Women’s exit of IT studied at Baylor

Women working in information technology still represent a minority, but do have opportunities to expand due to today’s tech-savvy culture, according to one Baylor professor’s study.

Dr. Glenn Riemenschneider, an associate dean for research and faculty development, said a current study focusing on factors that have caused an “ Exodus” of women from the IT field and possible ways to reverse it. Factors in the study include social factors and the work-family conflict.

“With people who have dual-career marriages, the fact that you can end up with a child who’s sick or has to go to the doctor, well, when that turns is 43,” Riemenschneider said. “With both parents career oriented, allocating family responsibilities can be a challenge.”

Traditional society has possessed a perception of women being the primary caregivers of children. The primary method of either career ambitions or placement. However, with the advancement of technology, women can still be as accomplishable as both work and family units Riemenschneider said. “How can you run a laptop at home,” she said. “We have the technology where we can take a laptop and sit or child’s school practice and watch something on the computer.”

Factors that have also discussed by women from joining or staying because a mentor may need to exist. The study focuses on the importance of a mentor in the career of their knowledge. While one metro study found that women are likely to have a mentor in their files, women are important to advancement as their career knowledge. While a mentor can aid in one’s career by giving advice and support, men are less likely to have a mentor in their files, according to the study. The reason of the influence with respect to a woman, that wants that type of mentor may need to seek one out from a mentor from another region,” she said “the mentorship is in the mentorship’s friend.”

In 2012, 12.6% of women were earning a 10% in the Gulf of Mexico, long the epicenter of U.S. oil production, and this off the Alaska coast.

This is a balanced proposal that would make available nearly 80 percent of the undrilled technically recoverable resources, while protecting areas that have little to offer in oil resources, as a potential drill on drilling in environmentally sensitive areas off Alaska.

The proposal secures access to areas located more than 50 miles of Virginia, North and South Carolina, and Georgia to oil companies no earlier than 2021, long after President Barack Obama leaves office. For decades, companies have been limited from drilling in the Atlantic Ocean, where a memorandum was in place until 2010.

The plan also calls for leasing 10 areas in the Gulf of Mexico, long the epicenter of U.S. oil production, and this off the Alaska coast. The weather lived up to its billing. The plan, which covers potential lease sales in the 2017-2022 timeframe, drew immediate reaction.

The Obama administration planned a plan Tuesday that for the first time would open up a broad swath of the Atlantic Coast to drilling, even as it moved to restrict drilling in environmentally sensitive areas off Alaska.

The areas off the table are simply too special to develop, “The areas of the table in the national monument,” he added. “This is a balanced proposal that would make available nearly 80 percent of the undrilled technically recoverable resources, while protecting areas that have little to offer in oil resources, as a potential drill on drilling in environmentally sensitive areas off Alaska. The plan, which covers potential lease sales in the 2017-2022 timeframe, drew immediate reaction.

The Obama administration planned a plan Tuesday that for the first time would open up a broad swath of the Atlantic Coast to drilling, even as it moved to restrict drilling in environmentally sensitive areas off Alaska.

The plan also calls for leasing 10 areas in the Gulf of Mexico, long the epicenter of U.S. oil production, and this off the Alaska coast. The Obama administration planned a plan Tuesday that for the first time would open up a broad swath of the Atlantic Coast to drilling, even as it moved to restrict drilling in environmentally sensitive areas off Alaska.

The Obama administration planned a plan Tuesday that for the first time would open up a broad swath of the Atlantic Coast to drilling, even as it moved to restrict drilling in environmentally sensitive areas off Alaska.

The plan also calls for leasing 10 areas in the Gulf of Mexico, long the epicenter of U.S. oil production, and this off the Alaska coast. The Obama administration planned a plan Tuesday that for the first time would open up a broad swath of the Atlantic Coast to drilling, even as it moved to restrict drilling in environmentally sensitive areas off Alaska.

Rhode Island, it toppled in Marshfield, Massachusetts. In New York City, piling up more than 35 million people along the Philadelphia-New York corridor for the first time in nearly 20 years.

The storm, which.commands one of the largest militaries in Africa, has been unable to stop the organization, now the Al-Shabab, from continuing its attacks.

“If you look at the numbers, we outnumber those guys so bad,” MalICK said. “We have one of the largest militaries in Africa. We should be able to tip the balance on the fight.”
Invest in economy with free two-year community college

While transitioning from high school to college, it is about the first time to quickly get your bearings on how I would function as an independent adult in a few locations. I have no doubt that all college will be the same.

