BEARWEB BOOSTS SECURITY
Students must register for two-step Bearweb login by Oct. 4

Beginning Oct. 4, students will have to register for a two-step login verification process called Duo to gain access to Bearweb. The new process will use their Bear ID and password to log into Bearweb. However, to fully gain access to the system, a code will be sent to students’ smartphones or tablets in order to complete the login process.

In preparation for this change, Baylor Information and Technology Services has sent out a “Bear Aware” security alert through an email titled “Additional Security Capacity to Bearweb (October 4, 2016)” to inform students and staff they need to register for the new system.

“It is vital that students register as soon as possible in order to access BearWeb,” the email said. “After this date, you will no longer be able to use your Bear ID Number and PIN. Instead, you will need to use your Bear ID (e.g., Betty, Baylor) and password along with a Duo two-factor authentication method.”

Baylor Information and Technology Services makes this transition in the interest of maintaining a secure system for students and staff.

“Passwords no longer represent a great way to secure sensitive information,” said Jon Anderson, Baylor Information and Technology Services assistant vice president and chief information security officer. “If you think about it, passwords are fairly easy for somebody to compromise because of phishing scams.”

Baylor, senior Emily Durkin, finds the transition to be more of an isolated inconvenience to the login process.

“I understand why they would want the extra security, but it sounds like it would be a pain to have to login with a code every time,” Durkin said.

Allen acknowledged that students may consider the login process an inconvenience.

“People fear the small stuff and think, ‘Oh, fictionally, that can happen,’ but those are real stories and real things that are happening on campuses today. This isn’t us just being paranoid; this is the world we live in today. People don’t see it clearly, highly,” Allen said.

For assistance registering for Duo, Baylor Information and Technology Services will be hosting Duo assistance tables throughout the months of September across campus.

DOUBLE SECURITY Duo requires Bearweb users to access accounts through a two-factor authentication method. Students must switch to Duo by Oct. 4 in order to register for spring classes.

The Baylor Athletic Training Student Association raised almost $300 for the Louisiana State Athletic Association students to help with flood relief on Sunday, Sept. 18.

Louisiana State University students lost their homes due to the recent hurricane Harvey. The American Red Cross called on the “seven U.S. disaster hurricane family.” Over 400,000 homes were destroyed and 13,000 people were killed.

The director of a national student organization at Louisiana State University reached out to other student organizations across the country asking for donations. Scaled, Artie, senior Shan Thompson, Vice President of the Baylor Athletic Training Student Association, said 10 to 15 LSU athletic athletes lost their homes from the flooding.

“We rallied. We got back for the fall and decided we wanted to have a small fundraiser to get anything we could for them,” Thompson said. “Baylor’s organization put together a bake sale to help with the flood relief for the LSU students.”

“People hear this stuff and think, ‘Oh, fictionally, that can happen,’ but these are real stories and real things that are happening on campuses today. This isn’t us just being paranoid; this is the world we live in today. People don’t see it clearly, highly,” Allen said.

For assistance registering for Duo, Baylor Information and Technology Services will be hosting Duo assistance tables throughout the months of September across campus.

In just three hours, they were able to raise money to make an impact for the students. Randle said some students stopped by the booth and just donated $10.

Randle said the organization is trying to get more involved in service organizations in hopes of helping other students throughout the country. “Because we are athletic training students, our time is always limited. We’re always cooking, games, practices, etc. for Baylor athletics, so we don’t have much time to really get involved in service organizations,” Randle said. “We really try to pitch service and helping others.”

The organization will have a fundraiser at U-Swirl on Sept. 28. They encourage anyone to go and mention the organization. All proceeds will go to flood victims.

ART OVER ESSAYS Baylor honors freshmen will now have the option of completing an art project as a reflection for the Freshman Reading Project. Students are required to complete six hours of service per year, and students can find opportunities in community centers, camps, and churches.

