charlie Brown's world? Or are you perhaps studying some extremely specific era of history? Whatever part of the spectrum you are on, these four history podcasts will give you a unique perspective on the world. These podcasts promise historical events and figures like never before.

Behind the Bastards

With his experience as a war zone reporter, the author of A (Brief) History of How Real Bad Behavior Built Civilization and an editor for the online comedy website Cracked, Robert Evans has become a dedicated and talented podcaster. So no surprise when Evans moved on to podcasts as a new storytelling medium.

Working with Stuff Media (“HitchhikeWork,”) one of the world’s leading free publicity podcast platforms, “Behind the Bastards” started. Each episode, Evans drives deep into the history and lore of the lives of the most evil people in history, alongside a new regular guest star ranging from comedians to other podcasters.

“Behind the Bastards” covers some of the most well-known villains referenced in works, while other episodes focus on lesser-known figures in history, like George Tyler, the “Woman Who Invented Adoption (By Stealing Children).” The podcast is the perfect place for those who are interested in understanding the dark side of human history.

You Must Remember This

“Behind the Bastards”’ creator, Robert Evans, wanted to create a podcast so there would be more options for her fellow podcast fans, the kind of subjects that he would get lost in on the couch, that would suck him in and leave him all the time.

Andrei Chikatilo, the Butcher of Rostov, who wanted to change parts of history or revealing that he was the real mastermind behind certain events. To finish this list up on a lighter note, let’s speak of his fans. They call themselves the cult of the curious and his subscribers are called the kind of subjects that he would get lost in on the couch, that would suck him in and leave him all the time.

Whatever medium audiences choose to enjoy it, they will always find something that interests them.

Lore

As the winner of the iTunes “Best of 2015” and “Best of 2016” and winner of “Best History Podcast 2016” by The Academy of Podcankers, “Lore” must be included on this list. The podcast examines a different historical tale that allows listeners a peak of the darker, more twisted side of history in each episode.

Each episode tells and describes are not only engaging, but listeners are also shown some of the darker things that they are going to hear. By adding this extra element of mystery, fans are unable to cherry pick episodes that stand out to them, making the thrill of not knowing what is behind the door to choose even more delightful.

The podcasts’ immense success also led to the creation of the American horror anthology television series. "Timesuck" and was a producer for several television shows alongside executive producers from both "The Walking Dead" and "The X-Files, " the TV show has now two seasons that fans can only access through Amazon Prime.

Whatever medium audiences choose to enjoy the first, they are sure to become engrossed in the dark, disturbing world of “Lore.” The tagline of the show is, “Sometimes truth is more frightening than fiction.”

Timesuck

To finish this list up on a lighter note, let’s turn to one of the creators of the history podcast “Timesuck,” Dan Cummins, for a few words from his heart.

As a stand-up comedian, Cummins’s personas include and commentary on the subjects that unfortunately popularize Earth landed him spotlight appearances on “Gristle” and “The Late Late Show.” He also worked in reality TV and was a producer for several television shows before deciding the concept for “Timesuck.”

He recalls, inepptic podcast della about the kinds of subjects that he would get lost in on the couch, that would suck him in and leave him all the time.

From historical events and mysteries to conjuring stories of paranormal encounters, Cummins will talk about almost anything on his podcast, as long as it interests his fans.

Speaking of his fans, he says, “People call themselves the cult of the curious and his subscribers are called the kind of subjects that he would get lost in on the couch, that would suck him in and leave him all the time.”

Whatever medium audiences choose to enjoy it, they will always find something that interests them.

Lore

As the winner of the iTunes “Best of 2015” and “Best of 2016” and winner of “Best History Podcast 2016” by The Academy of Podcankers, “Lore” must be included on this list. The podcast examines a different historical tale that allows listeners a peak of the darker, more twisted side of history in each episode.

Each episode tells and describes are not only engaging, but listeners are also shown some of the darker things that they are going to hear. By adding this extra element of mystery, fans are unable to cherry pick episodes that stand out to them, making the thrill of not knowing what is behind the door to choose even more delightful.

The podcasts’ immense success also led to the creation of the American horror anthology television series. "Timesuck" and was a producer for several television shows alongside executive producers from both "The Walking Dead" and "The X-Files, " the TV show has now two seasons that fans can only access through Amazon Prime.

Whatever medium audiences choose to enjoy the first, they are sure to become engrossed in the dark, disturbing world of “Lore.” The tagline of the show is, “Sometimes truth is more frightening than fiction.”

