Prosecutor says evidence points to driver purposely driving into crowd

JUSTIN JUOZAPAVICIUS

OKLAHOMA STATE UNIVERSITY

District Attorney Laura Thomas said in a

Homecoming parade disaster

Prosecutor says evidence points to driver purposely driving into crowd

DENIED

Former Baylor football player Sam Ukwuachu was convicted August 25, 2015, in Waco, Texas, of sexual assault and was sentenced to 10 years’ probation. Ukwuachu was convicted in August and sentenced to 10 years’ probation, 400 hours of community service and must register as a sex offender for 10 years. Ukwuachu will appeal the case to Waco’s 10th Court of Appeals, according to the Waco Tribune-Herald. Baylor is ending an outside review by two Philadelphia attorneys looking into the death of former Baylor student-teammate Patrick Mahomes, who died in May from a pre-existing heart condition. Baylor said Monday, he has

Baylor Game Recap (Bears lose to Sam Houston State)

Bears look to backup quarterback to save their season

JOSHUA DAVIS

Baylor junior quarterback Seth Russell will undergo season-ending surgery on his neck this week, marking the end of Russell’s college career with an injury that would have never been expected.

This comes as devastating news to a program that was on the high point of its season bar none. Russell is the Big 12 Offensive Player of the Week, the Athlon National Offensive Player of the Week, the Walter Camp National Offensive Player of the Week, the Big 12 Offensive Player of the Week, the ESPN College Football Player of the Week, and the Davey O’Brien National Player of the Week. Russell guided the Bears to a 7-0 record and 686.1 yards per game, including 189.7 FBS in passing efficiency (2013). Russell is the national leader in passing yards (3,519) and TDs (30), passing yards per attempt (22.4), and completion percentage (67). Russell is the only quarterback in the nation to throw for 3,500 yards and 30 TDs. Russell led the Bears to 18 touchdowns in seven games. Russell’s injury has forced him to sit out the game this week against Sam Houston State. Russell is expected to be out for the rest of the season.

Russell suffered an injury in a game against Iowa State on Saturday. The injury was initially reported as a neck injury, but it was later determined to be a severe neck injury that required surgery. Russell underwent surgery on his neck this week, and it was determined that he would not be able to play again this season.

Russell was taken to the hospital on Saturday night after suffering the injury. He was then airlifted to a hospital in Waco, where he underwent surgery on his neck. Russell is expected to be out for the rest of the season, ending his college career with an injury that would have never been expected.

Baylor Coach Art Briles said on Monday that he is confident that the team will keep up its good run of form. Briles said Monday, he has confidence in the true freshman and has great expectations. Russell will still fill his shoes with the young quarterback, Stidham, who has appeared in all seven games for the No. 2 ranked Bears. The task ahead for Stidham is daunting, as he oversaw the seventh toughest remaining schedule in the nation, with games at Oklahoma State and at Texas Tech.

Stidham has been effective in limited work this year, so he owes a 25.7 passer efficiency rating, having thrown for 351 yards and six touchdowns on 24-28 passes (86 percent completion percentage). Third-year sophomore Art Briles, who had moved in to receive this season, will be No. 2 at quarterback.

The second-ranked Bears will look to take advantage of the extra time in the bye week to get Stidham acclimated in the starter’s role before heading to Kansas State for a Thursday night game on Nov. 5.

BAYLOR FOOTBALL

Baylor loses starting QB

Bears look to backup quarterback to save their season

JOSHUA DAVIS

Baylor junior quarterback Seth Russell will undergo season-ending surgery on his neck this week, marking the end of Russell’s college career with an injury that would have never been expected.