What the book means to them. “You kind of have to dig inside yourself in a way that I don’t think you have to do necessarily when you’re writing an essay,” said Marcin Marczenko, Honors Program advisor and coordinator of the Freshman Reading Project. In the future, many students may be unable to take art classes due to schedule and department constraints. The reading project’s art option may appeal to students who choose to express themselves, but don’t have the desire to do so. “Unless you’re a University Scholar, or you’re a minor in art or science, or major in art, you’re not necessarily going to get to take art classes are chosen because these areas are often reserved for the majors or the minors,” Marczenko said.

The visual pieces students submitted were often professional and detailed or interpretive, Marczenko said. “This student took photographs of the Waco Suspension Bridge, and she made this really beautiful impression with the bridge about ‘The Road to Character’ and how you

Parking Services are people too

Students have many complaints, but the one that seems to rise most consistently is parking. Many people find faults with the constant changing of number of spaces and ever-rising expenses of the parking passes, and many students see tickets and late fees as an unmerited enforcement team. However, these concerns only cause frustration for the people who do their best to follow the parking lot rules and may not have much to do with monitoring the parking lots.

One of the best ways to avoid a ticket is to simply park where you are allowed. In the example above, students who choose to pay for the parking sticker have the right to park on campus. If they try to park in faculty spots not for a sticker, they should also make the effort to walk their car to the ticket after 7:30 a.m. to park on campus.

This being said, parking is not just an issue among students; the faculty and staff also have issues. One issue the parking lots are often tampered with and ultimately cannot be given tickets, but these are given out for the parking sticker have the right to park on campus.

Primarily, parking services could imitate another example of a community group: encourage faculty to park where they are given spaces. This would make parking slightly less stressful for students. Additionally, those who pay for parking services could initiate a survey for faculty members to see if other faculty members are interested in parking nearer to campus.

This is fitting because of the need to find parking in a new city is easier said than done. There are a variety of different cities, so it is difficult to have one's feet on the ground in the local church or community setting of one's choosing. For this reason, parking seems so dauntingly simple in finding a church to start attending. But we need spiritual needs and also a place to worship that we know who to choose. By let knowing many Christians in other cities, you should be able to start at squares one.

To be clear: No one is perfect, and neither are pastors out there who are not doing their jobs well. This article speaks only to the pastors who seem arrogant and aloof while not expecting so much as credit in return.

From people who aren't in the church should draw appreciations. Pastors are always attentive to what is going on in the community because they have a heart for people in general. But these communities also need to reach out to the community by working to create programs to better society and provide opportunities to help others.

WASHINGTON — Wells Fargo CEO John Stumpf apologized Tuesday in a Washington hearing for the bank’s aggressive sales tactics that were revealed in an earlier investigation by the Justice Department. The Federal Reserve, which had not considered firing her, applaud the cross-selling of products — trying to sell insurance, debit cards and credit cards at the same time — and “shaming” relationships. With strong and persistent criticism of the bank’s business practices, Stumpf offered some detail over his words. This is part of their overall mission. It makes good business sense, “ he said. “I want to emphasize that from the president’s perspective isn’t charity that makes good society,” he said.

UNITED NATIONS — World leaders announced the United Nations pledged Tuesday to take in 100,000 refugees over the next year, President Barack Obama said, roughly doubling the previous U.S. offer in a bid to mitigate the worst refugee crisis since World War II.

The United States and 114 countries taking part in the U.N. meet are stepping up to accelerate resettlement and promote financial support for refugees. The White House did not release a full list of participating countries or a breakdown of their pledges, making Obama host of major breakthrough impossible to confirm.

Obama, in an emotional event designed to encourage wealthy prick of refugees, called a “crisis of epic proportions” that has transcended national and the world.

Obama announced that the U.S. would take 10,000 refugees this coming year, a 30 percent increase over the 8,500 showed in this year’s president’s budget. The president urged his fellow leaders to do more.

“Obama welcomed the pledges from 54 countries or a breakdown of their accounts or a more than an “extraordinary gesture of compassion.”

