LEADERSHIP Dr. Linda Livingstone has been President of Baylor University since 2017, becoming the University’s first female president. Before her arrival at Baylor, she served as a tenured faculty member at the University. She then went on to serve in positions at The George Washington University, Washington Business, and Pepperdine University’s Graziadio School of Business and Management, before her return in Austin.

Livingstone’s contract extended through 2024

TYLER BUI Head Staff Writer

Dr. Mia Moody-Ramirez, professor and department chair of journalism, public relations and new media department, received the 2019 Newsmaker of the Year award during the second annual Newsmakers Luncheon, held Monday in the Drawing Room. The luncheon recognized the first senior award for students, alongside her other commitments.

She has done extensive research on the media framing of issues including race, gender, women and sex, other current topics. Moody-Ramirez is a nationally recognized expert in these issues and has led her work, broadly over 400 million people.

The process of selecting students begins in May, as several rounds of review and interviews occur.

The process of selecting students begins in May, as several rounds of review and interviews occur.

Newsmaker of the year award presented to Journalism chair

TYLER BUI Head Staff Writer

Dr. Mia Moody-Ramirez, professor and department chair of journalism, public relations and new media department, received the 2019 Newsmaker of the Year award during the second annual Newsmakers Luncheon, held Monday in the Drawing Room. The luncheon recognized the first senior award for students, alongside her other commitments.

She has done extensive research on the media framing of issues including race, gender, women and sex, other current topics. Moody-Ramirez is a nationally recognized expert in these issues and has led her work, broadly over 400 million people.

The process of selecting students begins in May, as several rounds of review and interviews occur.

The process of selecting students begins in May, as several rounds of review and interviews occur.

Newsmaker of the year award presented to Journalism chair

TYLER BUI Head Staff Writer

Dr. Mia Moody-Ramirez, professor and department chair of journalism, public relations and new media department, received the 2019 Newsmaker of the Year award during the second annual Newsmakers Luncheon, held Monday in the Drawing Room. The luncheon recognized the first senior award for students, alongside her other commitments.

She has done extensive research on the media framing of issues including race, gender, women and sex, other current topics. Moody-Ramirez is a nationally recognized expert in these issues and has led her work, broadly over 400 million people.

The process of selecting students begins in May, as several rounds of review and interviews occur.

The process of selecting students begins in May, as several rounds of review and interviews occur.
Forget ‘likes’ on social media

MATT MUIR | STAFF WRITER

Other Jennifer Times ended a routine traffic stop by shooting the multiple times in front of her friend’s and 4-year-old daughter. Culp had just been licensed to carry. Yance’s defense claimed that Yance’s duty to police. In actuality, what would this look like day to day? It seems to run out quickly. Hot vegetables would be nice; they also seem to run out quickly. A weekly, if not daily, basis is long lines at the dining halls. I understand Baylor social media was created for connection, and the world should return to its original purpose.

COMMUNITY

Recommendations to Baylor dining halls

MEREDITH HOWARD | Staff Writer

It’s饭时间—no college dining halls will live up for your years at Baylor. But there are still some things that could be improved about Baylor’s dining halls.

Availability

One option to communicate with police is to make the world more aware of a longer period. Like it or not, Penland’s late-night service is operational. Penland’s late-night service does not provide continuous service from 7:30 to 9 p.m. (or even later) with meal options for special diets. Options for special diets Starting with a smile, let’s get into it. I am on social media every day. I experience a variety of emotions on social media. I am not happy to be awake. I can’t speak for people with allergies, but this is a vegetarian. I know what I’m eating to avoid something unexpected when it comes to personnel, Yance was given a ticket. One thing that seems to run out quickly.

Heathcare options

Now I am not expecting Baylor to make the world more aware of a longer period. I am not happy to be awake. I can’t speak for people with allergies, but this is a vegetarian. I know what I’m eating to avoid something unexpected when it comes to personnel, Yance was given a ticket. One thing that seems to run out quickly.

Overall, improvements could be made to the cafeteria, but we would still be grateful to all of Baylor dining’s staff and faculty. We also can’t forget about our favorite experiences bonding with our friends. So, it is an improvement of what we miss from graduation.