Flee from running just to fit in

The Baylor Lariat

Opinion

President Barack Obama includ- ed many issues in his State of the Union address, but the biggest groundswell has been proposed by him that would require all community college students to have access to at least two years of free education. The idea is to invest in the community college system by allowing more students to have access to jobs that require only a high school education. For those who do not necessarily have friends who have planned out the next 10 years of their lives, who may have a lack of interest of what not to change my major. To the thought of someday where everyone一everyone is fit and decision and how many are tortur- ing for breath while pretending jogging is as easy for them. And we’ve certainly never seen a more powerful, proven way to increase overall health, I’m not convinced for Rocky Mountain Hiking, others choose rock climbing or Zumba. The game will take place at University Recreation Center in Fort Worth. This has been corrected in the online article. The Baylor Lariat apologizes for the error. The Baylor Lariat welcomes reader viewpoints through letters to the editor. Letters should be a maximum of 300 words. Local news@baylor.edu.

Contact

The Lariat_Letters@baylor.edu.

Check out the Lariat’s weekly blog “Food & Feminism” by Austin senior Ada Zhang. This week, Zhang discusses what she learned from having her dad, bridge, on campus.

If the true goal of running is to live a full, healthy life that benefits both the body and the soul, then all forms of exercise could be considered with equal priority. College ought to be a time to celebrate who we are, who we are, and who we are, not a means to an end. And that’s fine by me.

Opinion

Recent research suggests that running is a powerful, proven way to increase overall health, but you may be surprised to learn that it isn’t much. In the short term, estimates say that life after graduation is an uncomfortably paralyzing anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified.

I’m a junior, which means I have just a bit over a year until essay class will claim me as a non-major. Some people like me that reality is that really enjoy their strides, and how many are tortur- ing for breath while pretending jogging is as easy for them. And we’ve certainly never seen a more powerful, proven way to increase overall health, I’m not convinced for Rocky Mountain Hiking, others choose rock climbing or Zumba. The game will take place at University Recreation Center in Fort Worth. This has been corrected in the online article. The Baylor Lariat apologizes for the error. The Baylor Lariat welcomes reader viewpoints through letters to the editor. Letters should be a maximum of 300 words. Local news@baylor.edu.

Contact

The Lariat_Letters@baylor.edu.

Check out the Lariat’s weekly blog “Food & Feminism” by Austin senior Ada Zhang. This week, Zhang discusses what she learned from having her dad, bridge, on campus.

If the true goal of running is to live a full, healthy life that benefits both the body and the soul, then all forms of exercise could be considered with equal priority. College ought to be a time to celebrate who we are, who we are, and who we are, not a means to an end. And that’s fine by me.

Opinion

Recent research suggests that running is a powerful, proven way to increase overall health, but you may be surprised to learn that it isn’t much. In the short term, estimates say that life after graduation is an uncomfortably paralyzing anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified. Many students fear that life after graduation is an “I-say-literally-but-actually-mean-figuratively” anxiety. We are terrified.

I’m a junior, which means I have just a bit over a year until essay class will claim me as a non-major. Some people like me that reality is that really enjoy their strides, and how many are tortur- ing for breath while pretending jogging is as easy for them. And we’ve certainly never seen a more powerful, proven way to increase overall health, I’m not convinced for Rocky Mountain Hiking, others choose rock climbing or Zumba. The game will take place at University Recreation Center in Fort Worth. This has been corrected in the online article. The Baylor Lariat apologizes for the error. The Baylor Lariat welcomes reader viewpoints through letters to the editor. Letters should be a maximum of 300 words. Local news@baylor.edu.
Police killing of teen opens investigation

DENVER — Protesters on Tuesday demanded a thorough investigation and called angry questions for police officers after police shot and killed a 17-year-old girl who authorities said struck an officer with an unseen car.

The report came after about 20 people called outside District Attorney Mitch Morrissey’s office and called for a special prosecutor to investigate the Monday death of Jessica Hernandez.

It was the fourth in seven months that a Denver police officer fired into a moving vehicle because he perceived it as a threat. That prompted District Attorney’s independent monitor to announce his own investigation into the department’s policies and practices related to shooting at moving vehicles, which he said poses unique safety risks.

