Three former Baylor students file 10th lawsuit

PHOEBE SUY

Baylor and an alleged sexual assault victim agreed to a settlement resolving a Title IX lawsuit last fall.

The former student, referred to in the settlement as Figure Doe, said the university failed to respond to multiple events she reported regarding an attack toward the victim, which Clune said "was helpful, not just to her, but to other people."

"That's reassuring and set of facts and information that we had that I didn't think the other biggies had,"

The lawsuit alleged that between 2011 and 2014, 3) Baylor football players had been arrested for rape.

"I think the [Baylor] administration is doing a better job," Clune said.

"I think the culture is your parents' culture, but the second culture is the one you're living in and the third culture is the one you're college or in a career.

"It seems like there's no people in place that are genuinely interested in having a big impact on Baylor's ability to respond to these issues," Clune said.

"I don't think [Baylor] continues to make changes, but they leave that it takes a long time to turn something like this around," Clune said.

"The culture didn't develop in two years and it's not going to go away in two years. It's a long process, but it seems like there's some good people in place that are genuinely interested in having a big impact on Baylor's ability to respond to these issues.

"We don't want our club to be false comfort and feel like people have a vision, we want our club to be false comfort and feel like people have a vision,

"We're really just wanting to create a sense of community," Clune said.

"TCK essentially is your first culture, your parents culture, second culture, the one you're living in and the third culture is the combination of those two," Clune said.

"As a club, TCK is striving to create a sense of community for students who are coming into the American culture without family, a car and knowledge about those things most Americans take for granted like our electricity system, taxes or the transit system.

"Despite having a four year jump on adjusting to American culture, TCK didn't feel really good about it.

"I think the lounge offers the connection with other veterans who are easing into the American dream. It's a place where students can come and feel like they're call their own.

"I think the lounge offers the connection with other veterans who are easing into the American dream. It's a place where students can come and feel like they're call their own.

"I think the lounge offers the connection with other veterans who are easing into the American dream. It's a place where students can come and feel like they're call their own.

"I think the lounge offers the connection with other veterans who are easing into the American dream. It's a place where students can come and feel like they're call their own.

"I think the lounge offers the connection with other veterans who are easing into the American dream. It's a place where students can come and feel like they're call their own.

"I think the lounge offers the connection with other veterans who are easing into the American dream. It's a place where students can come and feel like they're call their own.
Defend DACA, defend the dream

America wants to deport our “dreamers.” The livelihood of nearly 800,000 undocumented immigrants that live and work in America is threatened by the new administration. DACA recipients must comply with every rule, showing that they are currently studying or have graduated from high school and that they have not been convicted of any crimes. DACA is not a pathway to citizenship. If President Barack Obama issued an executive order on June 15, 2012, announcing that the Department of Homeland Security would not target dreamers for deportation.

Attorneys led by Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton threatened to sue the federal government if the Trump administration did not end DACA. Tennessee Attorney General Herbert Stitt III went further and stated that Tennessee would join the lawsuit.

The repercussions of ending DACA will not affect the man who will end the program. The repercussions will fall solely on those who were too young to decide to come to America. Young undocumented immigrants only know America as home, and they feel in their hearts that they are American.

Ending programs like DACA is a signal that President Trump’s agenda to “Make America Great Again” means reversing Obama-era programs and legislation.

In the eyes of some, DACA is a step forward in treating undocumented immigrants as the neighbors, classmates and people we encounter every day. But, in the eyes of others, DACA is a step away from the “Great American” myth President Trump champions.

We see a greater nation, we need immigrants. As a country built by immigrants, we are going against the very foundation that our nation was built on.

Our Founding Fathers immigrated from Great Briton and the United States first and fought against American excesses. Immigration, voluntary and involuntary is the basis of our culture, bringing diversity into our great nation.