Timesuck

To finish this list up on a lighter note, let’s turn to one of the creators of the history podcast “Timesuck,” Dan Cummins, for a few words from his heart.

As a stand-up comedian, Cummins’s personas include and commentary on the subjects that unfortunately popularize Earth landed him spotlight appearances on “Gristle” and “The Late Late Show.” He also worked in reality TV and was a producer for several television shows before deciding the concept for “Timesuck.”

He recalls, inepptic podcast della about the kinds of subjects that he would get lost in on the couch, that would suck him in and leave him all the time.

From historical events and mysteries to conjuring stories of paranormal encounters, Cummins will talk about almost anything on his podcast, as long as it interests his fans.

Speaking of his fans, he says, “People call themselves the cult of the curious and his subscribers are called the kind of subjects that he would get lost in on the couch, that would suck him in and leave him all the time.”

Whatever medium audiences choose to enjoy it, they will always find something that interests them.

Timesuck

To finish this list up on a lighter note, let’s turn to one of the creators of the history podcast “Timesuck,” Dan Cummins, for a few words from his heart.

As a stand-up comedian, Cummins’s personas include and commentary on the subjects that unfortunately popularize Earth landed him spotlight appearances on “Gristle” and “The Late Late Show.” He also worked in reality TV and was a producer for several television shows before deciding the concept for “Timesuck.”

He recalls, inepptic podcast della about the kinds of subjects that he would get lost in on the couch, that would suck him in and leave him all the time.

From historical events and mysteries to conjuring stories of paranormal encounters, Cummins will talk about almost anything on his podcast, as long as it interests his fans.

Speaking of his fans, he says, “People call themselves the cult of the curious and his subscribers are called the kind of subjects that he would get lost in on the couch, that would suck him in and leave him all the time.”

Whatever medium audiences choose to enjoy it, they will always find something that interests them.
Local events for Wacoans and students

Waco Restaurant Week
Sept. 6-14

SEPT. 6
Kick-Off Party at Brotherwell Brewing | 5 p.m. - 11 p.m.
Live music and fresh tacos from Quetzal Co.

Frosty Friday with Dr Pepper Museum | 5:30 - 7:30 p.m.
This event is ’50s themed and will include a barbershop quartet and a Soda Jerk Relay Race.

SEPT. 7
The Glass Phoenix + Quetzal Co. Taco Pop-up | 6 p.m. - 10 p.m.
The Waco Food Hub + Vendor Pop-up | 5 p.m. - 8 p.m.
Join The Waco Food Hub and local vendors on Sept. 7 & 14.

SEPT. 8
Lost in Waco + Revival Eastside Eatery: Street-Level Culture | 8 - 10 p.m.
Hosting a meet-up and panel discussion with local creatives and collectors.

SEPT. 10
Dr Pepper (Happy) Hour at Balcones | 5 - 7 p.m.

SEPT. 12
Dancing Bear Charcuterie Launch | 4 - 10 p.m.
Chef Bailey will present a board of cured meats, cheeses, pickles, jam and toast.

SEPT. 13
WayLimited Vintage Clothes + Quetzal Co. Taco Pop-up | 3 - 7 p.m.
UnSHAKEable Milkshakes presents Freaky Friday 13th | 5 - 7 p.m.
Join the milkshake party at Lovely Enterprises.

SEPT. 14
From Bean To Brew with Apex Coffee Roasters | 11 a.m. - 1 p.m.
General admission $15 per person
Balcones Distilling BourbonFest | 4-8pm. enjoy a tour of Balcones’ distillery and live music. General admission pre-sale tickets are $5.

For more specific times and locations, go to wacorestaurantweek.com

All menu items sold under the special Waco Restaurant Week menu will donate 10% to Caritas, a local charity that fights to end hunger and poverty in Waco.