This comes as devastating news to a program that was on the high point of its season bar none. Russell is the Big 12 Offensive Player of the Week, the Athlon National Offensive Player of the Week, the Walter Camp National Offensive Player of the Week, the Big 12 Offensive Player of the Week, the ESPN College Football Player of the Week, and the Davey O’Brien National Player of the Week. Russell guided the Bears to a 7-0 record and 686.1 yards per game, including 189.7 FBS in passing efficiency (2013). Russell is the national leader in passing yards (3,519) and TDs (30), passing yards per attempt (22.4), and completion percentage (67). Russell is the only quarterback in the nation to throw for 3,500 yards and 30 TDs. Russell led the Bears to 18 touchdowns in seven games. Russell’s injury has forced him to sit out the game this week against Sam Houston State. Russell is expected to be out for the rest of the season.

Russell suffered an injury in a game against Iowa State on Saturday. The injury was initially reported as a neck injury, but it was later determined to be a severe neck injury that required surgery. Russell underwent surgery on his neck this week, and it was determined that he would not be able to play again this season.

Russell was taken to the hospital on Saturday night after suffering the injury. He was then airlifted to a hospital in Waco, where he underwent surgery on his neck. Russell is expected to be out for the rest of the season, ending his college career with an injury that would have never been expected.

Baylor Coach Art Briles said on Monday that he is confident that the team will keep up its good run of form. Briles said Monday, he has confidence in the true freshman and has great expectations. Russell will still fill his shoes with the young quarterback, Stidham, who has appeared in all seven games for the No. 2 ranked Bears. The task ahead for Stidham is daunting, as he oversaw the seventh toughest remaining schedule in the nation, with games at Oklahoma State and at Texas Tech.

Stidham has been effective in limited work this year, so he owes a 25.7 passer efficiency rating, having thrown for 351 yards and six touchdowns on 24-28 passes (86 percent completion percentage). Third-year sophomore Art Briles, who had moved in to receive this season, will be No. 2 at quarterback.

The second-ranked Bears will look to take advantage of the extra time in the bye week to get Stidham acclimated in the starter’s role before heading to Kansas State for a Thursday night game on Nov. 5.

BAYLOR FOOTBALL

Baylor loses starting QB

Bears look to backup quarterback to save their season

JOSHUA DAVIS

Baylor junior quarterback Seth Russell will undergo season-ending surgery on his neck this week, marking the end of Russell’s college career with an injury that would have never been expected.

This comes as devastating news to a program that was on the high point of its season bar none. Russell is the Big 12 Offensive Player of the Week, the Athlon National Offensive Player of the Week, the Walter Camp National Offensive Player of the Week, the Big 12 Offensive Player of the Week, the ESPN College Football Player of the Week, and the Davey O’Brien National Player of the Week. Russell guided the Bears to a 7-0 record and 686.1 yards per game, including 189.7 FBS in passing efficiency (2013). Russell is the national leader in passing yards (3,519) and TDs (30), passing yards per attempt (22.4), and completion percentage (67). Russell is the only quarterback in the nation to throw for 3,500 yards and 30 TDs. Russell led the Bears to 18 touchdowns in seven games. Russell’s injury has forced him to sit out the game this week against Sam Houston State. Russell is expected to be out for the rest of the season.

Russell suffered an injury in a game against Iowa State on Saturday. The injury was initially reported as a neck injury, but it was later determined to be a severe neck injury that required surgery. Russell underwent surgery on his neck this week, and it was determined that he would not be able to play again this season.

Russell was taken to the hospital on Saturday night after suffering the injury. He was then airlifted to a hospital in Waco, where he underwent surgery on his neck. Russell is expected to be out for the rest of the season, ending his college career with an injury that would have never been expected.

Baylor Coach Art Briles said on Monday that he is confident that the team will keep up its good run of form. Briles said Monday, he has confidence in the true freshman and has great expectations. Russell will still fill his shoes with the young quarterback, Stidham, who has appeared in all seven games for the No. 2 ranked Bears. The task ahead for Stidham is daunting, as he oversaw the seventh toughest remaining schedule in the nation, with games at Oklahoma State and at Texas Tech.

Stidham has been effective in limited work this year, so he owes a 25.7 passer efficiency rating, having thrown for 351 yards and six touchdowns on 24-28 passes (86 percent completion percentage). Third-year sophomore Art Briles, who had moved in to receive this season, will be No. 2 at quarterback.