We expect our elected officials to make decisions that benefit the country and protect the minority, but dismantling DACA does none of this. The decision to end DACA is insensitive and heartbreakingly, and characteristic of President Trump and his administration.

Any man looks to the status of his community to determine his own. All the world is a stage and we are all merely players. If Trump decides to end DACA, we can be one of the ugliest and cruellest decisions ever made by a president in our modern history. Better leaders have trod on us.

Congress can act to replace DACA, or create a legislative fix, but that is not a realistic option. If “dreamers” may prevent major decisions to be made within the six-month period. But previous discord on the Dream Act and its “dreamers” may prevent major decisions to be made within the six-month period. Interpretation is the right of each person to determine the meaning in the eyes of others, DACA is a step away from the “Great American” myth President Trump champions.

If Trump decides to end DACA, we can be one of the ugliest and cruellest decisions ever made by a president in our modern history. Better leaders have trod on us. Congress can act to replace DACA, or create a legislative fix, but that is not a realistic option. If “dreamers” may prevent major decisions to be made within the six-month period. But previous discord on the Dream Act and its “dreamers” may prevent major decisions to be made within the six-month period.

If Trump decides to end DACA, we will be one of the ugliest and cruellest decisions ever made by a president in our modern history. Better leaders have trod on us.

Congress can act to replace DACA, or create a legislative fix, but that is not a realistic option. If “dreamers” may prevent major decisions to be made within the six-month period.

We all begin college with the zeal and anality of a child. We dreamed different dreams, sure, but that’s just it – we dreamed. Somewhere along the way, great plans are crushed, disappointment and grief take its place. It’s not until we learn to dream in our own right, that we experience the freedom of our dreams.

We’ve had the opportunity in our short life to travel to numerous countries. I’ve met the fake foundations of grade-school children in Cambodian villages and the cultured feet of men and women whose perspectives are only found in the pitiful, sad, and empty life of the American excess in cities like Las Vegas and Sars have been moved by the despair run through on the faces of the children, that once I’d thought was beautiful.

There is no greater fear than fear itself. The fear of an unknown future is an eating disease that we feel every day. It’s not our fear that’s the problem. The problem is the common notion that our bodies are not our own, that a mere biological map, as something to be neutrally studied and far beyond owning one’s sexuality or expression of body. It is our social and cultural conditioning that makes something is beautiful. Instead that a mere shift in thinking can make something is beautiful.

The struggle for respect requires a change of the fear of the other. Although a body can be a powerful tool for change, it cannot alone address the complexity of the objectification of the body and the body. Only when we accept and respect our bodies as something to be respected and not feared.

It is the responsibility of the United States to come out of the shadows. The best way to become a true American is to get out of the closet. We must learn to accept and respect our bodies as something to be respected and not feared.

I’ve had the opportunity in my short life to travel to numerous countries. I’ve met the fake foundations of grade-school children in Cambodian villages and the cultured feet of men and women whose perspectives are only found in the pitiful, sad, and empty life of the American excess in cities like Las Vegas and Sars have been moved by the despair run through on the faces of the children, that once I’d thought was beautiful.

There is no greater fear than fear itself. The fear of an unknown future is an eating disease that we feel every day. It’s not our fear that’s the problem. The problem is the common notion that our bodies are not our own, that a mere biological map, as something to be neutrally studied and far beyond owning one’s sexuality or expression of body. It is our social and cultural conditioning that makes something is beautiful. Instead that a mere shift in thinking can make something is beautiful.
In the Nonprofit Marketing course, students get hands-on experience supporting nonprofit organizations by working with nonprofit professionals in the Waco area to help market their businesses. This semester, Eagle and his group will assist Caritas, an organization that provides food and other resources to low-income families in the Waco area. "Our goal is to help them market, primarily through things that would be "Tips" for them," Eagle said. "Social media marketing is going to be a big thing we are focusing on this semester because the main goal is going to be to market to new donors, new fundraisers and new volunteers." Eagle said.

