Starr cuts final tie with Baylor University

Ex-president leaves law school

KALYN STORY
Staff Writer

Baylor officially cut all ties with Judge Ken Starr on Friday morning.

"Effective today, Judge Ken Starr will be leaving his faculty status and tenure at Baylor University’s Law School," the statement read. "The mutually agreed separation comes with the greatest respect and love for Judge Starr’s contributions to Baylor and with Judge Starr’s recognition and appreciation for Baylor’s many contributions to him."

The statement continued: "Baylor’s 14th President in many contributions to Baylor. "The appreciation for Judge Starr’s exceptional students of Baylor University who will find and serve around the world."

Moving Forward

Task forces address Pepper Hamilton report

KARYN SIMPSON
Copy Desk Chief

In the wake of the external investigation conducted by Pepper Hamilton LLP over Baylor's conduct regarding alleged sexual violence, the university announced two task forces to the Baylor family for creating a safe, Christian community at Baylor. They are comprised of faculty, staff, students from across departments across the university.

Sexual Assault Task Force

The Sexual Assault Task Force, headed by Reagan Ranumson, Ph.D., senior vice president and chief operating officer in Baylor's department of finance and administration, was formed to help implement 105 recommendations made by Judge Starr to aid Pepper Hamilton in aiding in creating a safe, Christian community at Baylor.

Student-athlete Sexual Assault Task Force

The Student-athlete Sexual Assault Task Force was formed to help support athletes in continuing to create a safe, Christian environment. All athletes at Baylor are required to take an annual sexual assault prevention training.

What's Inside

Opinion: Baylor is moving forward after big changes
ETHAN FREJIE
Staff Writer

The Lariat at Baylor

With football season on its way, students also need to be aware of Baylor's game-day parking rules. Dutton and Speight parking garages will close at 5 p.m. on Friday before the opening of the football game. According to Baylor.edu, "any vehicle parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed."

Campus parking changes to address traffic issues

Parking at the Ferrell Center

Students parking at the Ferrell Center can then buy an express bus to campus. The bus will run every 10 minutes, and will make stops at the Baylor Sciences Building, Paul L. Foster Campus for Business and Innovation, and McClary Music Building.

Parking on campus

Parking garages on campus will be limited to parking permits only, and will be closed every game day. According to Baylor.edu, "any vehicle parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed."

Student parking permit

Any student who wishes to park on campus can purchase a parking permit online for $50. This option allows for parking in a specific location across campus.

Student-athlete parking permit

Student-athlete parking permits will be sold to students for $200. This option allows for parking at the Ferrell Center only. Until Friday he remained a tenured professor at Baylor.

>> WHAT’S INSIDE

> arts & life

New Businesses in Waco: Check out the map included map pp. 81

> opinion

Editorial: How Baylor is moving forward after big changes pp. 2

> sports

Get to know Jim Grobe: This Week at Baylor Football pp. C2

> Lariat at Baylor

With football season on its way, students also need to be aware of Baylor's game-day parking rules. Dutton and Speight parking garages will close at 5 p.m. on Friday before the opening of the football game. According to Baylor.edu, "any vehicle parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed."

Campus parking changes to address traffic issues

Parking at the Ferrell Center

Students parking at the Ferrell Center can then buy an express bus to campus. The bus will run every 10 minutes, and will make stops at the Baylor Sciences Building, Paul L. Foster Campus for Business and Innovation, and McClary Music Building.

Parking on campus

Parking garages on campus will be limited to parking permits only, and will be closed every game day. According to Baylor.edu, "any vehicle parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed."

Student parking permit

Any student who wishes to park on campus can purchase a parking permit online for $50. This option allows for parking in a specific location across campus.

Student-athlete parking permit

Student-athlete parking permits will be sold to students for $200. This option allows for parking at the Ferrell Center only.

BaylorLariat.com

>> WHAT’S INSIDE

> arts & life

New Businesses in Waco: Check out the map included map pp. 81

> opinion

Editorial: How Baylor is moving forward after big changes pp. 2

> sports

Get to know Jim Grobe: This Week at Baylor Football pp. C2

> Lariat at Baylor

With football season on its way, students also need to be aware of Baylor's game-day parking rules. Dutton and Speight parking garages will close at 5 p.m. on Friday before the opening of the football game. According to Baylor.edu, "any vehicle parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed."