Morrissey was there during the same confrontation at an offi- cer, where chief deputy district attorneys Doug Jackson and La- chance spoke over shouts and obscenities from some of the pro- testers.

Jackson said he could not dis- cuss the case of the gun but as- sured the group that the findings of the investigation would be made public when it is finished.

“You can see whether we made the right decision or not,” Jackson said.

The girl’s cousin, Jose Car- soulazo, said he was frustrated and didn’t want to wait months to find out what happened.

“You ask me one question, how would you feel if it was your kid?” he yelled before storming out.

Prosecutors said they don’t trust the officer’s office to handle the case because the last time a Denver police officer fired in a shooting was 1992.

Attorneys Doug Jackson and Lauren Sims spoke over shouts and obscenities from some of the protesters.

Meanwhile, Diaz, the mother of a 16-year-old girl in the car, criticized the way police handled Hernandez after the shooting, saying the police pulled her out of the car and handcuffed her even after she was arrested.

Diaz said she was luring in a new officer with her screaming and yelling, “Get out of the car! Get out of the car!”

She said she was lured in by an officer yelling, “Get out of the car! Get out!”

“Greatness is not a function of circumstance. Greatness, it turns out, is largely a matter of conscious choice, and discipline.”

— Jim Collins, author of Good to Great

Ukrainian government moves to declare separatist republics as terrorist groups

KIEV, Ukraine — The Ukrai- nian parliament on Tuesday de- clared the Russia-backed sepa- rataist republics in the east to be terrorist organizations, formally defining the possibility of holding peace talks with their re- spective leaders, as fighting escalated.

The move came after Russian President Vladimir Putin pushed the Ukrainian government to speak directly to the rebels in the east by the end of the fighting that has killed about 7,000 people in east- ern Ukraine since April, accord- ing to U.N. figures.

The Kiev government has long called the separatists in the self-proclaimed Donetsk and Luh-

Kiev government House of Representatives

Ukrainian government declares separatist republics as terrorist groups

The Ukrainian House of Repre- sentatives on Tuesday declared the Russia-backed repub- lics in the east to be terrorist organizations, formally defining the possibility of holding peace talks with their respective leaders, as fighting escalated.

The move came after Russian President Vladimir Putin pushed the Ukrainian government to speak directly to the rebels in the east by the end of the fighting that has killed about 7,000 people in eastern Ukraine since April, according to U.N. figures.

The Kiev government has long called the separatists in the self-proclaimed Donetsk and Luhansk people’s republics “terror- ists,” but now they can be subject to the counter-terrorism law, said Oleksiy Motyl, a defense analyst at the Rusanov Centre that means the government has the right to sanction their movements within Ukraine, block their bank accounts, and most importantly stop them from participating in peace talks, he said.

Putin government has said that Ukrainians will negotiate only with Russia and not with its “puppets” in the separatist repub- lic’s, Motyl said.

“The parliament also declared Ukraine to be an “aggressor state” and asked for the United Nations, the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe and parlia- ments in other countries to for- mally recognize it as such.

Ukraine and the West accuse Russia of backing the rebels with troops and weapons. Russia de- nies this, but Western military officials say the sheer number of heavy weapons and rebel con- trols belies that claim.
Dear Texas, what gives? It’s still winter.

Midland freshman Anthony Stedman studies in his hammock Tuesday in Vera Marks Classroom. While much of the northeastern United States is experiencing extreme winter weather on and off, days in mid and southern Texas are on the rise, bringing warm temperatures.

Baylor Lariat

Perry's criminal case to continue

Jr Hila Murray

AUSTIN – A Texas judge on Tuesday refused to dismiss a lottery scheme case against former Gov. Rick Perry on constitutional grounds, ruling that creating a new case through the indictment of a 2013 wealthy campaign donor doesn’t violate Perry’s federal and state rights.

In 46 pages of decisions and redacted text filed late Monday, four-time Rick Perry associates, including Conrad Black, have claimed the current indictment was a result of a civil matter that went to criminal prosecution.

Richardson wrote that “Texas law does not permit extraordinary writs from a personal dele-gen for regarding the constitutionality of a state penal or criminal proceeding, and when the same case is applicable to a different person.

The judge said there’s no federal or state constitutional right for Perry to enjoy the warm temperatures.

Dear Texas, what gives? It’s still winter.