Meredith Howland is a journalism major from Waco.
This week’s theme of global engagement will definitely inform my area of study and hopefully influence my studies as we study Christianity and its engagement with people across the world,” Stroope said.

The goal of the Fellowship program is to create a community of students who are also looking to be pushed to the limit, helping each other along the way. “I've grown so much from Fellows,“ Cunningham said. “I learned how to manage my time wisely, stay involved in extracurricular activities and think more clearly about how I can build a future for myself.”

“Many different departments, such as science, engineering and business, have reported that students who participate in these programs have gained valuable skills and an understanding of the global community,” said Hogue.

“From the perspective of the student employment office, the student fellowships and graduate assistantships, simply to pick up a regular paycheck. The reason is to further their careers, to gain work experience and to benefit,“ Stroope said.

Many Baylor students choose to work part-time jobs in college, whether their major is or are further their career, to improve their time management skills or simply to pick up a regular paycheck, “said their Student Employment Office. Students can find their offices in Clifton Robinson Tower in Suite 200.

FRIENDLY FELLOWS
Baylor's Academy for Teaching and Learning was founded in 2001, and honors professors yearly.

News from 3 Page

The purpose is to shed light on how people from unrepresented groups are represented by the media, with the hopes that the media will try to incorporate some of these stories into their job, but not necessarily women and people of color,” Moody-Ramirez said. “The most rewarding thing this award actually means to us is the people who can use in their everyday lives; the topics that I write about are very real.

Moody-Ramirez said it is important to share research with the media to better educate the public and to help promote change in society.

“The way I have experienced her is that there’s an authenticity to the way she cares for students, “Burchett said. “She is a genuine person. I’ve always deeply appreciated that about her. “

“Baylor Business Fellows is for students who have goals beyond what a four-year degree program provides,” Cunningham said. “You get to join a group of students who are also looking to be pushed to the limit, helping each other along the way.”

Cunningham said that this rigorous program is no light challenge; through hard work and dedication, he said that students are able to

“I've gotten to know Baylor a lot better. I've gotten to go to events that I probably wouldn't have normally gotten to, which has been really interesting. And I've gotten to work with a lot of different students and alumni, and get to see both sides of how operations work, which has been a great new perspective,” Frank said.

Cunningham said that the dinner serves as a way to begin the homecoming celebrations with students.

“From the perspective of the student employment office, the student fellowships and graduate assistantships, simply to pick up a regular paycheck. The reason is to further their careers, to gain work experience and to benefit,“ Stroope said.

Many different departments, such as science, engineering and business, have reported that students who participate in these programs have gained valuable skills and an understanding of the global community,” said Hogue.

“From the perspective of the student employment office, the student fellowships and graduate assistantships, simply to pick up a regular paycheck. The reason is to further their careers, to gain work experience and to benefit,“ Stroope said.

Many Baylor students choose to work part-time jobs in college, whether their major is or are further their career, to improve their time management skills or simply to pick up a regular paycheck, “said their Student Employment Office. Students can find their offices in Clifton Robinson Tower in Suite 200.

FRIENDLY FELLOWS
Baylor's Academy for Teaching and Learning was founded in 2001, and honors professors yearly.

News from 3 Page

The purpose is to shed light on how people from unrepresented groups are represented by the media, with the hopes that the media will try to incorporate some of these stories into their job, but not necessarily women and people of color,” Moody-Ramirez said. “The most rewarding thing this award actually means to us is the people who can use in their everyday lives; the topics that I write about are very real.

Moody-Ramirez said it is important to share research with the media to better educate the public and to help promote change in society.

“The way I have experienced her is that there’s an authenticity to the way she cares for students, “Burchett said. “She is a genuine person. I’ve always deeply appreciated that about her. “

“Baylor Business Fellows is for students who have goals beyond what a four-year degree program provides,” Cunningham said. “You get to join a group of students who are also looking to be pushed to the limit, helping each other along the way.”

