Former Baylor football player arrested

NATHANIEL KEIL

Former Baylor tight end Tre'von Armstead was arrested for the second time in less than two weeks on Wednesday morning. According to a Jefferson County official, Armstead was arrested at approximately 9:28 a.m. in Port Arthur on charges of sexual assault. He was released from a McLennan County jail shortly after the arrest and was placed in custody, and it looks like he fought with officers,” Meltzer told the Waco Tribune-Herald that officers saw Armstead “commit violence battery, resisting a public officer and committing a misdemeanor.”

Armstead was then taken to Clark County Jail in Las Vegas for the second time in three years. Armstead was arrested for the first time on March 13 on charges of assault inside the Comfort Suites Las Vegas Hotel and Casino.

After police arrived at the Las Vegas hotel, they attempted to place Armstead inside the police vehicle, and Armstead reportedly kicked out one of the vehicle’s windows.

Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department Officer Laura Meltzer, who witnessed the arrest, told the Waco Tribune-Herald that officers saw Armstead “committing misdemeanor battery” on a woman and moved in to arrest him but that Armstead was putting up resistance and appeared to be fighting the officers.

“Officers attempted to take him into custody, and it looked like he fought with officers,” Meltzer told the Waco Tribune-Herald. “He was under arrest and attempted to kick out one of the windows in one of the police vehicles.”

Armstead was charged with three misdemeanors charges, including domestic violence battery, assault of a public officer and tampering with a public vehicle.

Armstead was due in Clark County District Court shortly after the arrest and was placed on a $5,000 bond that afternoon. He was arrested again on March 14.

In 2013, Armstead was named in a Waco Police robbery report. According to the report, Armstead was with three men who robbed a man at a hotel.

 previus page next page

FAITH MILETTO

Chi Omega’s Wish Walk has been in full swing since Sunday. During the week, the sorority celebrates and celebrates its philanthropy, the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

The organization will end the week with its second annual Sandblast Volleyball Tournament from 4 to 9 p.m. Friday at the McLane Student Life Center.

“We are raising money by teams signing up and there is an entry fee of $55 for a team that comes,” Allen George Laura Kington said. “We will have the Baylor basketball game playing and different places to buy food.”

Along with the tournament, Chi Omega will host a dunk tank, where presidents from various Greek organizations have volunteered to be dunked for the cause. There will also be a pie-in-the-face area where attendees can pick a member of Chi Omega or a Baylor professor.

“Make-A-Wish impacts the Waco community in many ways, but I think the biggest thing the organization does is bring hope and joy to families through the power of wish granting. The organization brings everyone together, and Chi Omega is able to help make this happen,” sophomore Houston Hogue said.

Chi Omega has partnered with the Make-A-Wish Foundation for the fourth year.

OPEN DISCUSSION

Chi Omega’s Wish Week has been in full swing since Sunday. During the week, the sorority celebrates and celebrates its philanthropy, the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

The organization will end the week with its second annual Sandblast Volleyball Tournament from 4 to 9 p.m. Friday at the McLane Student Life Center.

“We are raising money by teams signing up and there is an entry fee of $55 for a team that comes,” Allen George Laura Kington said. “We will have the Baylor basketball game playing and different places to buy food.”

Along with the tournament, Chi Omega will host a dunk tank, where presidents from various Greek organizations have volunteered to be dunked for the cause. There will also be a pie-in-the-face area where attendees can pick a member of Chi Omega or a Baylor professor.

“Make-A-Wish impacts the Waco community in many ways, but I think the biggest thing the organization does is bring hope and joy to families through the power of wish granting. The organization brings everyone together, and Chi Omega is able to help make this happen,” sophomore Houston Hogue said.

Chi Omega has partnered with the Make-A-Wish Foundation for the fourth year.

OPEN DISCUSSION

Chi Omega’s Wish Week has been in full swing since Sunday. During the week, the sorority celebrates and celebrates its philanthropy, the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

The organization will end the week with its second annual Sandblast Volleyball Tournament from 4 to 9 p.m. Friday at the McLane Student Life Center.

“We are raising money by teams signing up and there is an entry fee of $55 for a team that comes,” Allen George Laura Kington said. “We will have the Baylor basketball game playing and different places to buy food.”

Along with the tournament, Chi Omega will host a dunk tank, where presidents from various Greek organizations have volunteered to be dunked for the cause. There will also be a pie-in-the-face area where attendees can pick a member of Chi Omega or a Baylor professor.

“Make-A-Wish impacts the Waco community in many ways, but I think the biggest thing the organization does is bring hope and joy to families through the power of wish granting. The organization brings everyone together, and Chi Omega is able to help make this happen,” sophomore Houston Hogue said.

Chi Omega has partnered with the Make-A-Wish Foundation for the fourth year.

OPEN DISCUSSION

Chi Omega’s Wish Week has been in full swing since Sunday. During the week, the sorority celebrates and celebrates its philanthropy, the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

The organization will end the week with its second annual Sandblast Volleyball Tournament from 4 to 9 p.m. Friday at the McLane Student Life Center.