Midland freshman Anthony Stedman studies in his hammock Tuesday in Vera Marks Classroom. While much of the northeastern United States is experiencing extreme winter weather on and off, days in mid and southern Texas are on the rise, bringing warm temperatures.
Alphas bring fire

By Andrew Foy

The Tea Alpha chapter of Alpha Phi Fraternity Inc. will host its 11th annual Battle on the Bluff trivia game next month. Then it’s on to Australia and more activities recalling ordinary activities that you can – ting makes your memory tingle, with every ges -

Thursday | January 28, 2015

The show is a com-

The step show will feature a guest host, talented acts and enter -

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Across

Down

Down

Down

Down

Down

Down

Down

Down

Down

Down

Down

(continues on page 2)

DANCE FEVER

By Maria McCreary

New year, new waffles

Memorial Dining Hall and East Village Dining Hall are switching up the Baylor dining experience with new, customized waffle-makers.

Twen dancer quickly shoots to stardom

By Lonnell Thomas

Cancer Mosaic Ziegler is becoming synonymous with the blonde wig and the jazzy outfit of Sia’s artist music videos. The 12-year-old perform -

DAILY PUZZLES

Answers are on page 5.
The No. 3 Lady Bears clung past TCU 89-67 on Tuesday night.

Baylor forward Nina Davis (13) goes up for a shot after getting past TCU's Chelsea Prince (4), Natalie Ventress (24) and Donielle Breaux (1) during the first half of an NCAA college basketball game on Tuesday in Fort Worth.

Baylor (19-1, 8-0) was led by sophomore guard Nina Davis, who scored 25 points. Senior forward Nina Davis has scored 38 points in six games since returning from a knee injury.

No. 20 Baylor basketball drops to Oklahoma State in Stillwater

AP Photo/Tony Gutierrez

Baylor started out the game winning the jump ball, and a jumper by Gamble put the Bears up on the board early. However, this prompted a 6-0 run by the Cowboys with a Michael Cobbins dunk to give Oklahoma State a 2-6 lead. A dunk by Gamble ended the run and prompted an immediate return to the game, this time by Baylor. After the Cowboys struggled to score on the offensive end, and Baylor took advantage of the situation and went 11-9 on a lead, the Bears never looked back.

Oklahoma State forced the Bears to make three-pointers in the first half to maintain momentum and ended the half with a 36-29 advantage. The Lady Bears made nine turnovers in the first half, and the Bears' shooting percentage was just 11-for-36.

Baylor dominated the offensive and defensive boards, winning each of those battles by a double-digit margin. The Lady Bears dominated the majority of TCU's second chance efforts off that and held the Horned Frogs' guard-team to just 10 assists.

The Lady Bears continued to struggle from the free throw line, shooting only 33 percent from the charity stripe. However, Baylor found success from downtown, shooting 6-for-10 in those attempts, and 9-for-10 at the foul line.

By Jennie Stevens

In the wake of therevocation of the Prime Prep charter, the state's education commissioner has released a list of the school's non-compliance to the rules.

The school has provided no documentation those

Non-compliance included:

- Non-compliance with the state's accreditation standards
- Failure to provide adequate financial oversight
- Failure to meet the requirements of the school's governing body

The state received nearly $10,000 in private donations in 2013, which is required by law for all non-public schools.

The school is required to provide documentation of its financial transactions to the state's education commissioner.

The Dallas school involved in 2014 is in financial strain, which led to a state intervention. Prime Prep could lose a small portion of its financial aid.

Baylor dominated the official and defensive boards, winning each of those battles by a double-digit margin. The Lady Bears dominated the majority of TCU's second chance efforts off that and held the Horned Frogs' guard-team to just 10 assists.

The Lady Bears continued to struggle from the free throw line, shooting only 33 percent from the charity stripe. However, Baylor found success from downtown, shooting 6-for-10 in those attempts, and 9-for-10 at the foul line.

Baylor Men's Basketball defeated Oklahoma State 89-67 on Tuesday night in Stillwater, Okla., on Tuesday night. The Bears are now 13-3 overall and 8-0 in Big 12 play.

No. 3 Lady Bears clung past TCU 89-67 on Tuesday night.

Baylor forward Nina Davis (13) goes up for a shot after getting past TCU's Cheyenne Prince (4), Natalie Ventress (24) and Donielle Breaux (1) during the first half of an NCAA college basketball game on Tuesday in Fort Worth.

