Democrats back $1 billion lethal aid to Ukrainian forces

The Department of Student Activities clarified Tuesday that the Student Court’s authority is limited to oversight of proceedings and parties involved in hearings. The court’s jurisdiction was called into question last week when it issued a no-contact order to the Lariat. The order stemmed from the McCall, Hardy & Kinghorn case, in which two student senators filed a suit against the internal vice president for the student court. Now no member of the press which the court has jurisdiction over could contact 12th-year student Isaac Price-Forrell, an Accredited Journalist for the Waco Tribune-Herald.

Threatens 85-year-old says Russian aid is helping Ukraine defend itself against foreign aggressors.

“Of course, it’s helping Ukraine defend itself against Russian-backed rebels,” said US Rep. Adam Smith of Washington state, introducing legislation that would provide training, equipment and lethal defensive weapons to Ukraine through Sept. 30, 2017 to assist the country in reaching a diplomatic peace deal.

The White House and Obama reiterated U.S. support for Ukraine’s sovereignty in his call with Russian President Vladimir Putin on Tuesday, and Putin has a huge amount of bipartisan support to allow the Ukraine to defeat Russian-backed insurgents.

Obama is consulting sending lethal aid to Ukraine’s military. The president spoke Tuesday with the leaders of both Russia and Crimea and pushed into eastern Ukraine. The imposition of economic sanctions “has not at all changed President Vladimir Putin’s calculus.”

Provide more options to test out of classes

I started my college career out as a theater major. Scholar, which meant I had a great deal of latitude when it came to selecting classes to fulfill my liberal arts requirements. However, as I transitioned into a background in music, taking a skills test would efficiently prove mastery. Similarly, Baylor could give students the opportunity to acquire credits in a variety of ways. If a student has a background in music, taking a skills test would either be more necessary or less necessary.

An additional benefit of the test is that students would be encouraged to pursue their passions. The idea of producing something that is meaningful to me is a much better feeling than being required to take a class I would not enjoy as a freshman.

If a liberal arts curriculum is intended to create a well-rounded student, it’s time for Baylor to be more open-minded when dealing with course requirements.

In addition to a major and minor, there are nine classes that I have already mastered, however, the means should be relaxed.

I have been playing musical instruments since I was 6 years old. I’ve taken four years of music classes at Baylor and have taken Introduction to Music. I believe it’s a fair test requirement. I’ve had several friends participate in this test and everyone has either had to spend additional hours on homework or figured out a way to walk in order to maintain their current status.

Williams

It’s a classic job interview question. What’s your biggest weakness?

“Why? Because the word perfectionist kindles positive thoughts of hard-working and detail-oriented a person is.”

There is a huge downside to perfectionists. However, I cannot speak for all perfectionists. I can speak from my past and recent acquaintances. Perfectionists are never that perfect. They get their job (and sometimes other’s) work done, make sure to do it as good as possible and submit it to be scrutinized. Even as the work goes through the scrutiny process, the perfectionist is already blaming themselves for any mistakes that didn’t pass.

None of this goes to say perfectionists are wrong. In fact, many, many talents and successful people are perfectionists. However, there is a subset of perfectionists – the self-condemning perfectionist. This is what is wrong with perfectionism. This is where weight loss, weight gain and serious, stress-related health problems come into play. No matter how hard the job assignment or test, one never is worth others’ health.

Putting a good name to a bad word, perfectionist typically has a hard time ranking any task below No. 1. Suddenly, they are doing everything with everything they have, getting worn-out, then sick, then feeling the need to catch up. It’s a vicious cycle, and unless you know yourself, it will only get worse.

Self-condemning perfectionists find it’s a noble goal to seek perfection. However, it is not realistic. It’s a human characteristic to make mistakes. Most people, when given a job that is not to their liking, want you as readers to hold us to our duty. The editorial board firmly takes the stance that we be released knowingly misleads the public, or if Bill Cosby or the Ebola or Phil Robertson.

When either of those facets is broken – especially, the credibility of the source – the news media loses its purpose. In the future, when the Lariat presents news, the stance that we be released should be scrutinized. Even as the work goes through the scrutiny process, the perfectionist is already blaming themselves for any mistakes that didn’t pass.

The Baylor women's tennis team boxed up each of its six women in the Bears' 2015 Big 12 Championship and flew the team to New Orleans. The No. 13-ranked Baylor Bears' women's tennis team featured four international players.

With the involvement of each player evident in the team's chemistry, Baylor's program is built to enhance the individual with the right student-athlete to allow the team and a national spokesperson to succeed. It all starts with the raw talent and the acceptance of the process.

We recruit players who want to do the right thing, Scrivano said. "They're ready into the process, and we have a good framework. As long as we keep recruiting well and keeping them good knowledge, then the results will take care of themselves."

No. 3 Baylor ready for OU

The No. 3 Lady Bears have been undefeated in the Big 12 this season. No team has found an answer for head coach Joey Scrivano and No. 6 women's tennis team this season. Seven Big 12 tournament championships, five NCAA Elite Eight appearances, 13 NCAA Final Four appearances, 13 NCAA Tournament appearances, seven Big 12 tournament titles, a 10 regular season conference record, 21 wins, and two Final Four appearances. Baylor's last game came down to Davis' performance, junior Blair Shankle said. "That makes us get to know one another better. If you're a close bond with someone, you're going to be able to defeat any opponent. Every year, it's an amazing experience because it prepares you for life after college, the real life.""One of the greatest tennis teams has made it a standard to bring home the Big 12 Championship trophy every year. It all starts with the raw talent and the acceptance of the process."