“We are raising money by teams signing up and there is an entry fee of $55 for a team that comes,” Allen George Laura Kington said. “We will have the Baylor basketball game playing and different places to buy food.”

Along with the tournament, Chi Omega will host a dunk tank, where presidents from various Greek organizations have volunteered to be dunked for the cause. There will also be a pie-in-the-face area where attendees can pick a member of Chi Omega or a Baylor professor.

“Make-A-Wish impacts the Waco community in many ways, but I think the biggest thing the organization does is bring hope and joy to families through the power of wish granting. The organization brings everyone together, and Chi Omega is able to help make this happen,” sophomore Houston Hogue said.

Chi Omega has partnered with the Make-A-Wish Foundation for the fourth year.

OPEN DISCUSSION

Chi Omega’s Wish Week has been in full swing since Sunday. During the week, the sorority celebrates and celebrates its philanthropy, the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

The organization will end the week with its second annual Sandblast Volleyball Tournament from 4 to 9 p.m. Friday at the McLane Student Life Center.

“We are raising money by teams signing up and there is an entry fee of $55 for a team that comes,” Allen George Laura Kington said. “We will have the Baylor basketball game playing and different places to buy food.”

Along with the tournament, Chi Omega will host a dunk tank, where presidents from various Greek organizations have volunteered to be dunked for the cause. There will also be a pie-in-the-face area where attendees can pick a member of Chi Omega or a Baylor professor.

“Make-A-Wish impacts the Waco community in many ways, but I think the biggest thing the organization does is bring hope and joy to families through the power of wish granting. The organization brings everyone together, and Chi Omega is able to help make this happen,” sophomore Houston Hogue said.

Chi Omega has partnered with the Make-A-Wish Foundation for the fourth year.

OPEN DISCUSSION

Chi Omega’s Wish Week has been in full swing since Sunday. During the week, the sorority celebrates and celebrates its philanthropy, the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

The organization will end the week with its second annual Sandblast Volleyball Tournament from 4 to 9 p.m. Friday at the McLane Student Life Center.

“We are raising money by teams signing up and there is an entry fee of $55 for a team that comes,” Allen George Laura Kington said. “We will have the Baylor basketball game playing and different places to buy food.”

Along with the tournament, Chi Omega will host a dunk tank, where presidents from various Greek organizations have volunteered to be dunked for the cause. There will also be a pie-in-the-face area where attendees can pick a member of Chi Omega or a Baylor professor.

“Make-A-Wish impacts the Waco community in many ways, but I think the biggest thing the organization does is bring hope and joy to families through the power of wish granting. The organization brings everyone together, and Chi Omega is able to help make this happen,” sophomore Houston Hogue said.

Chi Omega has partnered with the Make-A-Wish Foundation for the fourth year.
Is the NBA going soft these days?

GAVIN RODGER

The National Basketball Association is my favorite professional sports league to follow. However, I have grown frustrated with the escalating frequency of injuries and when a player is not, but that's not my point.

Many NBA players have increasingly been taking “nights off” for rest and still pocketing money as if they have earned it the entire year. It wasn’t even an hour before the game’s start when it was announced that NBA champion Greg Popovich decided that it was best to sit his star player, Tim Duncan, for the San Antonio Spurs against the Portland Trail Blazers at the AT&T Center.

I can understand why the coach Greg Popovich decided that it was best to sit his star player. Thisدن’t mean it was right. The fans are the reason NBA teams are able to make millions according to the league. But to me, the fact remains the same.

The NBA is more than what they become worth to a team and without its fans, the league is nothing. The NBA is an entertainment business, and for the most part they are often lucrative. But to me, the fact remains the same: the fans deserve better. Former San Antonio Spurs player Tony Parker stated it best in his book: "It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do."

The fans deserve better. The NBA is not just a business; it is a place for the basketball fans. It is the place we go to play, it's the love of the game.

It would be a fair assumption to assume I am about to harp on the recent NBA players making a move to sit out, but that is not the case. What I am saying is that NBA players have increasingly been taking “nights off” for rest and still pocketing money as if they have earned it during their night off.

It has become clear to me that NBA owners groups and the players: Unless we are given more appealing games throughout the season, there will be no change in the NBA. The fans deserve better.

There are many San Antonio Spurs fans out there who don’t want to see a regular NBA fan can only afford a $30,963,450 and, on top of that, another $144 million from endorsements. It would be a fair assumption to assume I am about to harp on the recent NBA players making a move to sit out, but that is not the case. What I am saying is that NBA players have increasingly been taking “nights off” for rest and still pocketing money as if they have earned it during their night off.

But to me, the fact remains the same. The NBA is more than what they become worth to a team and without its fans, the league is nothing. It happened to run across this situation the other night. This demonstrates exactly why I am annoyed by NBA players taking “nights off.”