The second-ranked Bears will look to take advantage of the extra time in the bye week to get Stidham acclimated in the starter’s role before heading to Kansas State for a Thursday night game on Nov. 5.

BAYLOR FOOTBALL

Baylor loses starting QB

Bears look to backup quarterback to save their season

JOSHUA DAVIS

Baylor junior quarterback Seth Russell will undergo season-ending surgery on his neck this week, marking the end of Russell’s college career with an injury that would have never been expected.

This comes as devastating news to a program that was on the high point of its season bar none. Russell is the Big 12 Offensive Player of the Week, the Athlon National Offensive Player of the Week, the Walter Camp National Offensive Player of the Week, the Big 12 Offensive Player of the Week, the ESPN College Football Player of the Week, and the Davey O’Brien National Player of the Week. Russell guided the Bears to a 7-0 record and 686.1 yards per game, including 189.7 FBS in passing efficiency (2013). Russell is the national leader in passing yards (3,519) and TDs (30), passing yards per attempt (22.4), and completion percentage (67). Russell is the only quarterback in the nation to throw for 3,500 yards and 30 TDs. Russell led the Bears to 18 touchdowns in seven games. Russell’s injury has forced him to sit out the game this week against Sam Houston State. Russell is expected to be out for the rest of the season.

Russell suffered an injury in a game against Iowa State on Saturday. The injury was initially reported as a neck injury, but it was later determined to be a severe neck injury that required surgery. Russell underwent surgery on his neck this week, and it was determined that he would not be able to play again this season.

Russell was taken to the hospital on Saturday night after suffering the injury. He was then airlifted to a hospital in Waco, where he underwent surgery on his neck. Russell is expected to be out for the rest of the season, ending his college career with an injury that would have never been expected.

Baylor Coach Art Briles said on Monday that he is confident that the team will keep up its good run of form. Briles said Monday, he has confidence in the true freshman and has great expectations. Russell will still fill his shoes with the young quarterback, Stidham, who has appeared in all seven games for the No. 2 ranked Bears. The task ahead for Stidham is daunting, as he oversaw the seventh toughest remaining schedule in the nation, with games at Oklahoma State and at Texas Tech.

Stidham has been effective in limited work this year, so he owes a 25.7 passer efficiency rating, having thrown for 351 yards and six touchdowns on 24-28 passes (86 percent completion percentage). Third-year sophomore Art Briles, who had moved in to receive this season, will be No. 2 at quarterback.

The second-ranked Bears will look to take advantage of the extra time in the bye week to get Stidham acclimated in the starter’s role before heading to Kansas State for a Thursday night game on Nov. 5.
Are you not entertained?

Students should show up for Baylor's best football team

Baylor football is hiring a tail who has never before been hired. As of this season, the Bears have reached the No. 2 ranking in the country, maintained the best active home record in the country, and frustrations to achieve a third-straight Big 12 title and are looking at a very legitimate chance at getting into the College Football Playoff.

Additionally, the Bears’ on-field product is looking like the best it has been in recent memory. Junior receiver Corey Coleman is a Heisman Trophy candidate, the Bears lead the country and the “Gang Green” defense can stop forturning trenders. When we win, we have a better than a fair chance of football. The Bears aren’t new.

But why isn’t this only a time for the fans in the community to show off their best? Isn't this the most powerful Baylor has ever been?

Granted, that remains to be seen.

This past Saturday, the Bears faced Kansas State. In the past few home games.

Unfortunately, the Bears’ offense couldn’t get the job done. This time, it is unacceptable.

If there is one thing that stands out about the student body at Baylor, it is their loyalty. A column can be written by anyone. Opinion sections don’t always look out for the student ticket holder. Students that don’t attend the games are interesting. We can’t argue that the game-day experience isn’t meaningful. But it is important to remember this doesn’t necessarily mean everyone on the board or employed by the newspaper has these opinions.