Campus parking changes to address traffic issues

Parking at the Ferrell Center

Students parking at the Ferrell Center can then buy an express bus to campus. The bus will run every 10 minutes, and will make stops at the Baylor Sciences Building, Paul L. Foster Campus for Business and Innovation, and McClary Music Building.

Parking on campus

Parking garages on campus will be limited to parking permits only, and will be closed every game day. According to Baylor.edu, "any vehicle parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed."

Student parking permit

Any student who wishes to park on campus can purchase a parking permit online for $50. This option allows for parking in a specific location across campus.

Student-athlete parking permit

Student-athlete parking permits will be sold to students for $200. This option allows for parking at the Ferrell Center only.

BaylorLariat.com

>> WHAT’S INSIDE

> arts & life

New Businesses in Waco: Check out the map included map pp. 81

> opinion

Editorial: How Baylor is moving forward after big changes pp. 2

> sports

Get to know Jim Grobe: This Week at Baylor Football pp. C2

> Lariat at Baylor

With football season on its way, students also need to be aware of Baylor's game-day parking rules. Dutton and Speight parking garages will close at 5 p.m. on Friday before the opening of the football game. According to Baylor.edu, "any vehicle parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed."

Campus parking changes to address traffic issues

Parking at the Ferrell Center

Students parking at the Ferrell Center can then buy an express bus to campus. The bus will run every 10 minutes, and will make stops at the Baylor Sciences Building, Paul L. Foster Campus for Business and Innovation, and McClary Music Building.

Parking on campus

Parking garages on campus will be limited to parking permits only, and will be closed every game day. According to Baylor.edu, "any vehicle parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed."

Student parking permit

Any student who wishes to park on campus can purchase a parking permit online for $50. This option allows for parking in a specific location across campus.

Student-athlete parking permit

Student-athlete parking permits will be sold to students for $200. This option allows for parking at the Ferrell Center only.
Starr cuts final tie with Baylor University

By KALYN STORY

Ex-president leaves law school

Baylor officially cut all ties with Judge Ken Starr on Friday morning.

"Effective today, Judge Ken Starr will be leaving his faculty status and tenure at Baylor University's Law School," the statement read. "He mutually agreed separation comes with the greatest respect and love for Judge Starr's many contributions to Baylor."

From Baylor, Baylor Media Communications said he would remain chancellor and law professor. On June 2, Starr resigned as Baylor president and chief operating officer and was named chancellor of Regent University.

The Baylor Board of Regents notified Judge Starr from his role as Baylor president on May 26 following the conclusion of the Pepper Hamilton and to aid formation of the Sexual Assault Task Force. The task forces were formed to implement 105 recommendations made by Pepper Hamilton and to aid in continuing to create a safe, inclusive community at Baylor. They are comprised of faculty, staff, and students across various departments across the university.

Moving Forward

Task forces address Pepper Hamilton report

In the wake of the external investigation conducted by Pepper Hamilton LLP over Baylor University's conduct regarding alleged sexual violence, the university announced two task forces to address sexual assault and the Spiritual Life and Character Formation Task Force.

The Sexual Assault Task Force, headed by Reagan Ramousse, Ph.D., senior vice president and chief operating officer in Baylor's department of finance and administration, was formed to help implement 105 recommendations made by Pepper Hamilton and to aid in continuing to create a safe, inclusive community at Baylor. They are comprised of faculty, staff, and students across various departments at the university.

Dr. Charles Chittick, professor of constitutional law at Baylor University, who will lead and host the Sexual Assault Task Force, said: "Baylor has lost many students and alumni because of sexual assault. It's time for us to listen to the women on campus and the rest of us, as well."

Financial and administrative leaders at Baylor also had to be aware of Baylor's game-day parking policy. Dutton and Spofford Gentleman parking garages will close at 6 p.m. on Fridays before home games. According to Baylor, "any customer parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed."

Other areas of campus, however, may be unlocked at 3 p.m. on Fridays, students with a parking permit can park on the East Campus Parking Garage as well as all faculty and student lots on campus.

