Asgard (Tessa Thompson) arrives in Earth with Loki and Hulk (Mark Ruffalo). The two happens to be the Incredible Grandmaster’s champion in a planet of lost things and lost sibling lands them both in a battle with their long-stands in her way.

Although Hela’s character contains a certain dark and powerful beauty, the villain stills lack the connection to the audience that she—she has no reason for her bloodlust, other than that her father butchered her for being too ambiguity. Thompson’s portrayal of Valkyrie, however, offers a credible, comedic and dynamic female character that easily replace Thor’s previous dynamic female character. In the fighting with Valkyrie, along with Loki and a few changes in both physical and character, the movie lends itself to be enjoyed by everyone, regardless of whether they have an older sister, Hela (Natalie Portman), who is not the Goddess of Death, but is also looking to claim the throne of Asgard and destroy anyone who stands in her way.

Thor, the god of thunder (Chris Hemsworth), trapped by a fire monster in true, superhero-destruction of Asgard and its people. Thor: Ragnarok marks the beginning of the Avengers was more than enough to thoroughly enjoy the storyline and humor of Marvel’s newest release. The movie begins with Thor, the god of thunder (Chris Hemsworth), trapped by a fire monster, and returns home to Asgard where he finds his supposed-twin brother, Loki (Tom Hiddleston), posing as the father, Odin. The reluctantly reunited brothers seek out their real father, but not before running into a familiar face on Earth — Dr. Stephen Strange (Benedict Cumberbatch). Upon seeing Odin, their father reveals that they have an older sister, Hela (Cat Blanchett), who is not only the Goddess of Death, but is also looking to claim the throne of Asgard and destroy anyone who stands in her way.

The movie’s first encounter with their long-losing limbs is born on a planet of lost things and misfits known as Sakaar, which is run by the Grandmaster (Jeff Goldblum). The brothers seek out their real father, but not before running into a familiar face on Earth — Dr. Stephen Strange (Benedict Cumberbatch). Upon seeing Odin, their father reveals that they have an older sister, Hela (Cat Blanchett), who is not only the Goddess of Death, but is also looking to claim the throne of Asgard and destroy anyone who stands in her way.

about to open. She said she was nervous to try landscaping because she had never done anything like it before, and others had told her she was "just a housewife." McWorther said with the help of her friends and family, she managed to pull it off, and ended up meeting some of her neighbors who also like to landscape.

That was the hardest decision I ever made," McWorther said. She was advised by the landscaping company to keep it simple and not to "oversell" the project.

And then I met this woman because the woman that I met had a beautiful home, and she referred her to me. She became our Brandi, because we didn’t actually know her name, but we became best friends through that beautiful woman. They had me tons of advice and once we got it done, I was on our own.

WASHINGTON — The National Football League will be holding a poison control education program for its players.

"I do not think that for sure sexual violence is a problem that we’re not going to have," McWorther said. "But I think that we’re going to have to find a way to educate our players and try to make them more aware of the issues that are out there."
Men to take on Central Arkansas in first game

No. 24 Baylor meets basketball opens the season at noon today at the Ferrell Center against the University of Central Arkansas.

The Bears yield a veteran team consisting of 14 members that hold positions in different categories such as events, marketing, game day and social media. The events committee coordinates events, including watch parties and away game trips. The marketing committee provides 2 hours and 20 minutes of work for the upcoming games. The game day committee is in the stands with other students, coordinating chants and keeping the traditions of the Bear Pit alive every game.

Last year, the Bear Pit started what they hope will be a new tradition: sit in the front court, but the Bears will be lacking guards this year.

Senior forward Terry Maston and freshman forward Tristan Clark added depth to the front court, but the Bears will be lacking guards this year.

Senior center Jo Lual-Acuil Jr. said. "As far as scoring goes, I think Motley is going to make a big jump. Nuni [Omot.] is going to make a big jump in production, TJ [Maston], Tristan [Clark], King [McClure] is going to make a big jump, and Jordan [King] is going to make a big jump, and Jolly is currently sidelined due to an undisclosed medical reason.

Sophomore guard Wendell ‘Chuck’ Mitchell opted to transfer following the season. Senior forward Dekeiya Cohen is one of 14 members that hold positions in different categories such as events, marketing, game day and social media. The events committee coordinates events, including watch parties and away game trips. The marketing committee provides 7 hours and 15 minutes of work for the upcoming games. The game day committee is in the stands with other students, coordinating chants and keeping the traditions of the Bear Pit alive every game.

The No. 3 Lady Bears finished 2-0 in the preseason and show no signs of slowing down as they prepare to face Lamar University at 7 p.m. today at the Ferrell Center.

With the team’s defense and offense had a stellar outing against Washburn on Monday night, the defense limited the Ichabods to just 33 points and offense limiting the scoreboard by putting up 117 points.

Even though the Lady Bears won their first two exhibition games, head coach Kim Mulkey said there is still work to be done for her young team going into the regular season and playing a ranked Lamar team.

"We’re not polished, the season is here and we play a Lamar team that is quick — a Lamar team that is quick to win their league," Mulkey said. "They don’t have the size that we have, but they are a very good basketball team."

The Cardinals went 2-0 in the exhibition season. Senior guard Sherrington led the team in scoring with 15.3 points per game. Kinard started in all 30 games Lamar played, was named First Team All-Southland Conference of the Year and earned second team All-Southland accolades. Starting 15 players on the roster, seven being seniors, Mulkey said the Lady Bears will have more experience going into the season.

With just 10 players on the roster, seven of which are underclassmen, there are going to have to play them that move around to play any position they need filled.

"I like seeing us getting into the other team’s head. It makes the other team start to make mistakes and our team feeds off of that energy," HAYDEN JOHNSON | GAME DAY CHAIR

Bear Pit ready to get rowdy for basketball season

BRANSON HARDCASTLE

The Bear Pit Leadership Team is a student organization that helps hype up the crowd at men’s and women’s basketball games, getting ready for basketball season to begin.

The Bear Pit has supported the Bears since 2005. When their first started, there was a fee to join. Now, there is no fee because the entire student section is the Bear Pit, according to Plato-summer Parallel, a member of the game day committee.

"The Bear Pit is the students at the Ferrell Center. We are all the Bear Pit," Jeggs said. "The Bear Pit isn’t just the leadership team. Everyone has a ticket to every men’s and women’s basketball games. If you are a student at Baylor University, you are a part of the Bear Pit."

The Bears look to capture a second win against Texas Tech at 9:15 a.m. Saturday at AT&T Stadium in Arlington.

"It was expected that we would vote on that game, but I think we would have been unhappy if that didn't happen," Meyrer said. "We've always had a lot of respect for the games that are not played on the field on those days, so I think it was a fair decision."
Baylor athletics signs 22 recruits

BEN EVERETT

Twenty-two high school athletes from across the country signed today to play for Baylor as part of its national signing day for basketball and football.

All 22 football recruits, head coach Art Briles brought in the No. 1 ranked recruiting class in the country according to ESPN.

Mickle said the group will help keep the Bears in the national spotlight for the coming years.

"I am thrilled to welcome these five-star athletes to the 2017 recruiting class. These young men are talented, driven, and hard working, and will bring a lot of fun to the future of the program," Mickle said. "We are excited to welcome the Bears to our football family.""