Neumann Ceasar Chaudel theatre said she didn’t know about Boyce’s nonprofit marketing emphasis until she was on campus. Now as a double major in Anthropology and Marketing, she wants to focus her marketing work on nonprofits. "I feel selfish if I’m only working for my own gain," Warren said. "I always try to [ask] how is this particular job or internship or even this major going to affect the people around me and the world in general?"

DACA from Page 1

A list of the ACT’s application procedures at the Baylor Law Immigration Clinic are from people who came to the U.S. when they were young. The program’s nonprofit lawyer, Lisa Larios, said it will be impossible for President Donald Trump to end DACA while the program is still in place. The same press release said that Trump’s predecessor’s lawsuit was dismissed on Wednesday by a U.S. District Judge in San Francisco. The lawsuit was brought by a group of 15 states and the District of Columbia, who claimed that the program violated the Constitution by allowing illegal immigration.

DACA is an acronym that stands for the Development, Education, Assimilation and Contribution for Alien Children. It was implemented in 2001 as a result of the 9/11 terrorist attacks. The program was designed to help undocumented immigrants who were brought to the U.S. as children to attend school and work legally.

The Baylor Law School recently hosted a series of events at the school to highlight the importance of immigration law and policy. The school has hosted a number of events on immigration law and policy, including a series of events to support students who are undocumented immigrants. The school has also hosted a number of events to support students who are refugees and asylum seekers.

"This is about young people who grew up in the U.S. when they were young," Warren said. "I always try to [ask] how is this particular job or internship or even this major going to affect the people around me and the world in general?"

Neumann Ceasar Chaudel theatre said she didn’t know about Boyce’s nonprofit marketing emphasis until she was on campus. Now as a double major in Anthropology and Marketing, she wants to focus her marketing work on nonprofits. "I feel selfish if I’m only working for my own gain," Warren said. "I always try to [ask] how is this particular job or internship or even this major going to affect the people around me and the world in general?"

DACA is an acronym that stands for the Development, Education, Assimilation and Contribution for Alien Children. It was implemented in 2001 as a result of the 9/11 terrorist attacks. The program was designed to help undocumented immigrants who were brought to the U.S. as children to attend school and work legally.
Tradition runs deep

PUPPY LOVE Dallas senior and member of the Baylor all-girl cheerleading squad Jade Bailey enjoys puppy kisses during the Traditions Rally. Members of the Spirit Squads and Bruiser took photographs and signed autographs for families and students.

DONATE During the Traditions Rally storage pods were set up on Fifth Street to collect donations for victims of Hurricane Harvey. Montville, N.J. sophomore Grace Hartnett organizes donations to be put in the truck.

RHULE ERA Head coach Matt Rhule smiles during his first game as a head coach at Baylor after giving his team a pep talk in the first quarter.

JUDAH AND THE LION Judah and the Lion front man Judah Akers sings to a crowd of Baylor students, staff, and faculty at the Traditions Rally Friday night. Judah and the Lion is an alternative band that started in 2011 in Nashville. The band is made up of Judah Akers, Brian Macdonald, Nate Zuercher, Spencer Cross, Dylan Oglesby, and Daniel Weatherby.

TOUCHDOWN Denver freshman Brittney Kerr and Houston freshman Dee Sidhu celebrate a Baylor touchdown by running around the end zone with flags that spell out Baylor.

BABY BEAR Future Baylor Bear Elli Lassiter smiled and enjoyed the sights and sounds at Traditions Rally. She was accompanied by her father, Josh Lassiter, who works in the Baylor Admissions Office as a coordinator of admissions visit experiences.

SO CLOSE Sophomore wide receiver Denzel Mims loses his grip on the ball as he moves down the field, just barely missing gaining Baylor a first down. He was being chased by Liberty’s defenses.

TACKLE Junior outside linebacker Clay Johnson and senior safety Jalen Pitre corner Liberty’s freshman running back Carrington Mosley.