The fans deserve better. The NBA is not just a business; it is a place for the basketball fans. It is the place we go to play, it's the love of the game. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. I happen to run across this situation the other night. This demonstrates exactly why I am annoyed by NBA players taking “nights off.”

The fans deserve better. The NBA is not just a business; it is a place for the basketball fans. It is the place we go to play, it's the love of the game. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do.

The National Basketball Association is my favorite professional sports league to follow. However, I have grown frustrated with the escalating frequency of injuries and when a player is not, but that's not my point.

Many NBA players have increasingly been taking “nights off” for rest and still pocketing money as if they have earned it the entire year. It wasn’t even an hour before the game’s start when it was announced that NBA champion Greg Popovich decided that it was best to sit his star player, Tim Duncan, for the San Antonio Spurs against the Portland Trail Blazers at the AT&T Center.

I can understand why the coach Greg Popovich decided that it was best to sit his star player. This doesn’t mean it was right. The fans are the reason NBA teams are able to make millions according to the league. But to me, the fact remains the same.

The NBA is more than what they become worth to a team and without its fans, the league is nothing. The NBA is an entertainment business, and for the most part they are often lucrative. But to me, the fact remains the same: the fans deserve better. Former San Antonio Spurs player Tony Parker stated it best in his book: "It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do."

The fans deserve better. The NBA is not just a business; it is a place for the basketball fans. It is the place we go to play, it's the love of the game. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do.

But to me, the fact remains the same. The NBA is more than what they become worth to a team and without its fans, the league is nothing. It happened to run across this situation the other night. This demonstrates exactly why I am annoyed by NBA players taking “nights off.”

The fans deserve better. The NBA is not just a business; it is a place for the basketball fans. It is the place we go to play, it's the love of the game. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do.

The National Basketball Association is my favorite professional sports league to follow. However, I have grown frustrated with the escalating frequency of injuries and when a player is not, but that's not my point.

Many NBA players have increasingly been taking “nights off” for rest and still pocketing money as if they have earned it the entire year. It wasn’t even an hour before the game’s start when it was announced that NBA champion Greg Popovich decided that it was best to sit his star player, Tim Duncan, for the San Antonio Spurs against the Portland Trail Blazers at the AT&T Center.

I can understand why the coach Greg Popovich decided that it was best to sit his star player. This doesn’t mean it was right. The fans are the reason NBA teams are able to make millions according to the league. But to me, the fact remains the same.

The NBA is more than what they become worth to a team and without its fans, the league is nothing. The NBA is an entertainment business, and for the most part they are often lucrative. But to me, the fact remains the same: the fans deserve better. Former San Antonio Spurs player Tony Parker stated it best in his book: "It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do."

The fans deserve better. The NBA is not just a business; it is a place for the basketball fans. It is the place we go to play, it's the love of the game. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do.

But to me, the fact remains the same. The NBA is more than what they become worth to a team and without its fans, the league is nothing. It happened to run across this situation the other night. This demonstrates exactly why I am annoyed by NBA players taking “nights off.”

The fans deserve better. The NBA is not just a business; it is a place for the basketball fans. It is the place we go to play, it's the love of the game. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do.

The National Basketball Association is my favorite professional sports league to follow. However, I have grown frustrated with the escalating frequency of injuries and when a player is not, but that's not my point.

Many NBA players have increasingly been taking “nights off” for rest and still pocketing money as if they have earned it the entire year. It wasn’t even an hour before the game’s start when it was announced that NBA champion Greg Popovich decided that it was best to sit his star player, Tim Duncan, for the San Antonio Spurs against the Portland Trail Blazers at the AT&T Center.

I can understand why the coach Greg Popovich decided that it was best to sit his star player. This doesn’t mean it was right. The fans are the reason NBA teams are able to make millions according to the league. But to me, the fact remains the same.

The NBA is more than what they become worth to a team and without its fans, the league is nothing. The NBA is an entertainment business, and for the most part they are often lucrative. But to me, the fact remains the same: the fans deserve better. Former San Antonio Spurs player Tony Parker stated it best in his book: "It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do."

The fans deserve better. The NBA is not just a business; it is a place for the basketball fans. It is the place we go to play, it's the love of the game. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. The fans deserve better. The NBA is not just a business; it is a place for the basketball fans. It is the place we go to play, it's the love of the game. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do. It's what you're paid to do.
Panel pushes police, student relationships

KALYN STORY

Chief of Police Brad Wigtil said Baylor Police Department wants to earn the trust and trust of Baylor students everyday and that is why he is focusing on community pushback.

"Establishing good relationships between students and police is vital to the safety of our students," Wigtil said. "If you don't know and trust one another, you will be hesitant to report and that is the least thing we want."

Wigtil also advised officers every shift to get out of their car and interact with students and ask if there is anything they can do to help.

Wigtil said that since Jan. 1, 10 officers have talked to more than 700 students separate from reports.