Cunningham said that this rigorous program is no light challenge; through hard work and dedication, he said that students are able to

“I've gotten to know Baylor a lot better. I've gotten to go to events that I probably wouldn't have normally gotten to, which has been really interesting. And I've gotten to work with a lot of different students and alumni, and get to see both sides of how operations work, which has been a great new perspective,” Frank said.

Cunningham said that the dinner serves as a way to begin the homecoming celebrations with students.

“From the perspective of the student employment office, the student fellowships and graduate assistantships, simply to pick up a regular paycheck. The reason is to further their careers, to gain work experience and to benefit,“ Stroope said.

Many Baylor students choose to work part-time jobs in college, whether their major is or are further their career, to improve their time management skills or simply to pick up a regular paycheck, “said their Student Employment Office. Students can find their offices in Clifton Robinson Tower in Suite 200.

FRIENDLY FELLOWS
Baylor's Academy for Teaching and Learning was founded in 2001, and honors professors yearly.

News from 3 Page

The purpose is to shed light on how people from unrepresented groups are represented by the media, with the hopes that the media will try to incorporate some of these stories into their job, but not necessarily women and people of color,” Moody-Ramirez said. “The most rewarding thing this award actually means to us is the people who can use in their everyday lives; the topics that I write about are very real.

Moody-Ramirez said it is important to share research with the media to better educate the public and to help promote change in society.

“The way I have experienced her is that there’s an authenticity to the way she cares for students, “Burchett said. “She is a genuine person. I’ve always deeply appreciated that about her. “

“Baylor Business Fellows is for students who have goals beyond what a four-year degree program provides,” Cunningham said. “You get to join a group of students who are also looking to be pushed to the limit, helping each other along the way.”

Cunningham said that this rigorous program is no light challenge; through hard work and dedication, he said that students are able to

“I've gotten to know Baylor a lot better. I've gotten to go to events that I probably wouldn't have normally gotten to, which has been really interesting. And I've gotten to work with a lot of different students and alumni, and get to see both sides of how operations work, which has been a great new perspective,” Frank said.

Cunningham said that the dinner serves as a way to begin the homecoming celebrations with students.

“From the perspective of the student employment office, the student fellowships and graduate assistantships, simply to pick up a regular paycheck. The reason is to further their careers, to gain work experience and to benefit,“ Stroope said.

Many Baylor students choose to work part-time jobs in college, whether their major is or are further their career, to improve their time management skills or simply to pick up a regular paycheck, “said their Student Employment Office. Students can find their offices in Clifton Robinson Tower in Suite 200.

FRIENDLY FELLOWS
Baylor's Academy for Teaching and Learning was founded in 2001, and honors professors yearly.
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 2019

ARTS & LIFE

How K.Flay got into music

by PRESTON GOSSETT
Arts & Life Editor

AUSTIN — Artist Kristen Flaherty, better known as K.Flay, had an interesting exposure to song writing — she got into an argument with someone who said she had no idea what she was talking about because she had never written a song.

“Well, I’ll write a song and then I’ll know what I’m talking about,” Flaherty said, hours before performing her first set of the festival. “And that is how I got into music.”

The creative process for writing songs is largely about creating a good space for it, Flaherty said. Illinois born, Flaherty talked about her creative space and what that means for her. If she’s able to create a space solely dedicated to creativity and immersing herself in it, it’s really easy to find ideas, either from her own head or from the minds of her friends. From a musical standpoint, she said that she typically starts with a chord progression or a basic structure, and she’ll either tap into a lyrical idea, or she’ll start it out and start over.

“I need to sort of compartmentalize a lot of things, but it’s really easy to be creative,” Flaherty said. “There’s a lot of ideas out in the world, and if I lock onto something that excites me, then the music and the lyrics kind of co-evolve.”

Practicing and rehearsing is one way K.Flay can guarantee that the nerves will go away. Practice with your band and experiment with your sound. It all helps to make you a better artist, she said. Alcohol doesn’t calm the nerves like she used to think. If anything, it made her feel less in control, and that’s not something she recommends.

“I used to think that drinking alcohol would make me less nervous,” Flaherty said. “Common misconception, I think actually. I’ve found that preparation makes me less nervous.”