Obama called on wealthier nations to respond. He said it was pledging $300 million, roughly doubling the $150 million it pledged in 2012.

Judge orders trial for Silva

RIO DE JANEIRO — Former President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva must stand trial on charges of money laundering and corruption, a Brazilian judge ruled Tuesday.

Judge Sergio Moro said there is enough evidence to start a judicial process against Silva, his wife and an ex-wedding cake supplier. The judge's decision had been expected after prosecutors charged Silva last week.

The judge gave Silva and the other defendants 30 days to present their defense in court.

Silva, who was a highly popular president in 2003-10, has long been implicated in the so-called Car Wash investigation. But last month, prosecutors named his purported role in the kickback scheme that goes back more than a decade, calling him the "maximum commander." The same investigation that has sent over a dozen people to stand trial so far.

The judge gave Silva and the other defendants 30 days to present their defense in court.

For the first time in its history, Brazil's former president was named in a money laundering and corruption scandal.

Men’s golf finishes in top 10
Bears look for better results on Friday

The Baylor men’s golf team ended its first tournament of the season this past weekend at Olympia Fields in Illinois. They barely broke into the top 10 by one stroke.

Head coach Mike McGraw said in the post-competition interview that although they did not perform well this week, he feels that they are a team that can improve.

“Although we did not perform well this week, I feel that we have a chance to improve on many things that we need to work on,” McGraw said.

Sophomore Braden Bailey said he was looking for one main thing heading into the next tournament.

“The Baylor Men’s golf team will continue to work hard and improve their game competitively for the month and as a whole, and we have high hopes as the season continues.”

“Some of our kids have really played much golf competitively for a month and a half. By the end of next week, you want to make sure that you’re sharp that way,” McGraw said.

“For me, I just want to become a little bit more consistent player. I played fairly well last year, especially in the spring, but I had a couple of really bad tournaments, and I just want to make sure those bad tournaments aren’t so bad to where I can still contribute to the team and help us post a good score,” Bailey said.

Banned from Baylor facilities
Former defensive end Oakman seen in the Bears’ locker room on Saturday

Baylor said Monday night that it had no part in former defensive end Shawn Oakman’s appearance in the Bears’ locker room after Saturday’s game against Rice. Oakman, who was charged with a second-degree felony sexual assault earlier this July, is not allowed in any Baylor-owned facilities or any Baylor locker rooms at away games.

“Baylor did not invite Shawn Oakman onto the field or into the locker room. He made his way there after the game but did not address the team, according to a statement released by Baylor. As indicated earlier today, Coach [Jim] Grobe did not recognize that Oakman was in the locker room area. Coach Grobe is not aware of any contact between Oakman and the team. Grobe is not present in Baylor-owned facilities other than the locker room at future away games.”

Oakman was arrested in April after a graduate student notified police of the assault that occurred in his apartment on April 3. Oakman can be fined up to $10,000 for a second-degree felony sexual assault and face a sentence between two to 20 years in a state prison.

Although Oakman said the events that occurred were consensual, the case progressed high. No plea was made.

Head coach Jim Grobe said that although he was notified of Oakman’s presence near his team, he never saw him.

“I really have no idea. I don’t know who Shawn Oakman is. I wouldn’t be able to recognize him if he walked in the door right now,” Grobe said.

“There were a lot of people around at the end of the game. There are always a lot of people around, but I had no idea. I didn’t know he was there or know who he is.”

Grobe clarified minutes later that he was told Oakman was at the game, but he continued to deny knowing who Oakman was.

“I’ve heard that Shawn Oakman was at the games, but I don’t know who Shawn Oakman is,” Grobe said.

It was confirmed by a Baylor spokesman that Oakman did, in fact, enter the Bears’ locker room following the game.

Former teammate senior quarterback Seth Russell said he still considers Oakman to be a part of Baylor. “He’s a great guy, just in a bad situation, “Russell said. “We’re not going to hold anything against him. He was part of the team, and he’s still a part of Baylor. We’re going to love him as much as anybody else.”