Wigtil is also considering developing an "adopt-a-cop" program, asking student organizations to "adopt a" Baylor police officer and support them through prayer and encouragement.

Wigtil spoke at Baylor Department of Public Safety's first student safety panel in the Bill Daniel Student Center Wednesday evening. Assistant vice president of public safety and security Mark Childers said the department plans to host an open forum once a semester to answer student questions about safety and off-campus.

Childers stressed to students that no questions were off the table and that the panelists were there to help students in any way they could.

When answering how students can contribute to making campus safer, Wigtil reminded students to always report if they see suspicious behavior.

"Sometimes students may think that they are over reacting or bothering the police with new emergencies, but we are always happy to listen to reports," Wigtil said. "We would rather be alerted to something that turned out not to be nothing than for others to see it and to us to be potentially dangerous to students."

Leigh Ann Moffett, director of emergency management, encouraged students to download the Rave Guardian App and explained that students can use it to text and officers can use it to send pictures to dispatchers if they witness a crime.

"We want students to feel safe, and we want every student to feel secure navigating our campus," Childers said. "We want everyone, always safe!"

Students also asked clarifying questions about when to report to the police as opposed to the Title IX office. Childers advised students to always report to the police even if the event does not cause criminal change. Wigtil said the police department and Title IX work closely to ensure students who experience traumas are given all the resources available and said he would advise reporting any incident of sexual assault or intimidation to both the police and Baylor's Title IX office.

In addition to taking questions from students, panelists updated students on current and upcoming improvements and changes to campus security measures.

Matt Penney, director of parking and transportation services, made a consultant review available for more information or to register.

The 3rd Annual STEM + Humanities Symposium

1 p.m. Dr. Michael Mori, Duke Global Health Institute, and Dr. Peter Hotz, Baylor College of Medicine, will explore issues of global health. The symposium will be held at Meybourn Museum Complex, SBC Theater.

Men for Change

5:30 p.m. Join Men for Change every Thursday in the Bobo Spiritual Life Center Chapel to meet and discuss issues of spirituality and masculinity.

Friday, Mar. 24

UBreak

10 a.m. Take a break from your busy schedule for a free breakfast, a cup of coffee and community in the Bill Daniel Student Center, UB Room. Be sure to B.Y.O.M. (bring your own mug) and we'll store it for you for the year!

Movie Screening: Metropolitan

5:30 p.m. Phi Mu Kappa will host a special screening of Wint Stillman's Metropolitan, a witty comedy that earned an Academy Award nomination for Best Original Screenplay, in Castellow Communications Center, Room 101. A discussion with Mr. Stillman about the art of filmmaking will follow.

American Sign Language Club "Open Light" Night

6:30 p.m. Join ASL Club members, Baylor students and Wacos at Common Grounds for an ASL "Open Light" sign! The Deaf community and ASL Club members will share jokes, stories and poetry.

Saturday, Mar. 25

Multicultural Student Leadership Summit

All day. Sponsored by Multicultural Affairs, the summit will feature wor kshops and speakers that prepare students to engage and lead in an ever-changing world. Visit baylor.edu/multicultural for more information or to register.

Thursday, Mar. 23

The 3rd Annual STEM + Humanities Symposium

1 p.m. Dr. Michael Mori, Duke Global Health Institute, and Dr. Peter Hotz, Baylor College of Medicine, will explore issues of global health. The symposium will be held at Meybourn Museum Complex, SBC Theater.

Men for Change

5:30 p.m. Join Men for Change every Thursday in the Bobo Spiritual Life Center Chapel to meet and discuss issues of spirituality and masculinity.

Friday, Mar. 24

UBreak

10 a.m. Take a break from your busy schedule for a free breakfast, a cup of coffee and community in the Bill Daniel Student Center, UB Room. Be sure to B.Y.O.M. (bring your own mug) and we’ll store it for you for the year!

Movie Screening: Metropolitan

5:30 p.m. Phi Mu Kappa will host a special screening of Wint Stillman’s Metropolitan, a witty comedy that earned an Academy Award nomination for Best Original Screenplay, in Castellow Communications Center, Room 101. A discussion with Mr. Stillman about the art of filmmaking will follow.

American Sign Language Club "Open Light" Night

6:30 p.m. Join ASL Club members, Baylor students and Wacos at Common Grounds for an ASL “Open Light” sign! The Deaf community and ASL Club members will share jokes, stories and poetry.

Saturday, Mar. 25

Multicultural Student Leadership Summit

All day. Sponsored by Multicultural Affairs, the summit will feature workshops and speakers that prepare students to engage and lead in an ever-changing world. Visit baylor.edu/multicultural for more information or to register.

The 15th Annual Bearathon

8 a.m. Student Foundation’s largest event will begin in McLane Stadium’s South Plaza. Two events are offered—a half-marathon course and a 5K course. This is the “Touchdown Half in Texas,” and a more recreational 5K course.