PREMIER CROSSWORD/ By Frank A. Longo

1. 5 items, back to back (8)
2. Study of Vision (8)
3. One who’s on drugs (5)
4. Actor less than a cent (8)
5. Sugar (5)
6. Small gymnastic horse (8)
7. Rapper, Whitney of “Scream” (8)
8. 1960s songbird (8)
9. Nightingale, in song (8)
10. Rosemary (8)
11. Going back to school (8)
12. Graduation-stage songs (8)
13. Pining for the Fifties (8)
14. To change it (8)
15. Death and divorce (8)
16. To go in (8)
17. End of the world (8)
18. In the round (8)
19. In the air (8)
20. At the airport (8)
21. Just the tip (8)
22. On the rise (8)
23. On top of the world (8)
24. On the edge (8)
25. On the floor (8)
26. On the sky (8)
27. On the floor (8)
28. On the floor (8)
29. On the floor (8)
30. On the floor (8)

VISITING THE ISLE OF WIT

1. 101 Dalmatians, starring Glenn Close (9)
2. College near Fort Bend, Texas (10)
3. “The Haunted Mansion” (10)
4. “It’s a Small World” (10)
5. Long Island (10)
6. 1001 (10)
7. 100 Proof (10)
8. 1001 (10)
9. 100 Proof (10)
10. 1001 (10)
11. 100 Proof (10)
12. 1001 (10)
13. 100 Proof (10)
14. 1001 (10)
15. 100 Proof (10)
16. 1001 (10)
17. 100 Proof (10)
18. 1001 (10)
19. 100 Proof (10)
20. 1001 (10)
21. 100 Proof (10)
22. 1001 (10)
23. 100 Proof (10)
24. 1001 (10)
25. 100 Proof (10)
26. 1001 (10)
27. 100 Proof (10)
28. 1001 (10)
29. 100 Proof (10)
30. 1001 (10)

The Amazing Spiderman

"How much for his ticket if he’ll just be sleeping through the whole movie?"
Boland, Baylor tennis await freshman recruit’s decision

BY DJ RAMIREZ
Sports Editor

Baylor men’s head coach Brian Boland walked inside the Hilton Americas-Hilton downtown Monday morning with a cup of cofee to his hand, despite the fact that it was Labor Day, after having returned from New York City.

The second-year head coach had spent the last week watching his top recruit compete in one of the biggest tournaments of the sport of tennis has to offer: the US Open. Eighteen-year-old Jenson Brooksby, who signed a letter of intent to enter the collegiate tennis for Baylor, made an impressive worldwide splash when he became the first American to qualify for the men’s singles main draw following a four-set victory over ATP veteran Tomas Berdych in the first round.

As Brooksby took the stage once again, the world was watching. His future tennis star at Baylor was watching. And so was his future coach.

In the eyes of Boland, Brooksby is the perfect addition to an already-talented squad. “I mean Jenson, in the amount of time that I’ve spent with him, and certainly I’ve spent a great deal of time watching him and being around him lately, he fits in perfectly,” Frantzen said. “He’s an incredible young man, really likable, a natural leader, somebody that has the discipline that we want to build this program around. For his age, he’s way beyond his years in terms of his professionalism and the way that he treats tennis.”

He got a lot of respect, not just from me, but from all of the teammates and coaches. I mean he would make our team way more competitive.

In his first year at Baylor, Brooksby is the perfect future coach.

Boland, however, is not worried about the uncertainty of Brooksby’s decision, noting that the incoming freshman understands what the collegiate game is about. "He knows the concept of team. He wants to be part of a team and he understands the pressures that come with that," Boland said. "So he'll come in with a little bit of a target on his back. But the great thing about Jenson is he embraces that. He wants that pressure." And the team is excited for Brooksby to join as well, according to senior Constantin Frantzen.

"He would bring a lot of potential, I would say, to the team. I mean he played an unbelievable tournament at the Open and it's just impressive how he did that," Frantzen said. "He got a lot of respect, not just from me but from all of the teammates and the coaches [...] I think he would bring a lot of competitiveness to our team."

Whether or not Brooksby becomes a Bear come January would not change the team's ultimate goal of reaching the national tournament at the end of the spring.

In his first year at Baylor, Boland led the Bears to a Big 12 championship title and an appearance in the NCAA quarterfinals. After winning eight championships in five years with the University of Virginia, the head coach is excited to grow the Baylor tennis program in not just becoming champions on the court, but "champions for life."

"I think this is what I believe we are here for," Boland said. "I mean Jenson, in the second round against No. 17 Nikoloz Basilashvili last Thursday. After his first-round win, the California native had been offered a prize of $143,900, and if he were to defeat his opponent on Thursday, he would have added much more. However, meant forfeiting on Thursday, he would have an opportunity to compete with the İslands to defeat his opponent on Thursday. After his first-round win, the California native had been offered a prize of $143,900, and if he were to defeat his opponent on Thursday, he would have added much more. However, On Thursday, he would have added much more. However, meant forfeiting on Thursday, he would have added much more. However, On Thursday, he would have added much more. However, meant forfeiting on Thursday, he would have added much more. However, on Thursday, he would have added much more. However, meant forfeiting
Baylor golf to take on Gopher Invitational

MATTHEW SODERBERG
Contributor

On Sunday, Baylor golf faced off for the first time this year. The Bears traveled to the Gopher Invitational for their first tournament of the season.