RAINING GREEN AND GOLD Confetti rains down on the crowd as the Judah and the Lion concert comes to a close. After the concert there were fireworks on Fountain Mall behind Patt Neff Hall.

TAKEDOWN Freshman running back John Lovett tries to push through Liberty’s junior defensive end Tolen Avery and sophomore safety Brandom Tillmon. Lovett does not have much luck and is taken down by his opponents.
Eggsquisite Breakfasts

Five savory breakfast recipes to start your mornings healthy and quickly

PAVANE ME: These banana pancakes take 30 minutes to make, but eating syrup and peanut butter together is worth it.

2. Two-Way Toast
Make fun of the trend all you want, but toast is a great way to start your day. I like to add chia seeds that satisfy your hunger and taste buds. This meal is pretty quick, too, so straining with flying an orange egg is like a breeze.

Time: 10 minutes

Ingredients: Bread of your choice (I use Dave’s Killer Bread with 21 whole grains and seeds), half a banana, one egg, pink Himalayan salt, soy saucese, spices, peanut butter, and chia seeds and cinnamon.

Directions: Fill 1/2 of a piece of bread with the toast and meat to the level of deliciousness you desire. Mix the other piece of bread with the other ingredients and place it in the toaster. For an extra healthy touch, spread a tablespoon of peanut butter and top with cinnamon and chia seeds. In the toaster, you’ll make two of the avocado pieces. Usually I’ll add a little bit of both, so you can choose the toppings you want. This meal has protein, carbs and fiber to balance your body as one meal.

3. Berry and Spinach Smoothie

Never underestimate the power of a smoothie. This is a great tool to get so much in, and you can even make this to-go. On mornings when you’re running late, smoothies are my go-to because I can take them on my drive to campus. I can also easily know exactly what’s in it, plus it’s great for making a smoothie for some extra greens that don’t, but are necessary for a healthy fat and fiber. This recipe completely makes it easy.

Time: 5 minutes

Ingredients: One banana, 1/3 bag of frozen berries, spinach, 1/4 cup plain yogurt, peanut butter and chia seeds in that order. Four-ingredient smoothies are the best to cover the ingredients about three-quarters of the way. Blend on high until the ingredients are smooth. Add more almonds if you’d like a more liquid smearable. By adding the frozen fruit last, the smoothie blends better. Like the rest of the recipes, this smoothie has chia seeds in the fruit, protein in the yogurt and healthy fat in the chia seeds.

4. Banana Pancakes
These pancakes are my favorite food, and this healthy oatmeal has a great aroma for the flour and sugar that many other recipes have.

Time: 30 minutes

Ingredients: One banana, almond flour, almond milk, egg, chia seeds, cinnamon, sugar-free maple syrup, peanut butter and banana.

Directions: Take half the banana and mash it in a bowl. Add the egg, about half a cup of almond flour, and enough almond milk to cover the ingredients. Mix well, then add cinnamon for taste and chia seeds for texture. Add more almond flour or almond milk if you see necessary. On the stovetop, on medium heat, start your first side of the banana toast. For the other piece of toast, add chocolate spread about a tablespoon of peanut butter and top with cinnamon and chia seeds. In a toaster, you’ll make two of the avocado pieces. Usually I’ll add a little bit of both, so you can choose the toppings you want. This meal has protein, carbs and fiber to balance your body as one meal.

5. Egg and Veggie Casserole

This recipe is a great and balanced meal. It’s perfect for you. This egg and veggie casserole is great when made on a Sunday then frozen for the whole week, as this recipe makes about five servings. It’s great to pop in the microwave for about two and a half minutes on weekdays mornings, and, when served with toast and fruit, it is a great and balanced meal.

Time: 30 minutes

Ingredients: 10 eggs, almond milk, two pieces of avocado, chicken and apple sauce, vegetables of your choice (I tend to do spinach, broccoli, peppers and mushrooms, but sometimes I end up using whatever vegetables are left in my fridge).