Flaherty also has a weekly microcast, available exclusively on smart assistants like Alexa and Google Home. She said it’s this untapped new frontier and that no one is really making audios for these devices in people’s homes. Flaherty’s idea for her microcast — she lives this bizarre life in motion, getting to go to all of these strange places all the time.

“It’s called ‘What Am I Doing Here,’ which is a question I find myself asking frequently,” Flaherty said. “Every week I find something different — geographically or geographically — and talking about what that means and talking to people.”

Flaherty started out in the indie rap world and that’s where she learned to make music. She started experimenting with melodies, live instrumentation and guitars, and it was there that she discovered what she wanted to engage with in the rock space.

“Play as many shows as possible, and expose yourself as much live music as possible so you know how you want to be as a performer,” Flaherty said. “I’m living in the age where there’s so much internet music, so it’s important to be able to play live and on stage — kind of why I’ve been doing it.”

The world is chaotic and inundated, Flaherty said. Opportunities like music festivals, art galleries and all different types of spaces and sentiments are a good chance for some relief, she said.

“Enjoy the relief and engage with the release,” Flaherty said. “Just be self-conscious. And stay hydrated.”

K.Flay performed on the Vrbo stage late Friday afternoon, and she’ll take the same stage at the same time during Weekend Two of the festival.

Little Lookbook

ACL attendees bring their fashion A-game

by ALL PHOTOS BY SHAE KOHARSKI | Social Media Editor

ACL Eats brings local food to the festival. They had different options from Mexican, Mediterranean and Indian cuisine, as well as organic BBQ, popsicles and juice.

Artist Spotlight:

How K.Flay got into music

by PRESTON GOSSETT
Arts & Life Editor
Review: Joker is powerful portrayal of tragic origin story

MCKENZIE OVIATT  Reporter

In "The Joker," starring Joaquin Phoenix, the viewer watches behind-the-scenes information about the famous character's upbringing, learning how the movie will unfold. Here's what you need to know:

Before "The Joker" was created, viewers did not have a grasp of who the character truly was or where the narratives of Batman originally came from. Dark, grime pervades the movie, and the viewer is left wondering who they should ultimately feel sorry for.

Arthur Fleck, the movie's protagonist who ultimately becomes the Joker, makes the viewers question whether he should be shown empathy for attacking innocent people, or the director probes the question of whether he was truly a sick person.

"The Joker" portrays dark humor and the viewer is caught between wanting to empathize with Fleck's character and the feeling that the movie is about a dystopian society. The confusion of it all pervades the movie, engaging the viewer, causing them to insert themselves into the lives of each of the characters. Viewers may be shocked by the movie's action and will be witnessing the start of Gotham City’s most notorious enemy in the origin story.

Deep into the movie, Fleck’s mother’s background begins to unravel, showing how the storyline all started. She was working for Batman’s father, and the two adults long before they met. The confusion of it all from multiple perspectives can be viewed from different angles.

Fleck had been abused by his mother, however, as she showed immense gratitude and responsibility for his mother’s care in her old age, making him a character to sympathize with. Fleck’s mother is sick and in need of care, which the Joker provides her with. Only when Fleck learns through medical records of his mother’s treatment that she was a mental patient does he grow resentful towards her. The viewer realizes that Fleck had actually murdered people in cold blood until the viewer realizes that Fleck had actually murdered several people, which the viewer can easily conclude from Fleck’s mother’s truth about the affair.

The confusion of it all begins to unravel, showing the viewer on an emotional rollercoaster that continues back in order out of respect for his parents’ life work. The viewer is left stunned by what they just watched on screen and is left with several questions to consider:

Should the Joker have made the story about whether he could have been the one of the mother? And whose truth is correct? Fleck’s mother’s truth about the affair or in cold blood, mental condition or Batman’s father’s truth about his origin story? Are Batman and the Joker truly brothers or does the Joker’s family live in their own fantasy world?

"The Joker" portrays a dark fantasy world, leaving the viewer with several questions to consider.

Should the Joker have made the story about whether he could have been the one of the mother? And whose truth is correct? Fleck’s mother’s truth about the affair or in cold blood, mental condition or Batman’s father’s truth about his origin story? Are Batman and the Joker truly brothers or does the Joker’s family live in their own fantasy world?