For more information and to register, visit baylor.edu/bearathon.

Sunday, Mar. 26

Acrobatics & Tumbling

1 p.m. Cheer on the Lady Bears — reigning National Champions — as they host Gannon University at the Ferrell Center.

Tuesday, Mar. 28

Dr Pepper® Hour

3 p.m. A Baylor tradition since 1953, enjoy a Dr Pepper® float and catch up with friends in the Barfield Drawing Room or at Robinson Tower on the 6th floor.

The Untold Story of the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA)

3:30 p.m. Author John Williams tells the story of the LCRA, which built a chain of dams and brought predictability to the cycle of droughts and floods in the Central Texas area. Learn about the forces of nature in Mann’s McLane Science Building, Packard Hall.

Wednesday, Mar. 29

Lady Bears Softball vs. Abilene Christian University

6:05 p.m. Cheer on the WacO softball team in the nation as the Lady Bears take on ACU at Getterman Stadium.
RYLEE SEAVERS

The National Association of Female Executives is a national organization that seeks to empower women to achieve success in their careers and their communities, according to its website. Communication manager Sally Brandon Brown said workplace equality has not been achieved in the United States, and there is still progress to be made.

The National Association of Female Executives provides opportunities for women to network, share experiences and hear from speakers at monthly meetings. Brown and Epperson said the executive board has a set of uses in the workplace that are the same positions, Brown owns her own company, and has dealt with the struggles of doing business in a male-dominated industry.

“I have a lot of questions about my qualifications because I am a woman,” Brown said.

In addition, Brown said people would rather hire a man for IT-related services because she gets extra credentials to help prove her knowledge and experience.

“It’s important when you take into consideration that nearly half of the workforce makes up such a small percentage of management positions and executive positions,” Brown said.

A recent Pew Research report found that women make up 45 percent of the workforce in the United States, and there are approximately 19.3 million more men in the U.S. workforce than women. In the first quarter of 2017, another Pew Research study reported that only 5.4 percent of Fortune 500 CEOs are female, and only 20.2 percent of Fortune 500 board members are women.

Part of the issue, Brown said, is that women are not asking for the positions that they want, and men usually need to feel empowered to do so. Joining groups like the National Association of Female Executives and other organizations that women can help Brown said.

Brown also said it is important for women who are aspiring to enter the business world to find a mentor or a group of other women to guide them.

“It’s such a hard thing to navigate, and even if they are nowhere near the same industry you are, just somebody else that you can learn from,” Brown said.

Brown encouraged female Baylor students to attend a meeting and reach out to a mentor for advice and guidance on entering the business world. The Baylor chapter meets on the third Thursday of every month at Royal’s in the Heights.

Heaven Epperson is a board member of the Waco National Association of Female Executives chapter. Epperson said women in business empower and help each other, and sometimes see the women in their field as a threat or as competition. She said, surprisingly, public speaking helped her gain recognition by networking and learning from other women has been a major benefit of the organization, Epperson said.

“I joined NAFE because of the confidence I had that I wouldn’t ordinarily had I not been a part of the National Association of Female Executives,” Epperson said.

Epperson said female students that want to go into business should never give up and remember “talent is sometimes your greatest success.”

Volleyball from Page 1

According to the American Immigration Council, “because this was a program that was instated by the executive office of the congress, it could not be permanent and could not confer legal status.”

Hernandez said that immigration by the president, could be done by the president. With the swap of the pants, President Trump could do it.

McKeever continued to explain that as the finite of access, that means more as a movement, not as a process by which the courts have interpreted. The naturalization process, many non-citizens have an opportunity to engage more with the United States illegally, McKeever said. McKeever addressed the implications of the recent court case and the narrative of non-citizens being a burden to American society and the economy.

Non-citizens are not a burden because they desire to be, they are a burden because our system sets them up for failure. When they want to have access – they have family relationships and emotions – but by these immigration laws which act as a barrier after barrier that prevent them from getting legal status.

Students were given the opportunity to engage with speakers and ask questions about their experience with immigration policy and what can be done to change the current process. Conversation groups were formed so students to connect with each other to share opinion and ideas.

“I wish I saw more people here (at immigration forum) that don’t know as much about immigration, so that they can be educated on this topic,” vice. Annette senior Rachel Pineda said.

This Matters is a series of discussion panels that seeks to address immediate or unanticipated issues affecting our campus community. By connecting leaders with policy perspectives, this Matters provides a safe space for the Baylor community to share ideas about our understanding of complex topics.

LatinX Coalition is a group of Latinx student leaders committed to fostering unity and inclusion among the Latinx community. The LatinX Coalition meets every other Thursday night in the 321B.

STREAK Yearbook

The schedule includes a hot dog cook-out presented by Slovacek’s Chuy’s every day, a South 40 and monster truck showdown presented by Waco Tuesday, on Sunday, various outdoor and indoor lifestyle exhibits, a rock climbing wall, a bungee trampoline and a two-hour event at a South 40 Shooting Tournament. Throughout the weekend, ATV Test Track will offer ATV rides onsite, and Allen Samuels Dodge Chrysler Jeep Ram will offer test drives for Rams, according to Ingram.