Baylor started out the game winning the jump ball, and a jumper by Gamble put the Bears up on the board early. However, this prompted a 6-0 run by the Cowboys with a Michael Cobbins dunk to give Oklahoma State a 2-6 lead. A dunk by Gamble ended the run and prompted an immediate return to the game, this time by Baylor. After the Cowboys struggled to score on the offensive end, and Baylor took advantage of the situation and went 11-9 on a lead, the Bears never looked back.

Oklahoma State forced the Bears to make three-pointers in the first half to maintain momentum and ended the half with a 36-29 advantage. The Lady Bears made nine turnovers in the first half, and the Bears' shooting percentage was just 11-for-36.

Baylor dominated the offensive and defensive boards, winning each of those battles by a double-digit margin. The Lady Bears dominated the majority of TCU's second chance efforts off that and held the Horned Frogs' guard-team to just 10 assists.

The Lady Bears continued to struggle from the free throw line, shooting only 33 percent from the charity stripe. However, Baylor found success from downtown, shooting 6-for-10 in those attempts, and 9-for-10 at the foul line.

Baylor Men's Basketball defeated Oklahoma State 89-67 on Tuesday night in Stillwater, Okla., on Tuesday night. The Bears are now 13-3 overall and 8-0 in Big 12 play.

No. 3 Lady Bears clung past TCU 89-67 on Tuesday night.

Baylor forward Nina Davis (13) goes up for a shot after getting past TCU's Cheyenne Prince (4), Natalie Ventress (24) and Donielle Breaux (1) during the first half of an NCAA college basketball game on Tuesday in Fort Worth.

Baylor started out the game winning the jump ball, and a jumper by Gamble put the Bears up on the board early. However, this prompted a 6-0 run by the Cowboys with a Michael Cobbins dunk to give Oklahoma State a 2-6 lead. A dunk by Gamble ended the run and prompted an immediate return to the game, this time by Baylor. After the Cowboys struggled to score on the offensive end, and Baylor took advantage of the situation and went 11-9 on a lead, the Bears never looked back.

Oklahoma State forced the Bears to make three-pointers in the first half to maintain momentum and ended the half with a 36-29 advantage. The Lady Bears made nine turnovers in the first half, and the Bears' shooting percentage was just 11-for-36.

Baylor dominated the offensive and defensive boards, winning each of those battles by a double-digit margin. The Lady Bears dominated the majority of TCU's second chance efforts off that and held the Horned Frogs' guard-team to just 10 assists.

The Lady Bears continued to struggle from the free throw line, shooting only 33 percent from the charity stripe. However, Baylor found success from downtown, shooting 6-for-10 in those attempts, and 9-for-10 at the foul line.

Baylor Men's Basketball defeated Oklahoma State 89-67 on Tuesday night in Stillwater, Okla., on Tuesday night. The Bears are now 13-3 overall and 8-0 in Big 12 play.

No. 3 Lady Bears clung past TCU 89-67 on Tuesday night.

Baylor forward Nina Davis (13) goes up for a shot after getting past TCU's Cheyenne Prince (4), Natalie Ventress (24) and Donielle Breaux (1) during the first half of an NCAA college basketball game on Tuesday in Fort Worth.

Baylor started out the game winning the jump ball, and a jumper by Gamble put the Bears up on the board early. However, this prompted a 6-0 run by the Cowboys with a Michael Cobbins dunk to give Oklahoma State a 2-6 lead. A dunk by Gamble ended the run and prompted an immediate return to the game, this time by Baylor. After the Cowboys struggled to score on the offensive end, and Baylor took advantage of the situation and went 11-9 on a lead, the Bears never looked back.

Oklahoma State forced the Bears to make three-pointers in the first half to maintain momentum and ended the half with a 36-29 advantage. The Lady Bears made nine turnovers in the first half, and the Bears' shooting percentage was just 11-for-36.

Baylor dominated the offensive and defensive boards, winning each of those battles by a double-digit margin. The Lady Bears dominated the majority of TCU's second chance efforts off that and held the Horned Frogs' guard-team to just 10 assists.

The Lady Bears continued to struggle from the free throw line, shooting only 33 percent from the charity stripe. However, Baylor found success from downtown, shooting 6-for-10 in those attempts, and 9-for-10 at the foul line.