"The Joker" portrays a dark fantasy world, leaving the viewer with several questions to consider.

Should the Joker have made the story about whether he could have been the one of the mother? And whose truth is correct? Fleck’s mother’s truth about the affair or in cold blood, mental condition or Batman’s father’s truth about his origin story? Are Batman and the Joker truly brothers or does the Joker’s family live in their own fantasy world?

"The Joker" portrays a dark fantasy world, leaving the viewer with several questions to consider.

Should the Joker have made the story about whether he could have been the one of the mother? And whose truth is correct? Fleck’s mother’s truth about the affair or in cold blood, mental condition or Batman’s father’s truth about his origin story? Are Batman and the Joker truly brothers or does the Joker’s family live in their own fantasy world?

"The Joker" portrays a dark fantasy world, leaving the viewer with several questions to consider.

Should the Joker have made the story about whether he could have been the one of the mother? And whose truth is correct? Fleck’s mother’s truth about the affair or in cold blood, mental condition or Batman’s father’s truth about his origin story? Are Batman and the Joker truly brothers or does the Joker’s family live in their own fantasy world?
BU defense shines against Wildcats

JESSICA HARKAY

Baylor's defense held Kansas State to only one touchdown in its 31-12 win in Manhattan, Kan., on Saturday after giving up 22 points to Iowa State in the fourth quarter two weeks ago, head coach Matt Rhule said. His defense and emphasis that it was important to play hard to the last second. And the Bears did just that.

Burch clicked his second consecutive complete game by setting the first back 4-12 down under Rhule. With six sacks, 13 tackles for a total loss of 40 yards and an interception, Burch held the defense was the highlight of the game. Yet, according to Rhule, it was nothing less than a team effort.

"The biggest thing on our defense line is the young guys," Rhule said. "Dominic DeFilippo and Na'Vion Zsuzasza, [Defensive] tackle Galen Hare and [Defensive] tackle Tucker Franklin back today. They're playing well enough that we don't have to play with the reserves anymore. We need three three. We know it was going to take a lot of people to play today against Kansas State, and those guys are just going to hang in on our other battle."

The next morning, Rhule's statement on the defensive line was even more evident, and it's something in the role of the Bears. The Bears lost by a fifth-year graduate student James Lynch, who carried a high-career day with three sacks for 11 yards, and his first career forced fumble.

Rhule noted the only player with a career day, as junior cornerback Grayland Arnold had his first interception of the year by using his first career sack.

The Bears tied their program record with six sacks and lead the Big 12, 18 on the season. Even though Rhule's team won the "turnover battle," Roy said he believes there is still room for improvement.

"It can be even more," Roy said. "We didn't play to our full potential, and people look at that as a good thing. We know we can put on the tape, so we just have to get that ready for next week.

Unfortunately, K-State was led by senior wide receiver Dathan Klokho, who brought in seven receptions for 69 yards. The receiver said it was difficult to gain any momentum after being unable to stay out in the red zone.

"I feel like negative yield just are just dwelling killers, and it's just hard to come back from that sometimes," Salmond said. "But you just get to bounce back and get on the next play. But it's tough obviously when you can't get the ball in the end zone when your defense is playing like they do." The Wildcats' defense was unable to keep up with the Bears as they only shut out K-State in the first quarter. As the game began to establish at the second half, the Bears' offense finished the afternoon with 194 yards on the ground along with 268 receiving for a total 462 yards of offense.

What looks to be the start of Baylor gaining momentum on both sides of the ball will be tested in their homecoming game this weekend against Texas Tech. The Bears have the opportunity to claim bowl eligibility with a win over the Red Raiders.

Baylor hosts Texas Tech for homecoming at 1 p.m. at McLane Stadium.

Ryan McGuire: Establishing culture through faith

MATTHEW SOBERDING

With his fourth year coach Mike McGuyre set Baylor volleyball up for its best chance at an NCAA Tournament berth, the Bears have raised 13 wins in a row to start the 2019 season. Now midway through the year, the Bears have proven how much of that success can be attributed to the players who make up the team.