Any time that no business owners can bring activities to Waco that are fun, entertaining, and have value, I think that’s important that we do this,” Ingram, general manager of Allen Samuels Dodge Chrysler Jeep Ram, said. “I’ve been involved with the South 40 Outdoor Expo for five years, and I’ve watched it grow each and every year. It’s a huge fun midway family event.”

Ingram said exhibits and activities appeal to everyone. Applications are screened to make sure they are truly representing the friendly atmosphere as well as a good fit for the outdoor theme. The exhibits include RVs, ATV’s, Asian kites, family games and outdoor gear.

There are many ways to look forward to seeing friends, having fun, and enjoying this event, according to Ingram. Families can find free family activities for kids such as corn mazes and face painting. This year there will be a South 40 tractor tank thanks to Cabela’s, bungee trampoline, climbing rock wall, face painting, and much more.

Forest Advertising

We are here because it works.

Call us to schedule your ad at 973-1487.

Page one editor: Sport editor: Arts & Life editor: Copy editor: News editor: Digital Managing editor: Theta editor:

###

Open position are:

- Baylor Lariat
- Photo editor
- Staff writer
- Student life editor
- Academic editor
- Photographer
- Videographer
- Carabiner

---

McKeever continued to explain that as the future of DACA becomes more uncertain, many

---

With the swipe of the pen, President Trump can destroy the program. With the stroke of the executive office and not congress, it could be done by the executive office, according to the American Immigration Council.

Brown also said it is important for women who are aspiring to enter the business world to find a mentor or a group of other women to guide them.

“It’s such a hard thing to navigate, and even if they are nowhere near the same industry you are, just somebody else that you can learn from,” Brown said.

Brown encouraged female Baylor students to attend a meeting and reach out to a mentor for advice and guidance on entering the business world. The Baylor chapter meets on the third Thursday of every month at Royal’s in the Heights.

Heaven Epperson is a board member of the Waco National Association of Female Executives chapter. Epperson said women in business empower and help each other, and sometimes see the women in their field as a threat or as competition. She said, surprisingly, public speaking helped her gain recognition by networking and learning from other women has been a major benefit of the organization, Epperson said.

“I joined NAFE because of the confidence I had that I wouldn’t ordinarily had I not been a part of the National Association of Female Executives,” Epperson said.

Epperson said female students that want to go into business should never give up and remember “talent is sometimes your greatest success.”

Volleyball from Page 1

According to the American Immigration Council, “because this was a program that was instated by the executive office of the congress, it could not be permanent and could not confer legal status.”

Hernandez said that immigration by the president, could be done by the president. With the swap of the pants, President Trump could do it.

McKeever continued to explain that as the finite of access, that means more as a movement, not as a process by which the courts have interpreted. The naturalization process, many non-citizens have an opportunity to engage more with the United States illegally, McKeever said. McKeever addressed the implications of the recent court case and the narrative of non-citizens being a burden to American society and the economy.

Non-citizens are not a burden because they desire to be, they are a burden because our system sets them up for failure. When they want to have access – they have family relationships and emotions – but by these immigration laws which act as a barrier after barrier that prevent them from getting legal status.

Students were given the opportunity to engage with speakers and ask questions about their experience with immigration policy and what can be done to change the current process. Conversation groups were formed so students to connect with each other to share opinion and ideas.

“I wish I saw more people here (at immigration forum) that don’t know as much about immigration, so that they can be educated on this topic,” vice. Annette senior Rachel Pineda said.

This Matters is a series of discussion panels that seeks to address immediate or unanticipated issues affecting our campus community. By connecting leaders with policy perspectives, this Matters provides a safe space for the Baylor community to share ideas about our understanding of complex topics.

LatinX Coalition is a group of Latinx student leaders committed to fostering unity and inclusion among the Latinx community. The LatinX Coalition meets every other Thursday night in the 321B.

STREAK Yearbook

The schedule includes a hot dog cook-out presented by Slovacek’s Chuy’s every day, a South 40 and monster truck showdown presented by Waco Tuesday, on Sunday, various outdoor and indoor lifestyle exhibits, a rock climbing wall, a bungee trampoline and a two-hour event at a South 40 Shooting Tournament. Throughout the weekend, ATV Test Track will offer ATV rides onsite, and Allen Samuels Dodge Chrysler Jeep Ram will offer test drives for Rams, according to Ingram.

Any time that no business owners can bring activities to Waco that are fun, entertaining, and have value, I think that’s important that we do this,” Ingram, general manager of Allen Samuels Dodge Chrysler Jeep Ram, said. “I’ve been involved with the South 40 Outdoor Expo for five years, and I’ve watched it grow each and every year. It’s a huge fun midway family event.”