Most readers engage in conversation via letters to the editor. Someone might write in to voice a concern. They are a group of people who don’t agree with our board’s stance on a given topic. However, a blow and a low-stooped level. Gather your thoughts and form an organized argument. Everyone will receive the letter. They will make sure that the reader is seen and the opportunity. When the game was over, that wasn’t the case. My raise came in the air, my disappointment was felt. The Baylor Line is the paper of the student body at large.

Therefore, what is this football team, and we do have several positions at multiple schools.

And emails washes over the board’s stance on a given topic. That is the only form of opinion writing that reflects the newspaper’s views, but it is important to remember this doesn’t necessarily mean everyone on the board or employed by the newspaper has these opinions.

Despite what you may believe, students that don’t attend the games are interesting. We can’t argue that the game-day experience isn’t meaningful. But it is important to remember this doesn’t necessarily mean everyone on the board or employed by the newspaper has these opinions.

Most readers engage in conversation via letters to the editor. Someone might write in to voice a concern. They are a group of people who don’t agree with our board’s stance on a given topic. However, a blow and a low-stooped level. Gather your thoughts and form an organized argument. Everyone will receive the letter. They will make sure that the reader is seen and the opportunity. When the game was over, that wasn’t the case. My raise came in the air, my disappointment was felt. The Baylor Line is the paper of the student body at large.
Shelters seek aid during winter months

JENN WEBSTER
Reporter
Campus Recreation will host the Baylor Fitness Halloween Bash at 6:45 p.m. on Wednesday in Russell Commons. It’s free for Baylor students, faculty and staff to attend.

The Halloween Bash will be an opportunity for attendees to experience different types of fitness distractions, said Van Dorris, assistant director of fitness and nutrition education.

The staff and fitness instructors have worked together to create a fun and entertaining, yet challenging challenge for students, faculty and staff.

Attendees should bring their Baylor ID and a water bottle. Snacks and extra water will be supplied after the workout.

The 75-minute workout will begin in the Halloween Bash. Campuses Recreation is encouraging guests to come dressed in costumes or to dress as a fancy or funny character. The costume contest winners will be chosen by the crowd and announced at the end of the workout.

The winners will receive a prize. Participants are expected to wear their costumes for the duration of the workout.

The 75-minute workout will begin with a warm-up. Participants will then split up into groups and go from one station to the next. Once each group has made it through all of the stations, everyone will reconvene to do yoga and cool down.

The four stations will include: yoga, Zumba, high intensity interval training and belly dancing. People can achieve their fitness goals, while they have fun and meet new people while connecting with the Baylor community,” said Conway, who was also Campbell’s friend and supervisor, said the classroom is unique in its design.

“We added the technology in 2011 and refurbished a couple years later after that,” Krey said. “This allows for classes to be taught from any direction, and allows for more than the model’s standard 50 people to use the space.”

Campbell joined the Baylor staff in 2010 as an academic consultant in the electronic learning library, according to the Baylor Libraries website.

“Dennis gave a lot of gifts to many people, but there was one gift that Dennis gave us, and that is the chance to walk with a hero,” said Cheryl Gochis, associate vice president for Human Resources. “The expert power was this service of self.”

Krey said Campbell was instrumental in designing the innovative learning space, and the Central Libraries department benefits greatly from his work.

“He was passionate about what he did,” Orr said.

Gochis, Krey, Orr and University Chaplain Burt Burleson spoke at Friday’s dedication. Also present were Campbell’s late wife Karen, of Waco, and his children Logan, Matthew and Megan.

The learning space can function as a classroom, study space or a space for presentations. It has multiple drop-down projectors and the capacity to seat 150, according to the University Libraries website.

“What’s unique about it is that it doesn’t have four walls,” Krey said. “This allows for classes to be taught from any direction, and allows for more than the model’s standard 50 people to use the space.”

Campbell joined the Baylor staff in 2010 as an academic consultant in the electronic learning library, according to the Baylor Libraries website.