Directions: Let the oven go to 350 degrees Fahrenheit. In a skillet, chop and whip the 10 eggs along with a slice of avocado for mixing. Once mixed, add the chopped pieces of avocado along with the chopped vegetables. Put in the oven for about 20 minutes, until the top of the casserole begins to turn golden brown. Take out and let it cool. Serve immediately or freeze for meal prepping. Serve with toast or potatoes to give some extra carbs, top with avocado to get some healthy fat and add fruit on the side for an extra bonus. This is definitely a bigger meal, but for days when you’re hungrier or craving something savory, it can be easily popped in the microwave for an all-week satisfaction.
Local healthy dining spot, Terry & Jo’s Food for Thought. The eatery is hosting the “Climate Change Art Exhibit: The Art of Survival” from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. every Tuesday through Sunday from Sept. 1 to Oct. 1.

Upon entering the store, there are different paintings, drawings and photos that make up the art exhibit. Each frame or canvas has a narrative with the name of the piece, the name of the artist and what materials were used to make the piece. A majority of the paintings are also available for customers to purchase and take home when the exhibit is over. The price of each piece ranges from $45 to $2,000.

The exhibit is being sponsored by the group Waco Friends of Peace/Climate. Their blog states that their purpose is to gather people in the Waco area who are dedicated to combating climate change through education and direct action.

The group moved every third Tuesday of the month at 6 p.m. at 703 N. Valley Mills Drive and is open to everyone.

On Saturday, September 16, there will be a special artist conversation event from 6 to 8 p.m. at food for Thought. The event will have live music, snacks and an artist exhibit contest with cash prizes. Customers can vote for their favorite piece, take home free reusable grocery bags and also sign a petition for a 100 percent renewable Waco and fight for climate change. Admission is also free.

“It’s really nice to see some of these Waco restaurants stepping up and recognizing the issues going on in the world right now,” said Jo Dove, owner of the restaurant. “But after meeting customers last week who had been affected by the hurricane in Houston, we figured it’d be perfect timing to raise awareness on the issue of climate change and the devastating effects it has on our planet.”

Food for Thought is located at 1121 Speight Ave., just a couple of blocks from campus. According to their Facebook page, “Their focus is on using healthy, natural ingredients, and other non-perishable and beauty products made with all-natural ingredients, and other non-perishable items.”

Walking into the dining area, customers are welcome to browse over 20 different paintings, drawings and photos that make up the art exhibit. Each frame or canvas has a narrative with the name of the piece, the name of the artist and what materials were used to make the piece. A majority of the paintings are also available for customers to purchase and take home when the exhibit is over. The price of each piece ranges from $45 to $2,000.

The exhibit is being sponsored by the group Waco Friends of Peace/Climate. Their blog states that their purpose is to gather people in the Waco area who are dedicated to combating climate change through education and direct action.

The group moved every third Tuesday of the month at 6 p.m. at 703 N. Valley Mills Drive and is open to everyone.

On Saturday, September 16, there will be a special artist conversation event from 6 to 8 p.m. at food for Thought. The event will have live music, snacks and an artist exhibit contest with cash prizes. Customers can vote for their favorite piece, take home free reusable grocery bags and also sign a petition for a 100 percent renewable Waco and fight for climate change. Admission is also free.

“It’s really nice to see some of these Waco restaurants stepping up and recognizing the issues going on in the world right now.”

CRICHTON | HOUSTON JUNIOR

For today’s puzzle results, please go to BaylorLariat.com
of sexual assault and during January Doe 12, 13, 14 of educational opportunities.

“Investigation and media reports indicate these important cases are but a handful of many in what has been a chronic and chronic history of abuse and neglect identified by Distelroth [Baylor],” the filing states.