Ingram said exhibits and activities appeal to everyone. Applications are screened to make sure they are truly representing the friendly atmosphere as well as a good fit for the outdoor theme. The exhibits include RVs, ATV’s, Asian kites, family games and outdoor gear.

There are many ways to look forward to seeing friends, having fun, and enjoying this event, according to Ingram. Families can find free family activities for kids such as corn mazes and face painting. This year there will be a South 40 tractor tank thanks to Cabela’s, bungee trampoline, climbing rock wall, face painting, and much more.

Forest Advertising

We are here because it works.

Call us to schedule your ad at 973-1487.

Page one editor: Sport editor: Arts & Life editor: Copy editor: News editor: Digital Managing editor: Theta editor:

---

Open position are:

- Baylor Lariat
- Photo editor
- Staff writer
- Student life editor
- Academic editor
- Photographer
- Videographer
- Carabiner

---

Forest Advertising

We are here because it works.

Call us to schedule your ad at 973-1487.
Farmers market finds new home

CAROLINE BENTLEY

"The Waco Downtown Farmers Market is the talk of the town—but not for its much-anticipated 2011, the Farmers Market moved locations on Saturday to 500 Washington Ave. to accommodate the construction of the new, riverfront development. We think our customers and vendors were a little nervous and sad to leave our old location. It is a beautiful spot, and we will miss it. However, we are very excited and I think everyone knows we are going to be a great alternative," said Krati Pereira, Downtown Farmers Market marketing manager.

The Farmers Market has become a staple on the Waco community’s radar. "I bring my locally grown and produced products to downtown Waco in order to support local farmers and artisans as well as to enrich the culture of our community," the Downtown Waco Farmers Market website said.

On a common step on Saturday mornings, the farmers market changing locations was not a positive change for some in the Waco community. Mixed reviews are coming from the Waco University students and Waco residents.

Launched in November of 2003, the Farmers Market, aimed "to bring locally grown and produced goods to downtown Waco in order to portray Belle as an advocate of life to the character. As a champion husband. Belle, portrayed by Emma Watson, is a young woman in a small French town who is struggling to make ends meet. We can all learn a lesson from this film. The scenes are about Belle, a young woman in a small French town who is struggling to make ends meet. Belle is portrayed as an advocate of life to the character. As a champion husband.

But most of all, this film is about realizing that our "happily ever after" does not look so bright at the beginning. Belle is portrayed as an advocate of life to the character. As a champion husband.

"I’ve been coming to the Farmers market since I was a kid. It’s always a part of my weekend," said Highland Park senior Allison Hylton said. "As a common stop on Saturday mornings, the farmers market changing locations was a positive change for some in the Waco community. Mixed reviews are coming from the Waco University students and Waco residents.

Launched in November of 2003, the Farmers Market, aimed "to bring locally grown and produced goods to downtown Waco in order to portray Belle as an advocate of life to the character. As a champion husband. Belle, portrayed by Emma Watson, is a young woman in a small French town who is struggling to make ends meet. We can all learn a lesson from this film. The scenes are about Belle, a young woman in a small French town who is struggling to make ends meet. Belle is portrayed as an advocate of life to the character. As a champion husband.

"I’ve been coming to the Farmers market since I was a kid. It’s always a part of my weekend," said Highland Park senior Allison Hylton said. "As a common stop on Saturday mornings, the farmers market changing locations was a positive change for some in the Waco community. Mixed reviews are coming from the Waco University students and Waco residents.

Launched in November of 2003, the Farmers Market, aimed "to bring locally grown and produced goods to downtown Waco in order to portray Belle as an advocate of life to the character. As a champion husband. Belle, portrayed by Emma Watson, is a young woman in a small French town who is struggling to make ends meet. We can all learn a lesson from this film. The scenes are about Belle, a young woman in a small French town who is struggling to make ends meet. Belle is portrayed as an advocate of life to the character. As a champion husband.

The tale is a testament of love and a lesson of growth. Upon arriving to the movie theatre and seeing the beautiful set created for the film, my heart swelled. The tale is a testament of love and a lesson of growth. Upon arriving to the movie theatre and seeing the beautiful set created for the film, my heart swelled. The tale is a testament of love and a lesson of growth. Upon arriving to the movie theatre and seeing the beautiful set created for the film, my heart swelled.

"I’ve been coming to the Farmers market since I was a kid. It’s always a part of my weekend," said Highland Park senior Allison Hylton said. "As a common stop on Saturday mornings, the farmers market changing locations was a positive change for some in the Waco community. Mixed reviews are coming from the Waco University students and Waco residents.

Launched in November of 2003, the Farmers Market, aimed "to bring locally grown and produced goods to downtown Waco in order to portray Belle as an advocate of life to the character. As a champion husband. Belle, portrayed by Emma Watson, is a young woman in a small French town who is struggling to make ends meet. We can all learn a lesson from this film. The scenes are about Belle, a young woman in a small French town who is struggling to make ends meet. Belle is portrayed as an advocate of life to the character. As a champion husband.