The Bears made it a point to keep the momentum from the historic season this past summer.

"I think every single one of us is going to build on our summers we had, " co-captain Cooper Dossey said. "That's a big thing."

The Bears include sophomore quarterback Jon Copeland, who threw for 185 yards, completed 15 out of 30 passes and had one touchdown. The Roadrunners' frequent utilization of their tight ends will present a challenge to the Bears' defense.

"They present some unique challenges. I talked about the quarterback — so going back and studying them some more. They use two tight ends a lot," Rhule said. "At the end of the day they're a young, physical football team, so we are prepared. It's going to be the four-quarter game."

The Bears also have some breakout players who showed their toughness on Saturday against the Lumberjacks. The main player was quarterback Charlie Brewer, who had 199 passing yards, a 68% completion rate and three touchdowns. Sophomore receiver R.J. Sneed stepped up on Saturday as well. He finished 57 yards on five receptions, scoring two touchdowns.

Kober will take on the UTSA Roadrunners 3:30 p.m. Saturday at McLane Stadium.

---

Getting your Baylor news has never been easier.

LARIAT NEWS

- LARIAT WEBSITE
  - www.lariat.com
- LARIAT RADIO
  - lariatradio.com
- LARIAT TV NEWS
  - lariattv.com
- LARIAT APP
  - Get the app

MORNING BUZZ E-NEWS
Delivered to your inbox every morning!

LARIAT SOCIAL
Follow us on Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and YouTube!

---

Matt Schuster | Multimedia Editor

---

Baylor to face UTSA on Saturday

Baylor Lariat

On Saturday, Baylor will take on the UTSA Roadrunners at 3:30 p.m. at McLane Stadium.

Junior running back Treton Elsner was also a key player with 52 yards and two touchdowns. Only carrying the ball twice, Elsner scored on both attempts.

Sophomore receiver R.J. Sneed stepped up on Saturday as well. He finished 57 yards on five receptions, scoring two touchdowns.

---

PASS THE POWER

Junior quarterback Charlie Brewer looks for a receiver to contribute to his game total of 199 passing yards during Saturday’s victory against UTSA.

---

BU hopes to give UTSA a road-run for its money

AHFAAZ MERCHANT

Baylor football prepares for the University of Texas at San Antonio Roadrunners at home on Saturday by looking to build off of a successful 56-17 opening victory over Stephen F. Austin last weekend.

This is the third time the Bears will face the Roadrunners in the past three years, dropping the first matchup 17-16 at McLane Stadium in 2017, but defeating UTSA 56-17 in the Alamodome last season.

With the heat forecast to be over 100 degrees, head coach Matt Rhule will have to take some precautions to ensure the safety of the players and staff.

"We practice in the afternoon most days," Rhule said. "We make sure the guys get hydrated and do a good job of having the things on the sidelines, but at the end of the day, the game comes down to blocking and tackling."

The Roadrunners are coming off a 56-17 opening victory over Stephen F. Austin senior Cooper Dossey

"I don't think many or five teams in the country had a more impressive-type summer," McGraw said. "If you can turn that into a good college golf season, we've got something."

Baylor is looking to get off to a better start this year after a slow one last season where they finished 10th out of 14 at the Fighting Hins Invitational. According to Dossey, the Bears are focused on setting the tone for the year right from the start of the tournament.

"That's our main focus right now," Dossey said. "I think we want to start fast."

Kober echoed that sentiment.

"I think we want to win a couple times this fall," Kober said. "That's our big thing."

The challenge is upcoming. According to McGraw, the Bears are looking at one of the hardest schedules in the country.

Along with Baylor, Windsong Farm GC will have a second Big 12 school taking on the greens in Oklahoma University, which McGraw praised.

"They're a very good team — well-coached," McGraw said. "This tournament is a really solid challenge for us."

Along with Kober and Dossey, Travis McGraw and redshirt sophomore Keeler will be competing at the invitational Sunday and Monday at Windsong Farm GC, in Independence, Miss.