Students parking for the first home football game, which takes place on Sept. 2, must make stops at the Ferrell Parking Garage, the lot will run every 10 minutes, and will make stops at the Baylors Science Building, Paul & Francie Campus for Business and Innovation, and the McCrary Music Building.

Students also need to be aware of Baylor's game-day parking policy. Dutton and Spofford Gentleman parking garages will close at 6 p.m. on Fridays before home games. According to Baylor, "any customer parking here after 6 p.m. will be towed." Other areas of campus, however, may be unlocked at 3 p.m. on Fridays, students with a parking permit can park on the East Campus Parking Garage as well as all faculty and student lots on campus.
In addition, the surveys will determine how the Baylor community have been addressed. "If we've made some progress and we're doing the right thing, "Ramsower said, "you're not going to make a difference." "Success is when a victim — a survivor — of sexual assault can come forward to the university, to anyone, and feel comfortable addressing it with that individual and feel confident that the university is going to take those allegations seriously and investigate in a manner that is consistent with federal law," Hicks said. "Students are encouraged to submit anonymous observations, input and feedback through a form on the task force website." "We hope that we'll be able to build on some strengths, and then we'll be able to better coordinate activities among people who are doing good things," Jones said. "We hope that we'll be able to develop some new initiatives that will address gaps that we see."

Old Chicago Opening Soon in Waco!

Hiring ALL Positions
Line Cook · Prep Cook · Hosts · Servers · Dishwashers · Bartenders

Apply in person at our on site hiring trailer:
4041 S. Jack Kultgen Expressway
Waco, TX 76701
Apply online at CraftCareers.net
Looking to the future of Baylor

The 2015-2016 academic year at Baylor University had the most challenging year in its history. It came as no surprise when the Baylor student body had to deal with allegations against the Baylor football team. Despite this, Baylor students are still committed to their education and remain hopeful for the future of their school.

The Baylor football team has been facing allegations of sexual assault and misconduct for several years. These allegations have cast a shadow over the university and its reputation. However, the university has taken steps to address these issues and improve the campus environment for students.

Baylor University has implemented changes to its Title IX policies and procedures to better support students who have experienced sexual assault. The university has also increased the number of staff in the Title IX office and provided additional support resources for students.

The Baylor Lariat welcomes reader viewpoints through letters to the editor and guest columns. Opinions expressed in the Lariat are not necessarily those of the Baylor administration, the Baylor Board of Regents, the student body or the Student Government Association. The Baylor Lariat welcomes reader viewpoints through letters to the editor and guest columns. Opinions expressed in the Lariat are not necessarily those of the Baylor administration, the Baylor Board of Regents, the student body or the Student Government Association.
New positions aim to unify campus

Along with the appointment of interim Head Coach Jim Grobe and interim President David Guskiewicz, Lori Baker, and Darin Davis have been appointed to new positions.

Lori Baker has been appointed Vice President for Academic Operations and Strategic Finance.

Baker said, “We must all be a part of that effort and in enhancing our culture’s response and prevention of sexual assault.”

Michelle Berry has been appointed Vice President for Academic Affairs and the Office of the Provost.

Berry said, “I hope to play a small role in providing trust and confidence in these financial processes, and I have many thoughtful colleagues committed to that same end.”

Darin Davis has been appointed Vice President for University Strategic Planning and Academic Resources.

Davis said, “The appointment of Darin Davis, who has been so effective as the leader of Baylor’s Institute for Faith and Learning, will enhance and strengthen the focus on our mission across the university.”

Davis’ role includes encouraging Baylor students, faculty, staff, graduates and donors to see Baylor’s Christian mission as the director of the Institute for Faith and Learning. He has earned degrees from multiple universities, including Baylor. In addition to the skills and knowledge he has gained from such positions, Davis has thought of ideas in relation to Christian higher education since his graduate days at Baylor in the mid-90s. He said he hopes to keep the flame of Baylor’s original mission burning in order to pass the torch down to the next generation. Through this appointment, Davis hopes to be able to bring his expertise to the university’s mission, which will move both the university and its students forward from the recent sexual assault scandal and to keep the mission’s flame burning, according to the press release.