The tale is a testament of love and a lesson of growth. Upon arriving to the movie theatre and seeing the beautiful set created for the film, my heart swelled. The tale is a testament of love and a lesson of growth. Upon arriving to the movie theatre and seeing the beautiful set created for the film, my heart swelled. The tale is a testament of love and a lesson of growth. Upon arriving to the movie theatre and seeing the beautiful set created for the film, my heart swelled.
Baylor football resumes practices

BEN EVERETT
Sports Writer

Baylor football opened spring practice on Saturday, ushering in the first year of new head coach Matt Rhule era in the program. In his opening statement, Rhule said the players have a great attitude so far, but there is still work to be done.

"Everyone has a great attitude," Rhule said. "It's not where we want them to be mentally, even at this point, but they're working toward getting there. So I was excited about that, but I want to see some crispness."

A key headliner going into spring is the quarterback competition between returning enrollees Zach Smith and Anu Solomon.

Rhule also emphasized the importance of practice, saying that the only way to get better is with practice.

"It's where you learn how to compete," Rhule said Saturday morning. "People say, 'Do your job.' You have to learn how to do your job, so you have to do it under stress. Practice is where we learn how to do our job under stress. Practice, those details, those things we teach them in the meetings we perfect them on the practice field. I love the process."

The Bears have seven returning starter on offense from the 7-6 team that won the M & T Carlin Bowl, giving co-offensive coordinators Jeff Mann and Glenn Thomas plenty to work with.

"We have a lot of talent here with the level of talent and the depth he has been so far from the offensive players," Rhule said.

"We play 18 to 25 every game, which is not typical of what we've done here. The reason we do that is because you can't play all the plays and play on defense now with one group. Hopefully, we have two, two and half groups that can play, and we keep them fresh."

Spring practice will resume until April 22 when the team will have six returning starters from the 7-6 team that won the Motel 6 Cactus Bowl, giving co-offensive coordinators Jeff Mann and Glenn Thomas plenty to work with.

"We're there when you can't be."

In his opening statement, Rhule said the players have a great attitude so far, but there is still work to be done.

"Everyone has a great attitude," Rhule said. "It's not where we want them to be mentally, even at this point, but they're working toward getting there. So I was excited about that, but I want to see some crispness."

A key headliner going into spring is the quarterback competition between returning enrollees Zach Smith and Anu Solomon.

Rhule also emphasized the importance of practice, saying that the only way to get better is with practice.

"It's where you learn how to compete," Rhule said Saturday morning. "People say, 'Do your job.' You have to learn how to do your job, so you have to do it under stress. Practice is where we learn how to do our job under stress. Practice, those details, those things we teach them in the meetings we perfect them on the practice field. I love the process."

The Bears have seven returning starter on offense from the 7-6 team that won the M & T Carlin Bowl, giving co-offensive coordinators Jeff Mann and Glenn Thomas plenty to work with.

"We have a lot of talent here with the level of talent and the depth he has been so far from the offensive players," Rhule said.

"We play 18 to 25 every game, which is not typical of what we've done here. The reason we do that is because you can't play all the plays and play on defense now with one group. Hopefully, we have two, two and half groups that can play, and we keep them fresh."

Spring practice will resume until April 22 when the team will have six returning starters from the 7-6 team that won the Motel 6 Cactus Bowl, giving co-offensive coordinators Jeff Mann and Glenn Thomas plenty to work with.

"We play 18 to 25 every game, which is not typical of what we've done here. The reason we do that is because you can't play all the plays and play on defense now with one group. Hopefully, we have two, two and half groups that can play, and we keep them fresh."

Spring practice will resume until April 22 when the Bears will have six returning starters from the 7-6 team that won the Motel 6 Cactus Bowl, giving co-offensive coordinators Jeff Mann and Glenn Thomas plenty to work with.

"We play 18 to 25 every game, which is not typical of what we've done here. The reason we do that is because you can't play all the plays and play on defense now with one group. Hopefully, we have two, two and half groups that can play, and we keep them fresh."

Spring practice will resume until April 22 when the Bears will have six returning starters from the 7-6 team that won the Motel 6 Cactus Bowl, giving co-offensive coordinators Jeff Mann and Glenn Thomas plenty to work with.

"We play 18 to 25 every game, which is not typical of what we've done here. The reason we do that is because you can't play all the plays and play on defense now with one group. Hopefully, we have two, two and half groups that can play, and we keep them fresh."

Spring practice will resume until April 22 when the Bears will have six returning starters from the 7-6 team that won the Motel 6 Cactus Bowl, giving co-offensive coordinators Jeff Mann and Glenn Thomas plenty to work with.

"We play 18 to 25 every game, which is not typical of what we've done here. The reason we do that is because you can't play all the plays and play on defense now with one group. Hopefully, we have two, two and half groups that can play, and we keep them fresh.