"His attitude before the season was the same as any other season. We sit down, go over our goals and dreams. He goes over his goals and dreams and they are the exact same every single season. Whether the Big 12, the national championship, and play for something bigger than ourselves. With his senior middle blocker Shelly Stafford said.

The Bears started the season with five matches on the road, including three against ranked opponents. Then they came home for a five-match stint featuring talented teams like No. 17 Missouri and No. 13 Illini. Both McGuyre and Stafford came to Baylor the same year, and she had her daughter an expedition at 01 sitting the team up for success this season.

"He's scheduling stuff, a hard pressure shows his confidence in our team and our ability," Stafford said. "He's happy to be there because what better way to play a senior year than to have a pressure that's going to test us, to battle out in that as always we [...] as we've been ready for that, we're ready for ranked teams. We're ready for good competition. So I think it was nicely calculated on his part."

Before coming to Baylor, McGuyre already had his master's degree. He graduated from Bucknell University in 1998 and immediately began his coaching career there, posting a winning record in all three seasons.

McGuire then moved on to California Baptist, where he started with two losing seasons, followed by eight straight tournament appearances and two national championships at the NAIA level.

"Since coming to Baylor, I have just to have a losing record and has reached the program the last three years. Even with that success, his attitude hasn't changed, Junior outside hitter Savanna Penroe said.

"I feel like [his attitude] stays the same because we are not our goal, so there's no point in changing anything because we haven't accomplished anything yet," Penroe said.

Since McGuire came to the Bears, the culture he fostered has been the driving force of the team's success. Senior setter Hannah Lucken said their coach has been a unifying force because of his faith.

I think that desire to serve the Lord is super evident, and it's something in the role of the leader that he is in all of us that just super inspiring. ItBecause we choose whether we're unified, but that is a huge influence on us, which is why we're being so successful," Lucken said. "We're all really thankful for that.

The Bears are now No. 1 in the nation, but the vacuum hasn't changed the team's attitude, said Petrucci, and the team's demeanor is all thanks to McGuire's presence.

"Since he gets here he'always said that God is our head coach, and he was just gifted this opportunity to share God's love and knowledge through volleyball with us. I think he has truly embraced that, and it's just amazing, around that belief and principle," Stafford said.

But McGuyre isn't one to lecture on this, instead he's one to serve him, and it's cool to see how our coach embodies that so well," McGuire said. "This just like a disciples, and he doesn't do this to us constantly and years into us, which is just amazing [...] Today at practice, he read Scripture before we started white, and then we have the next play. But it's just hard to have that come back from that sometimes," Salmond said. "But you just get to bounce back and get on the next play. But it's tough obviously when you can't get the ball in the end zone when your defense is playing like they do."
Big 12 Shenanigans

MATTHEW SOODERBERG
Sports Writer

Well, the Big 12 went nuts. I’m not sure this conference makes any sense anymore. Texas and Oklahoma had early losses, Baylor and Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

To the Jeggersmen

Let me first admit my bias. I’ve always been one of the few coaches in the country I would eat grass for that man any day. So when his Kansas Jayhawks scored first against the Sooners, I got excited. Oklahoma ended up winning the game 42-36, but they showed some glaring weaknesses.

For the first time this season, Heisman candidate and quarterback Kyler Murray was held under 300 yards. Now he still had four touchdowns, but at least he’s human. Wide receiver Cordarrelle Patterson had to set for just two catches for 25 yards. And considering earlier this season Murray’s Texas scored first against the Sooners, I got excited. Oklahoma ended up winning the game 42-36, but they showed some glaring weaknesses.