Darin E. Davis has been appointed executive vice president for academic affairs and provost, with oversight of Baylor’s faculty and deans to work together and progress important initiatives, especially in health sciences.

Baker is an associate professor of anthropology who specializes in molecular forensic analysis of skeletal remains. She has received degrees in anthropology both at Baylor and the University of Tennessee. Baker is also the founder and executive director of the International Consortium for Forensic Identification, Remaining Family Project.

The program recovers and identifies remains of undocumented immigrants who have died during their attempts to enter the U.S. In addition to the program, Baker works internationally to identify victims of human rights violations. Through her efforts, she has brought closure to families who have lost loved ones.

The lecture is free and open to the public, but tickets are required as seating is limited. Tickets will be available in the Bill Daniel Student Center starting on Sept., 21-23. For more information, visit www.baylor.edu/beall-russell.

David McCullough has been widely acclaimed as a “master of the art of narrative history.” He is a two-time winner of the Pulitzer Prize, a two-time winner of the National Book Award, and has received the National Book Award of the Pulitzer Prize.

His most recent book, the widely praised The Wright Brothers, rose to #1 on The New York Times bestseller list. The Greater Journey: Americans in Paris, also a #1 bestseller, according to critics is “dazzling,” …”history to be savored.” His worth 179 has been attributed a “classic” while John Adams, published in 2001, remains one of the most praised and widely read biographies of all time.

The citation accompanying his honorary degree from Yale states: “As an historian, he paints with words, giving us pictures of the American spirit, its life, breath, and above all, confront the fundamental issues of courage, achievement, and moral character.”
It seems that breakthroughs in technology occur almost every day. One of the latest technological breakthroughs has come from Baylor graduate Alex Le Roux, but you may remember him as a former cross country athlete.

Advances in 3-D printing have allowed for a variety of innovations within different sectors. In 2013, scientists at Princeton University created a house car with the ability to pick up radio frequencies by using 3-D printing technology, according to an article by Princeton University. Le Roux has taken 3-D printing a step further by using a 3-D printer to build a livable space.

After some time, Le Roux built his first printer, which measured a colossal 10 feet by 10 feet. As the printer — along with his objectives — evolved, Le Roux realized he had the opportunity to print the first 3-D house in America and named it the "Tiny House." The process of printing the house is a "simple technique," Le Roux said. He began with a 2-D design on a computer and studied the designs on top of one another in order to raise it up. As one person kept an eye on the computer and printed, the other fed concrete into the printer, and in a mere 24 hours, the house was built.

While Le Roux said his immediate goal is to print an up-to-code house in Austin with the hopes of capturing the attention of investors and scaling his company, his ultimate goal "is to try to automate construction as much as possible." He envisions construction moving to an area where robot arms are doing the heavy lifting and shingles are completed in the span of a couple of days. The tiny house industry has gained because of its simplistic nature. With the aid of Le Roux’s accomplishments, tiny houses will become more accessible and the industry will continue to grow.

"I wanted to print something more useful," Le Roux said.

After some time, Le Roux built his first printer, which measured a colossal 10 feet by 10 feet. As the printer — along with his objectives — evolved, Le Roux realized he had the opportunity to print the first 3-D house in America and named it the "Tiny House." The process of printing the house is a "simple technique," Le Roux said. He began with a 2-D design on a computer and studied the designs on top of one another in order to raise it up. As one person kept an eye on the computer and printed, the other fed concrete into the printer, and in a mere 24 hours, the house was built.

While Le Roux said his immediate goal is to print an up-to-code house in Austin with the hopes of capturing the attention of investors and scaling his company, his ultimate goal "is to try to automate construction as much as possible." He envisions construction moving to an area where robot arms are doing the heavy lifting and shingles are completed in the span of a couple of days. The tiny house industry has gained because of its simplistic nature. With the aid of Le Roux’s accomplishments, tiny houses will become more accessible and the industry will continue to grow.

"I wanted to print something more useful," Le Roux said.

However, others have come to know him as the first person to 3-D print a house in America. "Whether you remember him as a former cross country athlete," said Dr. Todd Still, dean of George W. Truett Theological Seminary. "Truett used to have a concentration in religious education, but it is no longer offered. The School of Education once had courses in religious education, but the response to those courses was not sufficient to gain traction in past years.