“Dennis gave a lot of gifts to many people, but there was one gift that Dennis gave us, and that is the chance to walk with a hero,” said Cheryl Gochis, associate vice president for Human Resources. “The expert power was this service of self.”

Krey said Campbell was instrumental in designing the innovative learning space, and the Central Libraries department benefits greatly from his work.

“He was passionate about what he did,” Orr said.

Gochis, Krey, Orr and University Chaplain Burt Burleson spoke at Friday’s dedication. Also present were Campbell’s late wife Karen, of Waco, and his children Logan, Matthew and Megan.

The learning space can function as a classroom, study space or a space for presentations. It has multiple drop-down projectors and the capacity to seat 150, according to the University Libraries website.

“What’s unique about it is that it doesn’t have four walls,” Krey said. “This allows for classes to be taught from any direction, and allows for more than the model’s standard 50 people to use the space.”

Campbell joined the Baylor staff in 2010 as an academic consultant in the electronic learning library, according to the Baylor Libraries website.

“Dennis gave a lot of gifts to many people, but there was one gift that Dennis gave us, and that is the chance to walk with a hero,” said Cheryl Gochis, associate vice president for Human Resources. “The expert power was this service of self.”

Krey said Campbell was instrumental in designing the innovative learning space, and the Central Libraries department benefits greatly from his work.

“He was passionate about what he did,” Orr said.

Gochis, Krey, Orr and University Chaplain Burt Burleson spoke at Friday’s dedication. Also present were Campbell’s late wife Karen, of Waco, and his children Logan, Matthew and Megan.
I'M COMING home

Baylor fans flooded to Waco to support the Bears this weekend, rain or shine

1. Senior long snapper Jimmy Landes pumps up the crowd at this weekend's Extravaganza.
2. Senior offensive tackle Spencer Drango lifts junior running back Shock Linwood after another touchdown at the battle against Iowa State on Saturday.
3. President and Chancellor Ken Starr leads the crowd in a Sic' em.
4. A baton twirler performed just before the football team came on for the pep rally.
5. The Baylor spirit teams performed at the pep rally to get the mood going for the weekend.
6. Matt Burchett, director of student activities, and two alumni lead a Sic 'em at the pep rally.
7. Senior defensive end Shawn Oakman surprises the crowd on stage during the pep rally and talks about the upcoming homecoming game.
8. Sophomore defensive end Brian Nance tackles quarterback Sam Richardson during the rainy game between the Bears and the Cyclones. be formally charged — a step that requires prosecutors to file additional documents in court. We get all the test results back, we'll know," Julie Lynda Branstetter said she saw her niece Friday morning and nothing seemed unusual. "I am her, she thinks that her character is not her fault," Branstetter said. "She's one who's always growing — big and strong. And she's one if you don't, she'll turn you into that. That just that, and flowers.

Gayfard said he had never even seen Chambers break any traffic laws. "She honestly one of the most cautious drivers I've ever ridden with. She never turns out in front of any cars. She doesn't even turn yellow lights." he said.

The crash killed those adults and a 2-year-old boy. At least 46 other people hurt, including children.

On Monday, the Oklahoma medical examiner's office identified the four killed in the crash as 2-year-old Nash Lucas. Oklahoma State University said the boy's mother, 20-year-old Shartata Strachan, is a sophomore majoring in chemical engineering. The four adults were identified as Nikita Nakal, a 23-year-old MBA student from India at the University of Central Oklahoma in Edmond, and a married couple, Bonnie Jean Storr and Marvis Luke Storr, both 65, of Stillwater.

A MOMENT OF SILENCE
A makeshift memorial is set up for the victims of the Saturday homecoming parade crash in Stillwater, Okla. A judge has ordered a psychological evaluation for Adacia Chambers. She is accused of driving her car into Oklahoma State's homecoming parade, killing four people and injuring dozens of others.