The lawsuit alleges Baylor employees, including high-ranking officials, conspired together with the purpose of violating the women’s rights under Title IX and the Clery Act.

“Baylor University has failed to provide a safe and secure environment for our students, as evidenced by the many changes that have occurred within the campus community since May 2016,” the lawsuit said in a statement following the lawsuit. “We will reserve further comment until we have the opportunity to learn more about the concerns raised in this filing.”

The three women are represented by attorneys Chad Dunn and Joe Dunnam, who represent 14 plaintiffs in 5 active lawsuits against Baylor. Dunn could not be reached for comment.

The first plaintiff, Jane Doe 13, 14, was enrolled at Baylor in 2011 as a psychology major. Doe 13 was sexually assaulted in March 2016, the lawsuit states. Approximately two weeks later she reported the assault to a professor who then contacted the department head and sent an email to the Title IX office.

When Doe 13 met with the Title IX office, she was told she had three options: file a Title IX complaint, go to the police or do both. According to the filing, Doe 13 elected to file a complaint through the Title IX office. Doe 13 was notified that her assault occurred the night before her 2017 spring semester would begin.

Jane Doe 13

According to the lawsuit, Doe 13 was sexually assaulted a second time in the fall of 2012 by a Baylor student and rugby team member. When she reported the assault to the counseling center, Doe 13 says she was again manipulated into participating in the same study with Doe 14, where the latter alleged she was raped a second time. The lawsuit states, “The failure of the University’s Counselor, במקרה הסעיף, was negligent.”

Doe 14 also enrolled at Baylor in 2012 as a psychology major. Doe 14 was sexually assaulted a second time in the fall of 2014 by a Baylor football player.

Jane Doe 14

According to the lawsuit, Doe 14 was a member of a Baylor student organization and was referred to the Title IX office on Jan. 25, 2017 by a student organization

Kevin Davis said, “While most students are counseled and supported by officers with each other from similar backgrounds, all over campus, this is a space where our veterans can know that they will feel at home and be able to connect to other students who share similar backgrounds and experiences and perspectives. We will give them that one-on-one support that will hopefully launch them into the greater community because they just provide so much to our campus through leadership and perspectives and hearts for service.”

The VETS website shares statistics about veterans from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs as well as questions that are most important for people to ask veterans.

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.

“Our intent for the school year is to get everyone to think about how we can better connect with the core peer support and, to our community because we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences we are a range and experiences.”

Davis encourages students to look at these questions to get a sense of what is and is not appropriate to talk to a veteran about.
Baylor Lariat

Wednesday, September 6, 2017
The Baylor Lariat

Baylor soccer takes out Ball State in 1-0 shutout game

BEN EVERETT
Sports Writer

Coming into the new football season, Baylor knew it would be without a 1,000-yard rusher in junior running back Terence Williams. Williams is expected to be out until the start of Big 12 Conference play with a undisclosed injury he sustained during a spring practice.

With Williams sidelined, the coaching staff turned to sophomore running back Jalen Hurts to carry the load on the ground. Hurts rushed for 63 yards and three touchdowns as a fullback and lined up at the outside to exploit what the defense was giving.

During the first half in Saturday’s 48-45 loss to Liberty, the Bears had nine possessions and six possessions were solid drives that resulted in points.

The second offensive possession was to be better. Hurts had two carries this time, but neither of them gained more than two yards and the Bears were forced to punt their second time on goal.

At this point, the Baylor defense had given up two field goals to Liberty and was in need of a spark on either side of the ball.

The next time the offense took the field, with two freshmen running back John Lovett was in the backfield with Solomon. Instead, it took the Bears four plays to get to first down, but all full time was rushed for by Lovett. The Bears then gained possession on a punt from sophomore linebacker Denzel Mostor.

With the run game stalled, sophomore receiver Jalen Hurd caught a short pass from sophomore quarterback Cheyenne Serbian to continue the Bears' possession. However, the Bears were unable to convert the third and 12 and turned the ball over on downs.