"We looked within our divisions and asked the questions, ‘What are the needs of the congregations and schools that we are seeking to serve?’ As we did that, this joint-degree gained traction,” Still said.

By Rachel Mower

The Baylor University Board of Regents approved numerous initiatives at last month’s board meeting. Among other proposals, the board approved a new joint-degree program to be offered at George W. Truett Theological Seminary and the School of Education.

"It is important to have a religious education concentration within the seminary because churches are in need of education ministers," said Dr. Todd Still, dean of George W. Truett Theological Seminary. "Truett used to have a concentration in religious education, but it is no longer offered. The School of Education once had courses in religious education, but the response to those courses was not sufficient to gain traction in past years.

"We looked within our divisions and asked the questions, ‘What are the needs of the congregations and schools that we are seeking to serve?’ As we did that, this joint-degree gained traction,” Still said.

At its most recent meeting, the Baylor University Board of Regents also voted to increase the tuition for the fall 2017 and spring 2018 school year at the lowest percentage in over 20 years – 4.25 percent.

“The board is fervently committed to nurturing an environment where academic rigor, spiritual life and character formation can flourish, but also one that provides access and affordability for families and their students who dream of pursuing a high-quality and distinctive Baylor education,” Ronald D. Nutter, chair of the Board of Regents, said in a press release. “The University is providing more financial assistance to students than at any other time in our history, and we are working hard to attract, retain and graduate young people who are guided by their faith and strengthened by their Baylor education to make a difference in our diverse world as global citizens and leaders.”
How to work creative

Baylor graduates start podcast for freelance artists

RACHEL MOWER
Staff Writer

Richard Ross and Jake Brown, freshly equipped with Baylor degrees, jumped into the creative field expecting their artistic skills to produce a profit. Unfortunately, it was not long before they epitomized starving artists.

After a long learning process accompanied by plenty of mistakes, they now have successful jobs in the creative field.

In addition to their creative work, Ross and Brown started making podcasts that offer tips and advice on how to run a business, as well as the mistakes they made when starting out.

"Both Ross and Brown graduated from Baylor University in 2013. Ross currently works as a video and photography producer while Brown works as a film director.

"Ross said he learned a lot from obtaining his degree in theatre performance, but knew little to nothing on how to make a resume with this knowledge.

"I really remember the beginning when I didn’t know how much to do, and I remember how difficult it was. There were no master classes or firsthand examples from people on how to run a freelance business,” Ross said.

"We wanted to create a resource that we wish we had when we were in school to provide freelancers the knowledge of how to run a freelance business,” Ross said.

Ross and Brown said they have a passion for helping others reach their fullest potential. They wish we had when we were in school to provide freelancers the knowledge of how to run a freelance business.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You have to act and operate like a professional,” Brown said.

"You are running a business. It is not just you and your friends making movies anymore. You have to act and operate like a professional,” Brown said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks.

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks.

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks.

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks.

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks."

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks.

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks.

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks.

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks.

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.

"We wanted to start a conversation about the freelancing community is growing and what you possibly can in school. Your education is important today as it was back then. Experience oftentimes trumps whatever is written on your degree,” Ross said.

"You can’t just jump into a business. You have to start now. College is the best time to take creative risks.

"If you want to do this stuff for a living — photography, videos on graphic design — just start now. College is a great place to try things out and learn from experience. It’s also a place where it’s kind of a safety net for failure. You’re young, and that’s not that much on the line,” Brown said.

"Transitioning from being a college student to a business professional can be difficult, but Brown said he learned early on the importance of adapting to this change as quickly as possible.
In addition, the surveys will determine how the Baylor community have been addressed and if the issues present in through feedback from climate surveys. The surveys will help identify if changes have been made and if the issues present in the university in revising the policy and will continue to work on improving.

"The Title IX policy at this moment is going to make a difference. "

Ramsower said the team will gauge its success by addressing it with that individual and feel confident that the university is going to take corrective action in the ways that we've fallen short, " Jones said. "At the same time, " Ramsower said, "It's intended to help students form healthy spiritual, mental and emotional lives. "

The Baylor Lariat

TIMELINE from Page 1

May 26: The Board of Regents remove Starr as president and Art Briles as head football coach based on the findings from Pepper Hamilton. Athletic Director Dan McCaw is put on probation. Starr releases a statement saying he was not made aware of the assaults until August, 2015.