REGENTS from Page 1

to collaborate more easily with faculty and students from the Robbins College of Health and Human Sciences, but it meant that the dean of the Robbins College of Health and Human Sciences, now the dean of the nursing school will report straight to the executive vice president and provost. "For our school of nursing in one of the top schools of nursing in the state of Texas, and becoming one of the best in the nation, and one of the issues that the faculty brought up is that the top schools in the country are more increasingly structured so that the dean reports to the provost," Trevathan said. "I didn't think that in terms of reputation for their dean to reflect their work.

Trevathan said the conclusion that the nursing school should be its own school again was made by the faculty and the dean of the college.

He said a study will be done this year to help determine how collaborations and joint research can be encouraged and achieved between the school of nursing and the university.

Trevathan also said that he does not think anything will be changed for the students, it just changes how they report to one another.

The report given to the Board of Regents about campus safety and security included changes for both students and faculty.

"What we reported on was the program that we’ve made for the last several years to make sure that we have the safest environment that we can for students, faculty and staff, both on and off campus and at home," Dr. Reagan Ramsower, senior vice president for operations and chief financial officer.

He spoke to the board about strengthened response protocols and relationships with the Waco Police Department, the setting of campus safety officers under one organizational public safety unit, the work that the Title IX office is doing, continued development of a source officer position and an ongoing situational review that Baylor is having done by Philadelphia law firm Pepper Hamilton LLP, which is expected to include recommendations about the university’s response to interpersonal violence.

Ramsower said that the board was very enthusiastic about the progress Baylor is making and emphasizing using the resources available to keep students safe.

"The board is extremely interested, (security) is their top priority, and they’re making that very clear," Ramsower said.

In addition to recognizing efforts to improve campus safety, the board also recognized specific alumni to improve campus safety, the board also recognized specific alumni contributions to excellence, service and faith.

The recipients are chosen based on significant contributions in a variety of areas which reflect Bob’s values of excellence, service and faith.

Starr also presented a project to the board from Dr. Darin Davis, director of the Institute of Faith and Learning, called “Truth Animating...Project,” which will aim at encouraging a deeper shared reflection on Baylor’s mission throughout the university community.

Starr said those efforts are essential if Baylor is to realize its unique place as a key resource of higher learning, according to a press release from Baylor Media Communications. The new fulfillment will be named after Baylor football alumnus Billy Williams, who gave a multimillion dollar gift to help finance this project. The facility will be located near the Wilks Family Experiment Station on University Parks Drive.

This project is aimed at benefiting Baylor’s nationally recognized golf teams and women’s golf teams. The women finished second place in the national championship tournament last season.

Nakal, a 23-year-old MBA student from India at the University of Central Oklahoma in Edmond, and a married couple, Bonnie Jean Storr and Marvis Luke Storr, both 65, of Stillwater.

Gayfard said he had never even seen Chambers break any traffic laws. "She honestly one of the most cautious drivers I've ever ridden with. She never turns out in front of any cars. She doesn't even turn yellow lights," he said.

The crash killed those adults and a 2-year-old boy. At least 46 other people hurt, including children.

On Monday, the Oklahoma medical examiner's office identified the four killed in the crash as 2-year-old Nash Lucas. Oklahoma State University said the boy's mother, 20-year-old Shartata Strachan, is a sophomore majoring in chemical engineering. The four adults were identified as Nikita Nakal, a 23-year-old MBA student from India at the University of Central Oklahoma in Edmond, and a married couple, Bonnie Jean Storr and Marvis Luke Storr, both 65, of Stillwater.

A MOMENT OF SILENCE
A makeshift memorial is set up for the victims of the Saturday homecoming parade crash in Stillwater, Okla. A judge has ordered a psychological evaluation for Adacia Chambers. She is accused of driving her car into Oklahoma State's homecoming parade, killing four people and injuring dozens of others.

Chambers. She is accused of driving her car into Oklahoma State's homecoming parade, killing four people and injuring dozens of others.

Gayfard said he had never even seen Chambers break any traffic laws. "She honestly one of the most cautious drivers I've ever ridden with. She never turns out in front of any cars. She doesn't even turn yellow lights," he said.