Crowther scored unassisted after a defensive play on Ball State's junior midfielder Paula Gnewuch, who missed the ball while attempting to clear it out of the box. Freshman goalkeeper Jennifer Walker had a save on goal two minutes out to keep the game in the Lady Bears' hands.

Baylor head coach Paul Jobson said he was pleased with how his team dealt with Ball State's physicality in the game and sees it being part of the transition.

“Most of our losses are going to our role and that I could be incredible. It needed nurturing and time to develop into something special. We've grown in our relationship too. We're not on the same page right out of the gate. But it needed a spark from someone to get us going, to make him believe. It needed her, her expecting things from me. Like many times, the ones you butt heads with tend to be the best leaders and the ones we were connect the most, those you share the most memories.

Though he's very thankful for it, really just blessed, I honestly think that when Coach McGuyre came and Coach Barnes, who is an awesome man, came and Coach Barnes, who is an awesome man, determined to be the shortest outside in NCAA volleyball, recognizing the need for change and growth. It meant not running from times of uncertainty and transitions.

Baylor looks to continue its success as it hits the road for a weekend series with the University of Portland (2-3-1) at 9 p.m. Friday and the University of Washington (3-2-0) at 2 p.m. Sunday in Portland, Ore.
I think when our girls and fans look at us, they see a women who loves to play and plays with great passion and great energy and great excitement.

RYAN MCGUERIE | HEAD COACH

Overall, the Lady Bears could potentially face four 2017 NCAA Tournament teams in the non-conference schedule, with a few vacancies to fill at the start of the season.

The metric basketball team has a similar schedule structure with a few vacancies to fill at the start of the season. The record does not indicate how many games the Lady Bears will face against teams other than those of the Big 12 Conference.

While each non-conference schedule is in the works, the Lady Bears will face four of these teams in the non-conference season, which will be on the map early on in the season.

Brusek and his coaching staff have already released the Lady Bears' schedule for the 2016-17 season, which includes 10 home games and 12 road games. The season opens on November 10, with the Lady Bears hosting the Kansas Jayhawks at 7 p.m.

The Lady Bears will face off against the Kansas Jayhawks on November 10, followed by a game against the Texas Tech Red Raiders on November 12. The Lady Bears will then travel to Lubbock, Texas, to face the Red Raiders on November 14. The Lady Bears will conclude their non-conference schedule with a game against the Vanderbilt Commodores on November 16.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Texas State Bobcats on November 19, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on November 21, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on November 22. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on November 24.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on November 25, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on November 26, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on November 27. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on November 28.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on November 29, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on November 30, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 1. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on December 2.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 3, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 4, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 5. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on December 6.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 7, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 8, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 9. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on December 10.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 11, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 12, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 13. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on December 14.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 15, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 16, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 17. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on December 18.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 19, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 20, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 21. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on December 22.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 23, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 24, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 25. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on December 26.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 27, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 28, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 29. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on December 30.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on December 31, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 1, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 2. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on January 3.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 4, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 5, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 6. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on January 7.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 8, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 9, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 10. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on January 11.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 12, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 13, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 14. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on January 15.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 16, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 17, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 18. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on January 19.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 20, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 21, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 22. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on January 23.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 24, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 25, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 26. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on January 27.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 28, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 29, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on January 30. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on January 31.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 1, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 2, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 3. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on February 4.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 5, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 6, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 7. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on February 8.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 9, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 10, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 11. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on February 12.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 13, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 14, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 15. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on February 16.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 17, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 18, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 19. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on February 20.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 21, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 22, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 23. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on February 24.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 25, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 26, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on February 27. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on February 28.

The Lady Bears' non-conference schedule will be followed by games against the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on March 1, the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on March 2, and the Abilene Christian University Wildcats on March 3. The Lady Bears will then travel to Waco to face the Baylor Bears on March 4.