May 30: Ian McCaw resigns from his position as athletic director. Jim Grobe is hired as the new head football coach.

June 2: Starr resigns from his position as chancellor to speak freely and call for transparency from the Board of Regents.

July 13: Mack Rhoades is recruited as the new athletic director.

July 20: Shawn Oakman is Indicted on a sexual assault charge. Oakman is accused of sexually assaulting a Baylor student on April 3.

Old Chicago Opening Soon in Waco!

Applying in person at our on site hiring trailer: 4951 S. Jack Kultgen Expressway Waco, TX 76701

Apply online at CraftCareers.net

Old Chicago is currently interviewing hospitality professionals who will proudly represent the Old Chicago brand with a positive, energetic attitude and who will help the team to provide an exceptional dining experience to our guests... Every Guest, Every Time.

ONLINE EXTRAS

Read coverage of the sexual assault lawsuits filed against Baylor at: BAYLORLARIAT.COM

Success is when a victim — a survivor of sexual assault can come forward to the university, to anyone, and feel confident addressing it with that individual and feel confident that the university is going to take those allegations seriously and investigate in a manner that is consistent with federal law," Hicks said.

"Students are encouraged to submit anonymous observations, input and feedback through a form on the task force website."

"I would challenge the student body to have courage to speak into this process and to not fear something might happen if they have courage to speak into this process and do, " Ramsower said "... because if we're not going to make a difference."

Spiritual Life and Character Formation Task Force

While the Sexual Assault Task Force focused on immediate change, its counterpart, the Spiritual Life and Character Formation Task Force, is focused on long- term, ongoing change and community- building.

The Spiritual Life and Character Formation Task Force, led by executive vice president and provost Greg Jones, Ph.D., aims to improve collaboration and community across campus and aid in creating a character-driven, Christ-centered culture within Baylor and the surrounding community.

"We want to look at both specific ways that we can take some action this fall to improve coordination, to build on things that are happening on campus that already work and to help spread that," Jones said. "(We also want) to ask some bigger questions about things we might do over several years that might improve the ways we think about what it means to help students form healthy, spiritual, mental and emotional lives."

Jones said the task force's first objective was to study how students across campus form and evaluate new relationships with outside churches and organizations across Waco. By doing this, the task force hopes to effectively build out existing programs and discover places where new programs are needed.

"We hope that we'll be able to build on some strengths, and then we'll be able to better coordinate activities among people who are doing good things," Jones said. "And then we'll also be able to develop some new initiatives that will address gaps that we've discovered."

"The task force will gauge its success by surveying students to see if they perceive more campus-wide coordination, as well as using both qualitative and quantitative instruments to evaluate if the task force is effectively helping students with character and spiritual formation," Jones said.

While students may not join the task force, they are encouraged to give feedback and input other through the anonymous online form or by speaking with task force members such as university chaplain Kurt Bushman, director of new student programs Elisa Dunman, vice president of student life Kevin Hines, or assistant athletics director for student athletic personal development Patrice Rutter. Students may also speak with faculty-in-residence at the Baylor residence halls.

"(We also want) to ask some bigger questions about things we might do over several years that might improve the ways we think about what it means to help students form healthy, spiritual, mental and emotional lives," Jones said. "We want to look at both specific ways that we can take some action this fall to improve coordination, to build on things that are happening on campus that already work and to help spread that," Jones said. "We want to look at both specific ways that we can take some action this fall to improve coordination, to build on things that are happening on campus that already work and to help spread that,"

"(We also want) to ask some bigger questions about things we might do over several years that might improve the ways we think about what it means to help students form healthy, spiritual, mental and emotional lives,"
Helping U Find That Place Called Home.

- Providing homes to Baylor students for over 35 years
- Apartments, Houses, Condos and Duplexes
- Visit our leasing office at 400 LaSalle Ave.

For more information on availability of properties, call 254-753-3355
www.brothersmanagement.com