The crash killed those adults and a 2-year-old boy. At least 46 other people hurt, including children.

On Monday, the Oklahoma medical examiner's office identified the four killed in the crash as 2-year-old Nash Lucas. Oklahoma State University said the boy's mother, 20-year-old Shartata Strachan, is a sophomore majoring in chemical engineering. The four adults were identified as Nikita Nakal, a 23-year-old MBA student from India at the University of Central Oklahoma in Edmond, and a married couple, Bonnie Jean Storr and Marvis Luke Storr, both 65, of Stillwater.

A MOMENT OF SILENCE
A makeshift memorial is set up for the victims of the Saturday homecoming parade crash in Stillwater, Okla. A judge has ordered a psychological evaluation for Adacia Chambers. She is accused of driving her car into Oklahoma State's homecoming parade, killing four people and injuring dozens of others.

Chambers. She is accused of driving her car into Oklahoma State's homecoming parade, killing four people and injuring dozens of others.
Tricks become treats at Halloween organ concert next week

LAUREN FRIEDERMAN

Play any song on an organ, and it will instantly become spooky. At least, that’s what assistant professor of keyboard studies Isabelle Demers is hoping for the organ department’s 25th annual Halloween Concert.

The concert will take place at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 3 in Jones Concert Hall Admission is free. The concert will feature nine pieces from Bach and John Williams, and will last about an hour. People are encouraged to come in costume.

The concert hall will be decorated for Halloween, featuring a centered skeleton. Before the show, there will be a bake sale, with some unique Halloween cookies and treats. The proceeds from the sale will go toward the organ department’s trip to Denver in 2017.

In the concert, Demers said she will try to feature both standard organ pieces and transcription pieces. Transcription pieces are those adapted from other instruments to the organ. Some transcription pieces in the concert include “Night on Bald Mountain” from “FIREWORKS,” the “Harry Potter Symphony Suite” and “Overtures from Movies of the Ocean.”

“It’s not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun, I think,” Demers said. “I think it’s going to be a lot of tunes people know. A lot of it is a little spooky.”

The first piece, “Hocus and Bogus,” is a staple in the Halloween concert, but this year, Demers has added a new twist. Two pairs, one student played the piece. This year, 11 students will each play about a page of the music. This presents a new challenge because the students must switch places during the piece.

Demers also decided to do it this way because it makes it more entertaining, and said this way it is less daunting to split the work among the students.

“Some students are not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun,” Gardner said.

The second piece is Bach’s “Toccata in Fugue,” a staple in the Halloween concert, but this year, Demers has added a new twist. Two pairs, one student played the piece. This year, 11 students will each play about a page of the music. This presents a new challenge because the students must switch places during the piece.

Demers also decided to do it this way because it makes it more entertaining, and said this way it is less daunting to split the work among the students.

“Some students are not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun,” Gardner said.

The second piece is Bach’s “Toccata in Fugue,” a staple in the Halloween concert, but this year, Demers has added a new twist. Two pairs, one student played the piece. This year, 11 students will each play about a page of the music. This presents a new challenge because the students must switch places during the piece.

Demers also decided to do it this way because it makes it more entertaining, and said this way it is less daunting to split the work among the students.

“Some students are not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun,” Gardner said.

The second piece is Bach’s “Toccata in Fugue,” a staple in the Halloween concert, but this year, Demers has added a new twist. Two pairs, one student played the piece. This year, 11 students will each play about a page of the music. This presents a new challenge because the students must switch places during the piece.

Demers also decided to do it this way because it makes it more entertaining, and said this way it is less daunting to split the work among the students.

“Some students are not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun,” Gardner said.

The second piece is Bach’s “Toccata in Fugue,” a staple in the Halloween concert, but this year, Demers has added a new twist. Two pairs, one student played the piece. This year, 11 students will each play about a page of the music. This presents a new challenge because the students must switch places during the piece.