Meanwhile, UT faced a tougher test far from home at West Virginia. The Longhorns escaped with a 42-31 win, but not before trailing by a touchdown late in the fourth quarter and then Brewer went down with a late injury to junior quarterback Charlie Brewer. The Bears join the Sooners as the only Big 12 squads still without a loss, but after two straight losses to Iowa State this past week. Anyway, Cyclone quarterback Brock Purdy was impressive (424 yards, four touchdowns), Tech’s Jett Duffey. And while Duffey’s play was impressive, Tech’s backup quarterback, but back-up Gerry Bohanon took four touchdowns in a 49-24 victory. The Longhorns were able to take back the game, however, as Mountaineer quarterback Austin Kendall gave the game away with four interceptions. When the Longhorns face a Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

The Middle Tier

No. 23 Baylor remains undefeated. The Bears took care of business at Kansas State, 31-12, even with a late injury to junior quarterback Charlie Brewer. The Big 12 went nuts. I’m not sure this conference makes any sense anymore. Texas and Oklahoma had early losses, Baylor and Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

Well, the Big 12 went nuts. I’m not sure this conference makes any sense anymore. Texas and Oklahoma had early losses, Baylor and Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

The Bears join the Sooners as the only Big 12 squads still without a loss, but after two straight losses to Iowa State this past week. Anyway, Cyclone quarterback Brock Purdy was impressive (424 yards, four touchdowns), Tech’s Jett Duffey. And while Duffey’s play was impressive, Tech’s backup quarterback, but back-up Gerry Bohanon took four touchdowns in a 49-24 victory. The Longhorns were able to take back the game, however, as Mountaineer quarterback Austin Kendall gave the game away with four interceptions. When the Longhorns face a Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

The Middle Tier

No. 23 Baylor remains undefeated. The Bears took care of business at Kansas State, 31-12, even with a late injury to junior quarterback Charlie Brewer. The Big 12 went nuts. I’m not sure this conference makes any sense anymore. Texas and Oklahoma had early losses, Baylor and Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

Well, the Big 12 went nuts. I’m not sure this conference makes any sense anymore. Texas and Oklahoma had early losses, Baylor and Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

The Bears join the Sooners as the only Big 12 squads still without a loss, but after two straight losses to Iowa State this past week. Anyway, Cyclone quarterback Brock Purdy was impressive (424 yards, four touchdowns), Tech’s Jett Duffey. And while Duffey’s play was impressive, Tech’s backup quarterback, but back-up Gerry Bohanon took four touchdowns in a 49-24 victory. The Longhorns were able to take back the game, however, as Mountaineer quarterback Austin Kendall gave the game away with four interceptions. When the Longhorns face a Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

The Middle Tier

No. 23 Baylor remains undefeated. The Bears took care of business at Kansas State, 31-12, even with a late injury to junior quarterback Charlie Brewer. The Big 12 went nuts. I’m not sure this conference makes any sense anymore. Texas and Oklahoma had early losses, Baylor and Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

Well, the Big 12 went nuts. I’m not sure this conference makes any sense anymore. Texas and Oklahoma had early losses, Baylor and Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

The Bears join the Sooners as the only Big 12 squads still without a loss, but after two straight losses to Iowa State this past week. Anyway, Cyclone quarterback Brock Purdy was impressive (424 yards, four touchdowns), Tech’s Jett Duffey. And while Duffey’s play was impressive, Tech’s backup quarterback, but back-up Gerry Bohanon took four touchdowns in a 49-24 victory. The Longhorns were able to take back the game, however, as Mountaineer quarterback Austin Kendall gave the game away with four interceptions. When the Longhorns face a Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

The Middle Tier

No. 23 Baylor remains undefeated. The Bears took care of business at Kansas State, 31-12, even with a late injury to junior quarterback Charlie Brewer. The Big 12 went nuts. I’m not sure this conference makes any sense anymore. Texas and Oklahoma had early losses, Baylor and Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

Well, the Big 12 went nuts. I’m not sure this conference makes any sense anymore. Texas and Oklahoma had early losses, Baylor and Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.

The Bears join the Sooners as the only Big 12 squads still without a loss, but after two straight losses to Iowa State this past week. Anyway, Cyclone quarterback Brock Purdy was impressive (424 yards, four touchdowns), Tech’s Jett Duffey. And while Duffey’s play was impressive, Tech’s backup quarterback, but back-up Gerry Bohanon took four touchdowns in a 49-24 victory. The Longhorns were able to take back the game, however, as Mountaineer quarterback Austin Kendall gave the game away with four interceptions. When the Longhorns face a Texas Tech pulled off upsets and Iowa State batted up a TCU team that’s still receiving votes for some reason.