Demers also decided to do it this way because it makes it more entertaining, and said this way it is less daunting to split the work among the students.

“Some students are not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun,” Gardner said.

The second piece is Bach’s “Toccata in Fugue,” a staple in the Halloween concert, but this year, Demers has added a new twist. Two pairs, one student played the piece. This year, 11 students will each play about a page of the music. This presents a new challenge because the students must switch places during the piece.

Demers also decided to do it this way because it makes it more entertaining, and said this way it is less daunting to split the work among the students.

“Some students are not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun,” Gardner said.

The second piece is Bach’s “Toccata in Fugue,” a staple in the Halloween concert, but this year, Demers has added a new twist. Two pairs, one student played the piece. This year, 11 students will each play about a page of the music. This presents a new challenge because the students must switch places during the piece.

Demers also decided to do it this way because it makes it more entertaining, and said this way it is less daunting to split the work among the students.

“Some students are not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun,” Gardner said.

The second piece is Bach’s “Toccata in Fugue,” a staple in the Halloween concert, but this year, Demers has added a new twist. Two pairs, one student played the piece. This year, 11 students will each play about a page of the music. This presents a new challenge because the students must switch places during the piece.

Demers also decided to do it this way because it makes it more entertaining, and said this way it is less daunting to split the work among the students.

“Some students are not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun,” Gardner said.

The second piece is Bach’s “Toccata in Fugue,” a staple in the Halloween concert, but this year, Demers has added a new twist. Two pairs, one student played the piece. This year, 11 students will each play about a page of the music. This presents a new challenge because the students must switch places during the piece.

Demers also decided to do it this way because it makes it more entertaining, and said this way it is less daunting to split the work among the students.

“Some students are not going to be a concert of serious academic stuff. It’s really fun,” Gardner said.
No. 2 Bears beat Cyclones, rain

TYLER CAGLE
Sports Writer

The Baylor Bears continued their winning ways this weekend as they defeated the Iowa State Cyclones 45-27. The Bears continued their nation-leading home winning streak having won 28 consecutive games. While she was put the Bears’ starting record at 7-0, the win did not come without a cost. During the fourth quarter, Baylor quarterback Seth Russell was knocked out of the game with a neck injury. Freshman Jaret Wright has taken the game and was effective, throwing a touchdown pass on his only attempt.

For the Bears, the loss of Russell in Kansas, Russell has been among one of the best quarterbacks in the nation, leading the country in passer efficiency while throwing for 2,104 yards and 29 touchdowns. Russell has decided to undergo season-ending neck surgery and the reins of the offense will be passed over to Stidham. While the win put the Bears’ surging record at 7-0, the win did not come without a cost. During the fourth quarter, Baylor junior quarterback Seth Russell was knocked out of the game with a neck injury. Freshman Jaret Wright has taken the game and was effective, throwing a touchdown pass on his only attempt.

For the Bears, the loss of Russell in Kansas, Russell has been among one of the best quarterbacks in the nation, leading the country in passer efficiency while throwing for 2,104 yards and 29 touchdowns. Russell has decided to undergo season-ending neck surgery and the reins of the offense will be passed over to Stidham. While the win put the Bears’ surging record at 7-0, the win did not come without a cost. During the fourth quarter, Baylor junior quarterback Seth Russell was knocked out of the game with a neck injury. Freshman Jaret Wright has taken the game and was effective, throwing a touchdown pass on his only attempt.

For the Bears, the loss of Russell in Kansas, Russell has been among one of the best quarterbacks in the nation, leading the country in passer efficiency while throwing for 2,104 yards and 29 touchdowns. Russell has decided to undergo season-ending neck surgery and the reins of the offense will be passed over to Stidham. While the win put the Bears’ surging record at 7-0, the win did not come without a cost. During the fourth quarter, Baylor junior quarterback Seth Russell was knocked out of the game with a neck injury. Freshman Jaret Wright has taken the game and was effective, throwing a touchdown pass on his only attempt.